CONGRESS GIVEN F. R. PROGRAM TO START RECOVERY

ness community and the government felt that a large measure of the government's spending activities could be materially reduced.

"But the very vigor of the recovery," the president continued, "in both durable and consumers' goods brought into the picture early in 1937 certain highly undesirable practices which were in large part responsible for the economic decline which began in the later months of the year.

Fear Found Groundless "There were many reasons for this over-production. One was fear—fear of war abroad, fear of inflation, fear of nation-wide strikes. None of these fears have been borne out. There were other causes of over-production and these causes differed in each industry."

The result, Mr. Roosevelt said, was that production outran the ability to buy and some prices rose faster than warranted. He emphasized that "in fairness" it should be noted that since January 1, 1937, "the president has recommended to the congress only four measures of major importance to the business of the country."

The chief executive listed these measures as the farm adjustment act, the tax-loophole law, wage and hour legislation which was never enacted and a tax bill "to remove inequities from the undistributed profits tax." This legislation now is in conference between the senate and the house.

Record Cited

As if in reply to those who have contended Roosevelt policies caused the depression, the president advised: "The record speaks for itself. No other measures affecting business have been proposed."

To those who have opposed more spending on the grounds the treasury's $37,850,000,000 debt already was excessive, Mr. Roosevelt apparently addressed these words in his message: "Let us unanimously recognize the fact that the federal debt, whether it be twenty-five billions or forty billions, can only be paid if the nation obtains a vastly increased citizen income. I repeat that if this citizen income can be raised to eight billion dollars a year, the national government and the overwhelming majority of state and local governments will be 'out of the red.' The higher the national income goes the faster will we be able to reduce the total of federal and state local debts.

Buying Power Too Low

"Viewed from every angle, today's purchasing power—the citizens' income of today—is not sufficient to drive the economic system at higher speed. Responsibility of government requires us at this time to supplement the normal processes and in so supplementing them to make sure that the addition is adequate. We must start again on a long steady upward incline in national income. "I have set my hope, my aim on stabilized recovery through a steady mounting of our citizens' income and our citizens' wealth. And in that process, which I believe is ready to start, let us avoid the pitfalls of the past—the over-production, the over-speculation and indeed all the extremes which we did not succeed in avoiding in 1929. In all of this government cannot and should not act alone. Business must help. I am sure business will help."

THIEVES REMOVE BIG MILL BELT

About 70 feet of red rubber belting, valued at $400, was stolen from the Coggin sawmill in Ashland sometime between Saturday and Tuesday night. It was reported today by Deputy Sheriff Herb Moore.

The belting, six-ply and 14 inches wide, was discovered missing Tuesday night, and the sheriff's office immediately notified. It was the main drive belt for the mill owned by Arthur L. Coggin.

Deputy Sheriff Moore said the lacing had apparently been severed and the belt rolled up and taken away. The mill is idle at this time, and as the belt was in the open and no watchman is employed, the deputy sheriff explained it would have been a fairly easy matter to steal it.
