Community Institution Adds
Complete X-Ray Unit and Artificial Fever Cabinet
for Diagnosis, Treatment

Improvements made recently at Community hospital include installation of a complete X-ray diagnostic unit and an artificial fever cabinet. Both are now in use and are said to be giving excellent results.

The X-ray unit was installed by the General Electric X-ray corporation. It affords Community hospital patients the same high standard of X-ray diagnosis as is procurable at the best institutions in Portland and San Francisco, it was stated by C. W. Frost, corporation technician.

Hospital attendants said the artificial fever cabinet was giving gratifying results. As its name implies, the cabinet produces an artificial fever to wage war on a variety of microbes.

Fever Therapy New.

Fever therapy is now being used in the treatment of a number of diseases, including gonorrheal arthritis, syphilis, bronchial asthma and chronic infectious arthritis. Treatment by artificial fever has aroused considerable interest in medical circles and numerous articles have been published in recent months in magazines of general national circulation.

The new X-ray equipment occupies a whole room at the hospital. It comprises a combination radiographic and fluoroscopic tilting table used in conjunction with a radiographic rail-mounted X-ray tube stand unit, vertical cassette tunnel, stereoscopic illuminator and a complete dark room equipment for film processing. The X-ray apparatus is in charge of a qualified technician.

The entire X-ray equipment is exceedingly compact, being installed in an ordinary-size room which leaves ample space for patient, surgeon, technician and nurses. It is entirely shock-proof, thus providing safety for both patient and operator and making possible the administering of anesthetics right in the X-ray department.

Aid to Patient.

"This unit is equal to any in Oregon as to the quality of the work it will produce and is superior to most," Mr. Frost said.

The tilting table affords radiography and fluoroscopy in all positions of the patient, from vertical to Trendelenburg. It is designed for the utmost convenience of the patient.

The fluoroscope is of improved design, traveling and being usable the entire length of the table. Its range of operation is considered advantageous because the patient does not have to be moved.

The X-ray tube also is easily moved from one end of the table to the other and it may be used in any position most convenient for the patient. It may also be extended beyond the edge of the table for use in cases where the patient is too seriously ill to be moved from his bed. In such cases the patient may be wheeled in his bed into the X-ray room.

The vertical cassette is used for vertical chest radiography or for any work where better diagnosis is obtained when the patient stands or sits.

Rapid Exposure.

The equipment, Mr. Frost explained, has sufficient power to do most work in fractional second time and permits taking chest radiographs in one-twentieth of a second. Through this speed greater detail and sharpness of outlines are obtained, he said.

"Fractional second exposures are advantageous where the patient cannot remain still or where there is involuntary motion due to heart action as in the chest cavity," Mr. Frost related.

The stereoscopic illuminator is used to show the radiographs to the best advantage through adequate lighting. It is also of great value, Mr. Frost pointed out, in viewing two radiographs simultaneously to produce depth or a third dimension of some pathology. This is important, for example, in determining the extent of a fracture or other injury and provides the examining surgeon with information necessary for a correct remedy for the condition, Mr. Frost emphasized.

The dark room has modern water temperature control to insure uniformly good results in film processing. It is equipped with several innovations and conveniences which are designed for efficiency and perfection of work.

OLD-FASHIONED PARTY NEXT TOWNSEND MEET

By Geo. Iverson.

Townsend Club No. 2 meeting Friday evening, will have an old-fashioned party at the close of the business season. Such games as "drop the handkerchief," "fruit basket," forfeits, etc., will be indulged in by those who still retain part of their youth, while those who have completely and irrevocably grown old may sit on the side lines and look on. A good time is anticipated by all.

Club No. 2 of Medford follows the policy of having a good time, as well as attending to the serious business of Townsend work.

There will be no dance until the fruit season is about over.

SUDDEN PROSPERITY CLUE TO BURGLARS

ROSEBURG, Ore., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Inability to withstand the temptation to exhibit sudden prosperity resulted in the arrest today of two 19-year-old boys by officers investigating the robbery of the Hugh Harrison garage here Monday night. The boys netted $45 in the robbery and proceeded to buy a bicycle, finance a winter roast for a group of their young friends, and repay loans made to them by their companions. Paul Parsons, state police sergeant, said. Their spending spree attracted the attention of officers, who secured from them admissions that they broke a rear window and entered the garage.
