Crater Lake Girl Scouts Council Sponsors Campship

Situated in the heart of California Redwoods in Big Basin, near Santa Cruz, California, is Girl Scout Camp Chaparral, which I. as a delegate chosen to represent the girl scouts of Medford and outlying communities, had the privilege and pleasure of attending for four weeks during this summer.

The camp session was divided into four two-week periods starting July 1 and terminating August 29th.

The camp site was ideal, being right in the heart of the Redwoods. We girls roughed it in the full sense of the word having the "good earth" for our bed and only the stars overhead. All of our food was prepared out-of-doors and we ate in "army style" from our mess kits.

We girl scouts, numbering on an average of two hundred each period, were classed in groups according to age, being known by such names as ducks, owls, crickets and butterflies. The counselors, totaling approximately 40, who supervised the individual groups were known by animal names. The camp director, Vall Stark was known as the Bear or Grizzly.

The activities of the day were arranged in a definite schedule, which we scouts rigidly followed. We rolled out of bed at 8:30 a. m. to the tune of reveille and hurried to breakfast at 7:30. The time from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. we spent doing odd jobs about our "nests" and the kitchen. An assembly was called at 10 for announcements, puppet shows or similar entertainment and for singing camp songs. Lunch was served at 12 noon after which we rested until 2:45. Then, after we received our share of the milk and crackers being served, we busied ourselves until 5:30 in learning the intricacies and proficiencies of such arts as leathercraft, puppetry, raffia and string work, bead work, dramatics, archery, nature observation and appreciation, astronomy, sketching, and swimming.

Dinner was served at 6 p. m. and from 7:45 until 8:15 we enjoyed recreational and social diversions of different sorts around a huge camp fire. Taps sounded at 8:30 p. m. at which time, all girls were required to be in bed.

Girl Scouts attend this camp from every state in the union. Our own Camp McLoughlin nature counselor, Mrs. Raymond Driver, who was known as Gray Owl was a nature counselor the last period at Chaparral.

The inspiration and knowledge received from this camp experience I hope to share with my troop and all girl scouts of this county.
