EX-PRESIDENT OF WALTON LEAGUE IS KIWANIS SPEAKER

Because of the inroads of industry and the rapid increase of population, streams and rivers in America are fast becoming depleted of fish.

Dr. Ward, who is in Oregon at the request of the state board of mining and geology, recalled that when he was a boy the Hudson river was one of the finest fishing streams in the country.

Now, he declared, it was nothing more than an "open sewer."

He stated that Oregon today has resources superior to any other place in the entire world.

Dr. Ward is a former faculty member of the University of Illinois and is investigating conditions in Oregon regarding the effect of mining conditions along the Rogue river.

Guests at the meeting today were A. M. Swartley of Portland, the Rev. E. S. Bartlam, T. E. Daniels, Dr. W. W. Howard and W. F. Isaacs, all of Medford; J. S. Love and Otto Bohner of Central Point; C. B. Monaghan of California; and E. H. Gould of Brookings, Cal.

Will Wed Gable?

Della Carroll (above), 23, recently signed a night club contract and announced she would be married to Clark Gable next spring.

She said, "I'm just nuts about Clark," she said, "we suit each other down to the ground."

Gable hasn't commented on Della's disclosure.

Dr. Ward complimented Medford on its fine new sewage disposal plant, stating that it would go a long way toward keeping fishing streams unpolluted.

BONNEVILLE, CHICAGO DEFINITELY SET FOR TALKS ON F.D.R. TRIP

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Two definite speaking engagements were placed on President Roosevelt's west coast itinerary today—at Bonneville dam near Portland, Ore., and Chicago—as officials continued to chart the 8,000-mile journey.

The cross-country swing, planned to give the chief executive a first-hand picture of administration projects and an opportunity to gauge interior and Pacific coast sentiment on his broad economic objectives since congress adjourned, will start from here late Wednesday.

It will end two weeks later, most likely at Washington, after a speech October 5 dedicating the federally-financed outer drive bridge in Chicago.

Secretary Marvin McIntyre said the Bonneville address, a date for which has yet to be selected, probably would be the only formal one of the trip. Others, to be made en route to Seattle where the president will visit his only daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, and returning east, will be of the rear platform extemporaneous variety, it was said.

LYRICIST MILLAY TURNING NOW TO DRAMATIC POETRY

Famous Author Says Transition Is Natural—Avers She Has Always Been Aware Of Life About Her.

By Charles Norman (AP Feature Writer)

AUSTERLITZ, N. Y.—Once upon a time there was a young woman in Greenwich Village who wrote poems that shocked the bourgeoisie, poems that went like this:

My candle burns at both ends; It will not last the night; But ah, my foes, and oh, my friends— It gives a lovely light!

A whole generation of undergraduates and Bohemians knew her verses by heart, quoted them, imitated them.

Today, Edna St. Vincent Millay is older, more serious. Her fame is universal. But as she looks around her she sees her light-hearted world of the years after the war transformed by the political hatreds of mankind. So she has laid aside the lyric of love and beauty in which she excels, to put down in verse the troubled thought of our time.

Critics Are Divided

Her latest book, "Conversation At Midnight," has divided her critics and readers. Some praise it as her greatest work; others wish she had continued to write lyrics with the tight-packed, stinging line of which she is master. This she does not mind. What she does mind, is the inference that she has just become social-conscious. To this she replies:

"Nobody has ever read me." "It's ridiculous to say that I have suddenly become aware of the life going on around me," she exclaims with passion. "I've always been aware, always been writing about it."

"What was 'Renaissance' about? It was about people who were starving, people who were suffering. And that was my first poem. More than 10 years ago I wrote a play called 'Aspidochelone'—that was about the war."
