LOST BATTALION

SORRY TO LEAVE

ASSERTS LEADER

Wanted to Seal Struggle With Their Lives Says General Hsieh—Casualties Overrated by Japs

By JAMES A. MILLS. SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—(AP)—General Heih Chin-Yuan, commander of the Chinese "lost battalion" that is defied Japanese warehouse-citadel, declared today that his men withdrew sorrowfully.

His two greatest griefs, he told the Associated Press in his first interview since the battalion evacuated were that they were forced to withdraw before sealing the struggle with their lives and that they could not return to the conflict.

Hsieh—promoted from colonel to general in recognition of the feat that raised all his men one rank—sat in a tiny canvas hut, not larger than a dogpen.

Only 10 Dead. He declared his force of farmer-boy soldiers lost only 10 dead, not 100 as the Japanese have asserted.

Hsieh, who was the last to leave the burning warehouse Saturday to run the gauntlet of Japanese machine-gun fire, blushed like a child when the Associated Press told him for the first time that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had promoted him to general.

"But I don't deserve such an honor," he said.

All 870 survivors of the battalion of Chiang's own 88th division went safely through the Japanese fire, Hsieh declared. He said 410 men originally entered the building and that there were only 40 casualties, including ten dead, during the four days they occupied it.

"The Japanese are bad marksmen," he explained. "They are wild when they are excited."

Afraid of Revolt. Hsieh said the order to evacuate came by telephone from Chiang at 9 p. m. Saturday, but that he was afraid at first to inform his men because he thought they might revolt.

The general, dignified but simple and modest, said Japanese reports that the "lost battalion" abandoned large quantities of foreign food were not true.

(The Japanese had said the battalion left provisions which they declared, must have reached them through the international settlement.

"Our food consisted mainly of rice, biscuits and vegetables furnished by Chinese sympathizers," Hsieh asserted. "We covered it with kerosene when we left."
