NEW DEAL POLICIES BEHIND FRENCH ILLS IS HOOVER'S CLAIM

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover attributed France's economic plight to her adoption of new deal policies, in an interview here today.

The ex-president, who stopped here briefly while en route to the Republican "grass roots" meeting in Oklahoma City, said: "France is the only European state that is not prosperous today. The devastation of the franc is only part of the general consequences of its having adopted the new deal two years ago.

"While other European nations tightened their belts and balanced their budgets, France went its own way. It didn't balance its budget, it began limiting production, lost its export market, prices increased and consumption dropped. One finds those conditions in France that hold true here."

Hoover, in summarizing observations made on his recent trip to Europe, said other European nations such as England, Czechoslovakia, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Finland are enjoying fairly prosperous economic conditions.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes, calling President Roosevelt the "true" leader of liberals in America, forecast at his press conference today failure of the La Follette national third party movement.

"I continue to believe that the president is the true liberal leader," he said, "and that in his leadership lies the only hope of liberals getting anywhere."

"I can't see any future for a third party at this time."

SPRAGUE POINTS NEED OF STRONG G.O.P. IN NATION

Need for Republican party strength in Oregon at this time was stressed by Charles A. Sprague, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, at a gathering of 50 party leaders today at Valentine's cafe. Mr. Sprague, prominent Oregonian and publisher of the Oregon Statesman of Salem, spent the day visiting southern Oregon communities and discussing details of his campaign with leading republicans here.

In his brief, forceful address, Sprague emphasized the need for two strong parties in this nation, citing as examples foreign nations wherein the single party systems of government have resulted in loss of individual rights and liberties. A plea for the return to sound, conservative republican principles was voiced by Mr. Sprague. The maintenance of a constitutional government is necessary, he said, after expressing the belief that recent attacks have been made on our judiciary.

Financial stability in government, another republican principle, must likewise be maintained, he said, and when the public credit is destroyed, private credit is also destroyed. There are three ultimate results of the present governmental finance program, in the speaker's opinion: repudiation, confiscation or excessive taxation. Loss of confidence in the administration was given as the failure of business to gain its stride.

"We believe in the economy of abundance rather than the economy of scarcity," Mr. Sprague told his audience, in stressing the need for the return of this confidence with increased production and resulting reduction of unemployment. Social security, as we know it now, should be supplementary to a real social security made possible through creation of jobs for all."

In concluding his talk, the republican candidate admitted that he is a conservative, yet assured that he is also progressive. "The Republican party is now, I believe, in step and in tune with the hopes and desires of the people of Oregon," he said.

Frank VanDyke, Ashland attorney, was toastmaster for today's meeting and introduced the speaker. Preliminary to the feature address, Frank Hull pleaded for the people of this nation to awake to the need for maintaining present immigration laws so as to prevent influx of political refugees from all nations.

S. P. Streamliner Gives Passenger Aid In Emergency

The Southern Pacific (this is not an advertisement) aims to please. A woman with her infant daughter boarded the Streamliner in San Francisco for Los Angeles the other day.

At San Jose it was found that part of her baggage, containing needed supplies for the baby, had been left at home. Train officials were notified and they had the station agent in San Jose telegraph the circumstances to the Salinas agent.

Then the Southern Pacific system really swung into action. Telephones rang, messengers were called and an order was placed with a Salinas dry goods store.

Just as the Streamliner pulled into the Salinas depot the messenger arrived with the awaited package and placed it in the hands of the anxious mother. The day was saved.

The package contained diapers—an even dozen!

Rialto's Comedy

As a nitwit bank teller with a penchant for investing in raffles, Joe Penner is suspected of bank looting and kidnaping—and the result is a series of hilarious highlights mounting up to one of the funniest picture climaxes ever filmed, in "Go Chase Yourself," coming to the Rialto theater for tomorrow and Saturday.

Roxy Romance

James Ellison and Jean Parker have the romantic leads in Rex Beach's favorite romance of the North, "The Barrier," playing at the Roxy theater today and tomorrow only. Leo Carrillo, Otto Kruger, Robert Barrat, Andy Clyde and Sara Hayden also have leading roles.

Robert Taylor Has Lead Craterian Hit

Robert Taylor, starring in "A Yank at Oxford," which opened a four-day run yesterday at the New Craterian theater, proved that he is more of a man than Jimmy Fidler and a lot of other so-called publicity writers have given him credit for. Taylor literally walks off with the top romantic comedy spot of the year in the film which will rank him among the best of the screen's comedians.

"A Yank at Oxford" was filmed in England as an adventure by a major Hollywood producing company and after seeing it yesterday at the New Craterian, the audience sent cheers into the sky at its sheer cleverness and outstanding comedy angles. The highlight of the film to native Americans is the use of coined British phrases of words which appear very funny to persons not acquainted with the cockney accent.

In presenting Taylor in the title role as the cocky all-star athlete who comes to Oxford to "teach the natives," and himself learns plenty in return, "A Yank at Oxford" affords the star his greatest opportunity to demonstrate his athletic ability, his flair for comedy and his ability to handle genuinely dramatic scenes.

Lionel Barrymore, as Taylor's father and Maureen O'Sullivan, as the English undergraduate whom the hero meets at Oxford, lend their accustomed polished performances, while in the British plays who also have leading roles audiences may note at least two potential stellar "finds" of tomorrow. Vivien Leigh, as the "other girl," reveals a fascinating, yet subtle, personality which may well carry a new style in "vamp-comediana."

Griffith Jones, as the Britisher whose enmity for Taylor motivates much of the plot, looms as a most personable leading-man discovery, stalwart in appearance and sensitive in his performance.
