

MAJOR STAFFORD WILL JOIN STAFF OF MEDFORD CCC

Present Commander of Redding District to Report When Districts Merged—Long at Hawaii Post

Major Ben Stafford, at present commander of the Redding CCC district, will join the Medford district staff next month when the Redding organization is disbanded and camps of that area are placed under Medford jurisdiction.

When Major Stafford reports for duty here Nov. 1, the local headquarters group will include three regular army officers—Major G. R. Owens, commander, Major Stafford, and Capt. Ernest W. Grubb.

Major Stafford returned recently from a three-year tour of duty with the National guard in Hawaii. Prior to that time, he was on duty at Fort Missoula, Montana, and commanded the first CCC camp in the fifth corps area early in 1933. He was one of a number of regular army officers sent out to establish the early CCC camps. His outfit, Co. 952, at St. Regis, in the Missoula district, was the first to be established in the corps.

Since then, he has been away from CCC duty but welcomed the assignment upon his return to the mainland from Hawaii. He relieved Major E. L. Barr as commander of the Redding district when Major Barr was transferred last month to Fort Slocum, New York.

Major Stafford has seen 27 years of military service. He worked up from the ranks and received his commission in 1917 when he was serving in China. He was on duty in the Philippines during the World war and was sent to Siberia with the 31st infantry.

Major and Mrs. Stafford have one son, Bruce, nine years of age, already enrolled in the fourth grade at the Roosevelt school here. The Staffords will make their home at 19 Geneva in Medford.

MANCHOUKUO CHINESE RESTLESS UNDER JAPS

PEIPING, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Foreigners arriving here from Manchoukuo report serious unrest among the 30,000,000 Chinese inhabiting Emperor Kang Teh's Japanese-organized empire.

Disaffection is said to be acute, especially among some Chinese members of the Manchoukuo army, who are reported to be showing tendencies to sympathize with kinmen fighting against Japan in China proper.

Travelers say the Japanese added 100,000 native troops to the regular Manchoukuo army, which is composed of Chinese subjects of Kang Teh, owing to the internal situation.

GARDENS PLANNED AS MEMORIAL TO 115 YEARS PEACE

Mrs. L. M. McKee left the past week on a protracted trip east which eventually will take her to her home in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, after being a guest in the city for the past two months.

Mrs. McKee gave several interesting addresses on the international peace gardens being developed on the borderline between Manitoba and North Dakota while here and aroused much interest in the subject.

The gardens are to serve as a memorial to the long established friendship between the United States and Canada and are being created as a result of acts of congress and parliament.

The idea for the peace garden was introduced at the annual meeting of the National Association of Gardeners in Toronto, in 1929, when H. J. Moore, a graduate of Kew gardens, London, England, and a former lecturer at Cornell university and of Ontario college of horticulture, proposed to the outstanding horticulturists and gardeners of North America, that there should be a living memorial to commemorate the 115 years of peace which has existed between Canada and the United States.

The memorial to be a flower garden located along the international boundary of the two countries. He suggested a garden that would be a replica of typical gardens in every part of the world so that people from all nationalities and creeds could go and linger amidst surroundings of their native lands.

The national association of gardeners was enthusiastic over the project and letters of incorporation were taken out and an international committee of 30 men and women appointed—eight from each country—to start action on the matter.

Turtle mountain was chosen as a site for the memorial, being on the boundary of Manitoba and North Dakota, at a point where the boundary intersects the Canada to Canal highway—the longest north and south highway in the world—reaching from Bowman, Manitoba, to Mexico City.

On July 14, 1932, a cairn was unveiled in the gardens before the largest international assembly ever gathered on the continent. The cairn, about eight feet high, is built of native stones gathered from both sides of the line on which it rests.

Inscribed on the granite plaque is the pledge of enduring peace. It reads: "To God in His glory we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that as long as men shall live we will not take up arms against one another."

Development of the peace garden can be said to have little more than just begun. During the months of April, May and June of this year, 10,000 man-days of labor were expended on vital structures, which indicate to some extent the magnitude of the enterprise. An elaborate program of work is planned for the balance of the year.

Civilian Conservation Corps camp was established in 1934. That year saw the completion of a great dam, creating an artificial lake.

Under supervision of the national park service, cooperating with the State Historical society of North Dakota, projects under development this year include park roads, picnic shelters, incinerators, signs, markers and monuments, nursery site for the storing of donation gifts of trees, shrubs and flowers for the gardens, table and bench combinations, foot-bridges, latrines and other features.

Bob-Tail Cat Brings Fear Of Scandal in Old South

Now everybody can relax. The bob-tailed cat procured by Lieut. Philo D. Smith for Maj. B. B. McMahon has arrived at its new home and taken to the family doormat.

