

OREGON'S APPLES TO ENJOY STRONG SELLING PROGRAM

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (SpI)—Oregon's 1937 crop will face greater national competition from other apple-producing areas, but will be supported by an unusually strong sales program based on the widely known quality of Oregon apples.

In that manner did R. S. Hazeltine, chairman of the Oregon Apple Growers Stabilization committee, today sum up this year's outlook for state growers.

Federal Market News Service reports indicate a crop of 3,740,000 bushels as compared with 4,250,000 bushels in 1936. This stacks up against an estimated national production that is 74 percent above last year—204,319,000 bushels as compared with 117,808,000 in 1936.

"Good growing conditions have produced a crop of such fine quality that the depressing effect of an unusually large eastern crop should be largely overcome," Hazeltine said.

"In addition, we have been promised that 37,000 chain stores will feature northwest apples in five nationwide sales, the first to take place between now and October 10, when our harvest reaches its peak, others to come in late October, December, February and March.

"We anticipate that this aid, coupled with the quality of the crop and the fact that other fruits will become comparatively scarce, will result in a satisfactory deal."

Hazeltine explained his committee enlisted chain store marketing support when the size of the national crop became apparent. Other growers on the committee are Walter H. Leverette, Medford; A. H. Davenport, Ashland; Ben M. Johnson and George F. Blinn, Milton-Freewater; and A. L. Peters, Glen B. Marsh and R. W. Arens of Hood River.

HINT IDAHOAN SLATED AS PREXY AT OREGON

MOSCOW, Idaho, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Friends of Dr. M. G. Neale, who said they could not be quoted, reported today they were informed reliably the former University of Idaho president was considering the possibility of a transfer to the University of Oregon presidency.

Willard Marks, member of the Oregon state board of higher education, was quoted as declaring at Albany: "There has been absolutely no offer of the University of Oregon presidency to anyone."

E. C. Sammons, of Portland, member of the board of higher education, also dismissed Moscow reports that Dr. M. G. Neale had been offered the presidency of the University of Oregon.

"This is the first time I have heard his name mentioned," he said.

POULTRY PARALYSIS THREATENS INDUSTRY NORTHWEST STATES

SEATTLE, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Washington's poultry industry is threatened by range paralysis, a serious scourge attacking chickens, but the illness can be overcome by feeding them vitamin E. Dr. August J. Pacini, of Minneapolis, milling company biochemist, said today.

He came west at the request of western Washington poultrymen. Dr. D. M. Warren, Missoula, Mont., Montana's assistant state veterinarian, accompanied him.

"The states of Montana and Idaho, which have suffered most from the paralysis, are thinking of banning chicks from Washington and Oregon," Dr. Pacini warned. "A study of the disease has shown that it has broken out almost exclusively in chickens shipped from Washington and Oregon."

"Washington must act to save her poultry industry."

Ten western states have lost 32,000,000 chicks valued at $43,000,000 because of the disease, he said.

A 90 percent cure has been effected in flocks by the introduction of vitamin E into their diet, he added. Wheat and lettuce are good sources.

RARE BLUE SHEEP SHOT IN CANADIAN BUSHLAND

EDMONTON, Sept. 22.—(P)—Long-sought by students of wild life as one of the rare inhabitants of "nature's no-man's land" in the bushlands of Northern British Columbia, four specimens of the ston or blue sheep were shot by Michael Lerner, New York, field associate of the American Museum of Natural History. The big game hunter returned to Edmonton over the week-end by airplane.

Mr. and Mrs. Lerner and William Oliver, Calgary photographer, hunted with rifle and camera.

HOOD RIVER APPLES WILL GO FOR RELIEF

HOOD RIVER, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Local growers and shippers have been notified that the federal relief agency plans the early purchase of thousands of bushels of apples of utility grades for distribution among the needy this winter. Prices were not given.

The mid-Columbia fruit tonnage will run largely to high commercial grades this season and cooking grades will be of comparatively small quantity.

MICHAELSON DOUBTFUL THIRD TERM WANTED

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Sept. 22.—(P)—Charles Michelson, publicity director for the Democratic national committee, said here today he believed President Roosevelt would not seek a third term unless he was "badly needed."

Michelson predicted there would be only two major parties in the next election.

MANY SEEK LAND IN TULE PROJECT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The bureau of reclamation reported today a "land rush" by mail for the 60 farms which shortly will be opened to homesteaders on the Tule lake division of the Klamath reclamation project in northern California.

More than 2,000 persons have applied for parcels of the 5,105 acres which the bureau is prepared to supply with water.

But there'll be no "sooners" in the modern land rush, officials said. Instead of letting homesteaders race for their stakes on opening day, as they did when Indian territory was opened, the government will review the applicants and select those most likely to succeed.

To qualify, an applicant must have good health, two years of farming experience, and $2,000.

Since veterans are given a 90-day start on other applicants for the farms, officials predict none of the homesteads will be left for non-veteran homesteaders.

"Dangermeter" For Forest Protection

ATLANTA, Sept. 22.—(AP)—A new "dangermeter" will protect the nation's forests from fires.

W. R. Paddock, chief of the control for the southern region, said the new gadget is a series of weights counterbalanced by special sections of thin wood which are sensitive to atmospheric conditions.

Technically the apparatus, known as the "forest fuel moisture content gauge," shows when a dangerous point of dryness is reached in forests, thus indicating how large a fire suppression crew should be held in readiness.

EMERGENCY COUNCIL ORDERED ABOLISHED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The national emergency council, created in 1933 to coordinate the vast regular and emergency agencies of the New Deal, has been abolished by presidential proclamation.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered the council yesterday to clear up its business by December 31 and turn its records, equipment and property over to the budget bureau.

Eugene S. Leggett has been acting executive director of the council, filling the post once occupied by the president's celebrated "handyman," Frank C. Walker, wealthy New York lawyer.
