

HEALTH WORKERS ENJOY TALKS BY TWO NEW NURSES

Work In New York Settlement Described At Meeting Of Association — Chest Parade October 9.

Life in Henry street settlement, New York City, where some of the world's greatest politicians and artists first felt inspiration kindle, was described to Jackson county health workers Thursday afternoon by two former members of the settlement staff—Miss Elizabeth Mc-Gaillard, Medford city health nurse, and Miss Mary Ellen Bell, a county health nurse. The two, who recently joined the local public health department, were speakers on the program of the bi-monthly meeting of the Jackson County Public Health Association.

So entertaining and inspiring were their descriptions of the humanitarian work in the world's greatest "melting pot," association members from all sections of the county declared the meeting one of the most interesting in the organization's history.

Serve All Equally Settlement work before, during and after the depression, with the new problems developing, was described as it is done for every race, creed and color. There was never a question as to any one of the three," Miss Bell declared, "when a call came to Henry street, Chinatown, Harlem, Jew, negro, all the rest, got the best that the settlement worker could give, for that is the theory upon which the settlement was established by Lillian D. Wald, its founder.

Sincere words of praise presented Miss Wald to the audience as a worker for peace, the founder of Henry street settlement and "real folks," a personality every member of the association felt the desire to meet. Miss Helen Carlton, who was in the audience, has had that pleasure. Her nephew, Winslow Carlton, well known in the valley, is now on Miss Wald's board.

Mrs. Fuller Presides The speakers were introduced by Mrs. J. H. Fuller, vice-president of the association, who presided in the absence of Miss Mildred Carlton, president. A message from Miss Carlton was read by Miss Helen Bullis. Welcoming to Jackson county the two new nurses, Miss Carlton described this last year as "a happy one for us," with "high hopes and dreams" realized. She asked the determined effort of every community and individual to keep the links of public health strong in Jackson county and expressed regret regarding the loss of Dr. C. I. Drummond as health officer.

A Community Chest parade for October 9 was announced by Mrs. Leonard Carpenter, who revealed the association's plan for participation.

To Meet Mrs. Dunbar Miss Bullis, representing Mrs. Robert Hart, chairman of the annual Seal Sale committee, extended an invitation to all Seal Sale chairmen to meet October 15 in Medford with Mrs. Sallie Orr Dunbar, executive secretary of the Oregon Tuberculosis society. Luncheon at the Hotel Medford will be followed by an afternoon session.

Tea was served by the Medford committee, following which the edu-

W. A. GATES TALKS ON CONSTITUTION AT GRANGE MEET

BIG APPEAL

Oct. 2.—(Sp)—A deeper appreciation and more vivid conception of the national constitution was brought to local people Thursday evening, when W. A. Gates, Medford merchant, gave a Sesqui-centennial address at the Upper Applegate Grange "booster" program.

Briefly tracing the history of the famous document signed 150 years ago, Mr. Gates pointed to the anchorage and protection afforded this nation today by its constitution, and by way of contrast recalled the wars and general distress prevalent in other countries without a constitutional form of government. The speaker mentioned the early economic and social struggles of the nation, and declared that the constitution withstood the severe tests of those days, and will remain good as long as it stands as it is. "The United States has the oldest form of government in the world today," he stated, explaining the comparative recent governmental changes of other countries, whereas this nation still abides by its set of laws drawn up a century and half ago.

The grange presented an excellent program of varied numbers, opening the meeting with the officers' seating drill. Community singing was led by Mrs. Lee Port, after which a message from National Grange Master L. J. Tabor was read by the master, Val Haskins.

A humorous pantomime entitled, "And the Lamp Went Out," which was directed by Mrs. Bert Harr, was presented by Mrs. C. W. Culy, Gladys and Morris Byrne, Mrs. Raymond Phillips, and Bert Harr. Vocal solos were given by Miss Gladys Byrne, who played guitar accompaniment, assisted by Keith Prowl, who played the harmonica.

Grange and their guests responded to roll call by giving a brief account of their first school, which brought many reminiscences of unusual interest. Vocal duets were given by Miss Gladys Byrne and Clara Smith, the former playing guitar accompaniment, and a piano solo was played by Mrs. Lances O'fenbacher.

An essay of inspirational nature on "How We Can Help the Grange," written by Edward Walker, was read by Mrs. Bert Harr. A short talk covering the history of the local grange was given by the secretary, Mrs. Floyd McKee.

W. R. Coleman of Medford extended his congratulations to the grange upon their fine achievements in two years of existence. Following the program, at which Mrs. Wallace Haskins, lecturer, presided, lunch was served. An abundance of autumn flowers and community and 4-H exhibits added much to the interest of the evening.
