FOREIGNERS FACE GROWING DANGER IN JAP ASSAULT

both to the northern and central China war zones.

At Shanghai, troops from 30 Japanese transports as well as heavy artillery batteries were ferried ashore. Bitter engagements were fought on all sectors of the Shanghai front.

Despite increasing danger, many Americans insisted on remaining in China. It was estimated about 7000 non-military United States citizens have not been evacuated.

More than 2000 American civilians, mostly businessmen and their families, stayed in Shanghai, with apparently no thought of abandoning their fortunes.

The U. S. S. Asheville's commander, Allen G. Quynn, ordered Americans at Swatow to board his ship as soon as it became apparent Japanese intended to bombard the city. After the raid, the British consul asked Commander Quynn to transmit a request to Hongkong for a British destroyer.

Shanghai Strated.

Twenty Chinese civilians were killed and municipal and military headquarters were damaged in the bombardment.

When the new assault started at Shanghai, the city's river front bund was quickly ordered cleared of all pedestrians and the crowded areas fringing on the famous thoroughfare were soon desolated as the artillery battle screamed into full intensity just at sundown.

The detonations from the Japanese warships and the Chinese land batteries in Pootung rocked Shanghai like an earthquake.

One Japanese hospital ship was struck by several Chinese shells. There was an undetermined number of casualties. An anti-aircraft shell of unknown origin fell midway between the American consulate and the American club, but claimed no victims.

Marines Lucky.

The giant base of a Japanese nine-inch shell ploughed into the heart of the barricades manned by the Americans. The whirling 150 pounds of metal had first crashed through a neighboring Chinese warehouse. Had this not miraculously broken its momentum many of the marines undoubtedly would have been killed or wounded.

It was the eighth projectile to endanger the American positions since last night. Thirteen Chinese were wounded and a marine patrol narrowly missed death when seven 3-inch Japanese shells crashed into the sector.

Japanese army authorities expressed their regret.

The Japanese destroyers stationed just off the international settlement began pumping shells into the Chinese positions in Pootung, the ruined industrial area across the Whang-poo, at noon. Just northeast of the settlement the heaviest Japanese artillery yet to go into action around Shanghai joined the battle with its deep-throated roar.

CATHOLIC PARISH TO GIVE CARNIVAL

Preparations are being completed for the two-day circus carnival to be presented by the Catholic parish Tuesday and Wednesday of next week on the parish lawn. The event is sponsored by St. Ann's altar society and all units of the parish are taking part.

Those in charge have announced that cafeteria dinner will be served Tuesday night only instead of both nights as originally planned.

Afternoon and evening programs will be presented both days and a number of outstanding features are being planned in addition to traditional carnival events. Young men's and young women's organizations of the church will present particularly outstanding entertainment, according to Mrs. S. I. Brown, general chairman.

ELKS TO DISCUSS CONVENTION PLAN

It was decided at last night's regular weekly meeting of the Elks lodge to devote the entire time of next Thursday's meeting to a discussion of plans for the annual Oregon state Elks convention to be held in Medford September 24, 25 and 26. C. E. ("Pop") Gates, general chairman of the convention committee, will be in charge.

Gates stated he would do his best to make this an outstanding meeting of the fall season, and hoped that every member in the vicinity would be present. He pointed out that most of the club room improvements would be completed by then, giving members an opportunity to view them before the convention opened.

There will be special entertainment and a lunch will be served by Lodge Chef ("Ch") Morthland.

PAYMENT ON TAX DUE SEPT. 15TH

The third installment on taxes collective this year, is due on or before Wednesday, September 8, without interest, according to the tax collection department of the sheriff's office.

Anyone having delinquent taxes for 1934 and prior years is able to come under this law by paying current taxes and two quarters of the oldest delinquent year, with interest on the first quarter. This must be done on or before January 1 next.
