STATE EMPLOYES DISLIKE PLAN TO TAX THEIR WAGES

State Would Gain by Being Able to Tax Federal Employes Within Borders — Bond Tax Main Haul

By PAUL W. HARVEY, Jr.

SALEM, April 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's recommendation that congress remove federal tax exemptions on state salaries and securities was greeted with disfavor here today, because the proposed tax would affect $11,045,000 in 9,825 state employes' annual salaries, $9,266,000 in 7,500 teachers' salaries, and $8,550,000 in interest on the $190,000,000 debt of the state, cities, counties and their subdivisions.

This would make $28,861,000 in Oregon subject to taxation by the federal government, and does not include earnings of employes of cities and counties.

No Reason Cited.

A survey of state employes showed that most of them could give no reason why they should be exempt from the federal income tax, although they naturally were not in favor of paying taxes.

The state, too, would gain by the president's recommendation, because the state would be able to tax the earnings of federal employes living in Oregon, as well as earnings of federal bonds held by people in the state.

There was no way of telling just how much either the state or federal government would earn by this tax as it would affect Oregon.

While state employes earn more than $11,045,052 a year, the average wage for men is $1,620 and for women $1,152. Many single employes earn less and $1,000 a year and would be exempt. Many married workers earn less than $2,500 and likewise would have to pay no tax.

Teacher Average Small.

The state's school teachers earn more than $9,000,000, but the average salary is only $1,018, just $18 more than the exemption for single persons. The federal government could not expect to reap much of a tax harvest in this bracket.

More than one-fourth of the elementary school teachers get less than $700 a year, and three-fourths of them receive less than $1,000. One-fourth of the high school teachers earn less than $1,000.

The federal government's biggest tax haul in Oregon probably would be on the $8,550,000 annual interest of bonds and securities of the state, counties, cities, school and other districts. This figure represents 4½ per cent interest on the combined debt.

These securities generally are held by persons having comfortable incomes, so the interest would not be subject to tax exemption.

KERR REPORT ON MARKETING READY

CORVALLIS. — (Spl.) — Printed copies of the report by Dr. W. J. Kerr on "Oregon's Problem in Marketing Agricultural and Industrial Products," are now available for free distribution, having just been published by the state board of higher education in the form of a 76-page bulletin. They are being mailed out from Oregon State college.

The report contains many hitherto unpublished statistics and charts showing the strong and weak spots in Oregon's marketing program, particularly in the field of agriculture. Information in the report has been gathered literally from all over the world by Dr. Kerr during the two years he has been director of research in production and marketing in the state system.

Conclusions reached in the report include the finding that there is outstanding need for an agency capable of enlisting the cooperation of all present marketing services and concentrating the combined strength on immediate problems. Such an agency, says Dr. Kerr, must be in a position to take the initiative in support of Oregon interests in this field.

Rialto Sleuth

Peter Lorre, as the famous Saturday Evening Post sleuth, faces his greatest danger in "Mr. Moto's Gamble," coming to the Rialto theatre for tomorrow and Saturday only. Keye Luke, Dick Baldwin and Harold Huber have supportink roles.

"Come On Cowboy," starring the Three Mesquiteers, will play as the companion thriller.

Shirley Temple In Modern Version Of 'Sunnybrook Farm'

There's an exceptional program now showing at the New Craterian theatre until Saturday night.

For one thing, Shirley Temple is the star of the feature picture, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and whenever the screen's Number One star has a new picture, it's usually an event that brings everyone to it. And "Rebecca"is certainly no exception.

For another thing, Walt Disney's two most famous cartoon characters Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck, are also on the program in "Boat Builders." Two of the screen's most popular attractions—Shirley Temple and a Mickey Mouse-Donald Duck cartoon—both on the same program.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" is certainly not the old-time story most all of us have known. You'd never know the old farm now. Kate Douglas Wiggins' story suggested the merry, modern screen play in which Shirley sings and dances her way to more triumphs. A streamlined Radio Center moves in on the old mill stream and the result is a fast-paced musical show with plenty of what it takes to make popular entertainment. There's singing, dancing, comedy and a romance between Randolph Scott and Gloria Stuart. There's Jack Haley, Phyllis Brooks, Melen Westley, Slim Summerville, "Bojangles" Bill Robinson of the tapping feet, the Raymond Scott quintet and several other famous people in the supporting cast. There are six new tunes and several of the numbers Shirley has sung in her past pictures. Probably the number which will receive the most attention is "Toy Trumpet," which Shirley and Bill Robinson dance to the playing of Raymond Scott's fivesome. All in all, there's so much of everything that's entertainment one could not possibly tell about it all.

SAND PIT YIELDS BONE OF MONSTER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(UP)—A fragment of some large bone, believed to have been from the skeleton of some prehistoric animal, was removed from the city gravel pit and scientists are seeking other parts of the skeleton.

The fragment was found lodged next to a large rock. A study of the strata in the bank where it was found indicated by the straight lines that the place was once a shore line of some large body of water and the monster, part of whose skeleton was found, had been buried when the land was dry.

Scientists have been unable to determine whether the bone was from a mastodon or a dinosaur.

Part of the skeleton of a dinosaur was discovered at one time in the Garden of the Gods and several years ago bones, said to be part of the skeleton of a little three-toed horse, were found in the gravel pit at Manitou Springs, a suburb of Colorado Springs.

Scientists had searched this area for evidence that three-toed horses had existed here after skeletons of four-toed horses were discovered. The little three-toed horses were only two or three feet tall.

Forest Fire in Snow.

BEND, April 28.—(AP)—Deep snow surrounded the first forest fire of the season yesterday in the central Oregon Cascades. Joe Lammi, Bend district ranger, made a 40-mile run to extinguish a burning log. He said the fire had been left by an angler.
