

SOCIETY and CLUBS

By Janet Wray Smith

Club Is Scene Much Activity

The Rogue Valley golf club was a popular meeting place yesterday as hundreds gathered to watch top-ranking golfers of today in exhibition matches and demonstration.

Many went in small groups to join the large gallery of golfing enthusiasts following the eighteen-hole match between Harry Cooper and Lawson Little and Jimmy Thompson and Horton Smith.

Veranda and grounds of the club-house were crowded all afternoon as valley and city residents and members of the club discussed the most imposing event in history of the local club. Many brought out of town guests, here to view the matches and a number of parties preceded and followed the several hours spent on the course.

The mingling of society and sport provided a gay atmosphere throughout the day.

Arizona Guests At Barnes Home

Being greeted by Medford acquaintances this week are Mr. and Mrs. William Pistor, who, with their son, Michael, arrived recently from their home in Tucson, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Pistor are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barnes. Mrs. Barnes and Mr. Pistor are sister and brother. They are here for several days.

Informal entertainment is being arranged for the visitors.

Many Present For Gathering

About 35 members of the Loyal Women's class of the First Christian church were entertained at a picnic supper at Jackson Hot Springs, which took the place of the regular session last week.

Games and a program were arranged for the affair, following a brief business session.

Mrs. Williamson Breakfast Hostess

Among those selecting late summer for entertaining is Mrs. Lloyd Williamson, who is arranging a series of informal parties.

Mrs. Williamson invited friends for breakfast last Friday morning and is planning similar affairs for tomorrow and Thursday mornings.

WORRIED LEADERS LOOK TO F. D. R. FOR FUTURE STRATEGY addresses of the session they defied anyone to oust them from the party, and bluntly told the administration they were ready for open war.

If the fight comes their friends said, the "rebels" can count on strong support from other disgruntled elements within the party.

With them would stand the "old-line" Democratic leaders, who are determined to name an anti-New Deal presidential candidate in 1940; a host of southern congressmen, perturbed by the administration's legislation and friendship with organized labor, and foes of the president's plan to extend public power development through seven "Little TVA's."

Some leaders of the insurgent faction asserted that reconciliation may already be impossible, and said they expected the president to open the offensive this autumn.

May Come to Coast They predicted he would make a "vacation" trip to the west coast, stopping en route in Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana, the home states of the rebel leaders.

There, it was suggested, he would speak in defense of his program and ask the defeat of his opponents at the polls.

Many administration stalwarts showed little enthusiasm for such an internecine struggle, which might well cripple their party for years to come.

They conceded, however, that a truce with the "rebel" factions was becoming increasingly difficult.

Any lasting armistice, they said, would involve abandonment of such New Deal aims as court reorganization, wage and hour regulation, and new social reforms and would almost certainly provoke a new revolt—this time from the militant proponents of this program.

H. CHANDLER EGAN IS EULOGIZED AT MEMORIAL RITES

present for the memorial services. John Jackson, president of the United States Golf association, discussed his relations with Egan on the executive committee of the association.

Recalling that he had first met Egan 35 years ago, Jackson eulogized his former associate in terms of affection and respect.

Crediting Egan with having been one of the principal figures in bringing this year's national amateur to Portland, even though it followed his death, Paul Pherrin, president of the Northwestern Golf association, expressed his regret that Egan could not have been alive to view the accomplishment of one of his last efforts. He also was a personal friend of the "grand old man" of golf.

The death of Egan in 1935 brought grief, not only to his many friends among golfing greats but to scores in Medford and the Rogue River valley, where his personal qualities had endeared him to everyone who knew him.

Glenn Jackson, who was in charge of arrangements for the dedication and other activities of the day, concluded the program with thanks to the speakers, who had come great distances and taken time from busy schedules to aid in memorializing their late friend and associate. Jackson also expressed his appreciation to those who helped in preparations for the event.

"Iron Lung" Fails To Save Paralytic

SEATTLE, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Shirley Kelley, 17, of North Plains Ore., died shortly after being rushed here by plane Saturday to be placed in an "iron lung."

She was stricken five days previously with acute poliomyelitis.

Her mother, Mrs. C. H. Kelley, chartered a special plane at Hillsboro in a desperate attempt to save her life. Hillsboro nurses and firemen kept her alive during the flight by administering oxygen.

Light Cone Crop PORTLAND, Aug. 23.—(P)—A light cone crop for nearly all types of trees in the northwest indicates a poor year for natural reforestation and for commercial collectors. Thornton T. Munger, director of the Pacific northwest forest experiment station said.

Steels led the decline in one of the slowest sessions of the year. The ticker tape barely moved during the greater part of the proceedings.

The apathetic slide was attributed by brokerage quarters partly to further disturbing war news from the far east.

Transfers were in the neighborhood of 550,000 shares.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon expression is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three or four years of life. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
