Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Stocks crawled into a recovery move for 1 to 3 or more points in today's early market dealing, but a late selling push unsettled leaders at the finish. Bulls held the play from the start, with most other groups taking part. Lack of volume, however, dampened buying courage in the final hour and traders were quick to take profits. Lightness of dealings was said to have been caused partially by absence of numerous boardroom customers who were either participating or witnessing the huge American Legion parade.

Strength of American issues in Amsterdam and London, after their recent relapse, apparently helped buoy sentiment at the opening. Improvement in bonds and commodities, on the whole, was also encouraging. Shares were around 1,000,000.

Pirate Chasing Old Job On Mediterranean Sea

(By AP Feature Service) Stephen Decatur ("Our Country") May the eagle be right, but our country, right or wrong, made himself some fame by burning the "Philadelphia" as she lay captive, and returned to the scene with a man-sized fleet five years later. That time he made the pirates swear off American vessels for good.

Well, the pirating went on and off for 20 years more. Although it was pretty well cleaned up by 1830, English sailors learned the combats against slant-sailed corsair ships. Now they have to figure out the under-way variety.

Skipping Phoenician and Roman and all such ancient history, the Old Man flips a page to the year 1492. That stood for the discovery of America in your school book, but it stands also for the beginning of modern piracy as a big-time business in the Mediterranean.

In 1492 Ferdinand and Isabella, who backed Christopher Columbus' well-publicized expedition, also kicked the Moors out of Spain.

The Moors had lived a long time in Spain and didn't want to leave. So they did the next best thing: they hung around Spanish shores as pirates, knocking off the peaceful traders and playing the very devil with freight rates.

Perfectly respectable African ports like Algiers, Tunis and Tripoli became sinister strongholds where the trade in bloody gold and white women was brisk and profitable.

Among the first and greatest freebooters that this pirate trade developed before long bad-acting elder brother Urju fought himself into an unmarked grave. The younger, tougher, and smarter—brother went right on up.

As he captured more and more women, ships and treasure, and became king of Algiers, ruler of Tunis and high admiral of the grand Turk himself, most of the Christian nations tried their hand at wiping him out.

The greatest ruler of them all, Charles V of the Holy Roman Empire, spent the early part of the 16th century sending one expedition after another to catch Barbarossa.

Malta was the stronghold for the Knights of Malta who did their best to scourge the Moslem pirates, along with the rest of the heathen. (Pun-ny thing, but the English who are now leading the charge against submarine "pirates" have one of their most important bases at Malta.)

Getting down to the 19th century, the pirates of northern Africa were still at it when the United States of America appeared. The United States, like some respectable European powers, was paying tribute to Tripoli just to keep her tradersmen out of trouble.

In 1810 the pasha wanted to hike the $83,000 annuity and the United States, but not one "million for defense, but one cent for tribute." Objections led to an expeditionary force and—the loss of the U. S. frigate "Philadelphia."

FROM MISSOURI, curvaceous Betty Grabbe was shown how to be a star in Hollywood, but she'll foss aside her career to wed Jackie Coogan.

Stated Communication of Reams Chapter, O. E. S., Thursday evening, Sept. 23rd, 8 o'clock, Mrs. Myra Frink, W. M., will give a report of Grand Chapter proceedings. Visiting members invited. Hatting M. Alden, Secretary.