When Maj. McMahon was transferred from the Medford CCC district to Tuscaloosa, Ala., he took one of this city's notorious bob-tailed pussies with him. Subsequently the cat died and the family longed for another of the strange animals.

Philo Smith came to the rescue. The cat he procured for the McMahon's had not only a bobbed tail with a crimp in the end, but bow legs and an extra toe on each front paw. The pussy was taken cross country to Fort Knox, Ky., on a troop train by Capt. E. V. Andrew of Camp Gunier. From Fort Knox the cat was expressed to Tuscaloosa.

Capt. Andrew reported its cross-country trip in the following note to Lieut. Smith: "I have that extra-phalangeal, congenitally malformed monstrosity, the cat, under my left wing. He's had a couple of rather unusual adventures for a cat. We lurched around a couple of bends and he got a bath of tomato juice and he fell off the lounge in my room and sprained his ankle."

"I thought he had an extra toe, but he hasn't. Merely a thumb where

DREAD SINUS GERMS TRACED BY DOCTORS USING CATS AND DYE

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A pair of medical pathfinders from Portland, Ore., described to the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology how, with the aid of blue dye and cats they traced for the first time the path of dread sinus germs to the lungs of afflicted patients.

Dr. Ralph A. Fenton read a report prepared jointly with Dr. Colof Larsell, his research colleague at the University of Oregon, following ten years of study. Their work was financed for the past six years by the academy.

The blue dye, used as an indicator, was filtered through the lymph glands of experimental cats but reached the lungs from the frontal and maxillary sinuses within a few hours. The dye, and later actual streptococci used without dye was found loaded "all through" the small blood vessels of the lungs.

The germs, Dr. Fenton said, eventually reached the liver and spleen where they were filtered out of the body. "A sinus sufferer," he said, "may not even have a sore throat, but the infection may already have spread to his lungs. A serious inflammation is caused occasionally."

"And as it moves through the glands, those seemingly rheumatic pains in the neck indicate filtration of the streptococci as they move toward the lungs."

GIRL SCOUTS GAIN USEFUL TRAINING FOR LATER YEARS

Sharing in the Community Chest drive, now being conducted in Medford, the Girl Scouts organization calls attention to the character building and other benefits of that group.

The Girl Scout program is based upon belief in the educational value of small groups and designed to meet needs of girls from 7 to 18 years of age for a leisure time program of mental, physical and character-developing activities. The program emphasizes the out-of-door life and gives the girls practical knowledge of such things as health and safety, home-making, first aid work, arts and crafts, nature study, camping, swimming, and community service. It aims through comradeship to develop initiative, self-control, self-reliance, and unselfish service to others.

When your daughter is with her Girl Scout troop, you know that she is safe and happy. Her friends are active girls eager to learn everything that will help them; and the captain who heads the troop is a person to be trusted.

In our records we have many local girls who owe the success of their first job to their scouting experience.

"Sally learned story-telling, singing, handicraft, life-saving, and child nursing in Girl Scouting. Later she got a part time job as a mother's helper. This job helped Sally through college. Marie, who received the same scout training now spends her summers as a counselor in children's camps. Jane who went to business college, finds that her training as a Girl Scout hostess helped her to hold a secretarial job which required tact in meeting people. Every phase of Scouting helps in building a well-rounded personality."

Girl Scouting in Medford has grown from one lone troop organized in 1927—to 16 active troops. There are over 275 Girl Scouts and each of these troops has from two to four adult leaders, assisting the leaders of each troop is a committee of three women, to help carry out the program of this particular troop and to insure permanency of leadership for this group.

Directing the policies of all of the troops and the local program is a council of twenty women, leaders in the progressive community character-building work.

To train leaders of these troops and to keep detailed records of all the achievements and progress of the individual Girl Scouts and troops, is the local director, one who has had special Girl Scout training and several years of actual Girl Scout troop experience.

Streamline
"Going forward or onward; a march or journey," such is the definition of progress. Streamlined trains, streamlined boats, streamlined cars—transportation of every kind is streamlined.

Streamlined for going forward! That's what counts in this very modern, very busy world today. No rough edges to catch the breeze; no projections to slow the forward movement—every thing streamlined! Streamline your mind! Lop off the projections of old-time thinking. Smooth off the edges of old-time learning. Make yourself ready to go forward in the swiftest, smoothest way. Educate yourselves for progress. There is a streamlined method of education available through your own P-T. A.

Grasp your opportunities to shorten things up! Streamline your life as well as your mind. Slash off the futile worrying over trifles; plane off the bumps of petty meannesses which come from looking constantly for something to criticize. Use each small happiness that is within you and watch it grow.

Join your T-T. A. and be streamlined.—Gwen Morris Gabriel, publications chairman, Oregon Parent-Teacher.
