4-H CLUB GRAND CHAMPION STEER BEEF

TOMORROW we offer Beef from the Grand Champion 4-H Club Steer, developed by Clayton Charley of Lake Creek! . . . We also offer beef from another prize winning steer developed by Merton Bradshaw of Lake Creek.

This beef has been in our coolers until tests show it to be fully quality conditioned.—We've never seen finer beef nor do we believe beef has ever been more scientifically quality conditioned.

Even though we paid a high premium for these steers we pass the beef to you at our regular steer beef prices—some cuts selling for less than we paid for live weight.

The extra cost of these steers is our cheerful contribution to the finest movement ever inaugurated for the education of American farm youth.—It not only teaches them to practically apply scientific methods to farming for the greater financial reward it brings, but fosters the personal satisfaction that comes from the pride in a job well done.

Than this there is no greater character development.

WHY THE FUSS OVER SAUSAGE?

WE WERE asked that this week.—Frankly we are not fussing.—We're merely trying to find out how you want us to prepare what we believe to be the best liked of all meats when it is made to suit your taste.

There are two ways to make sausage. One is to take the trimmings from various meats including pork—grind and season them and call it sausage.—It's good food and furnishes an outlet for otherwise good meats that are hard to sell.

The other way is to keep this old American favorite free from adulteration.—Make it of good cuts of lean pork, with just enough fat to fry it.—Not too much or it will fry away or else be too rich to be healthful.

Now for the seasoning:—some like a mildly seasoned sausage while others like plenty of sage.—Tastes are about equally divided in this respect. That is why we have both kinds—mild for those who prefer it and full farm sage strength for the man who will drive 20 miles into the country to get a good mess of sausage.

Coffee Ground to Suit Your Coffee Maker

TO GET perfect results, coffee should be ground to suit the kind of pot you use.—This involves four different kinds: . . . The old fashioned pot—the percolator—the drip and the vacuum or silex.

See the new automatic coffee grinders in each store.—No guess work—merely set the dial for the kind you need and there you are!

No need to tell you of the advantage of freshly ground coffee.—We do, however, want you to learn the greater advantage of coffee freshly ground to suit your coffee maker.

So come in and get a steaming cup of Z-Mor-U Coffee and a piece of Home Purity Cake.
