BLOCKADE RUNS REVIVE TRADITION OF SPANISH MAIN. With TNT Below And Planes Above, Seamen Taking Aid To Loyalist Ports Have Jittery Time Aboard Ship.

By Henry C. Cassidy. AP Foreign Service Writer. PORT VENDRES, France (Near the Spanish frontier)—The tradition of adventure on the Spanish main is being kept alive by seamen carrying aid to the embattled Spanish government. Imagine riding a cargo of high explosives in Valencia harbor, with insurgent air bombs sending up sprouts of water around you, and you have an idea of what blockade runners experience now in waters where old-time buccaneers would be a minor nuisance. Their traffic is mounting between French and Spanish governmental ports as the insurgent land forces tighten their ring around Catalonia and broaden their wedge toward Valencia. Men of many nationalities—Americans, Canadians, British and all the sea-faring races of Europe—are braving the bombs of insurgent planes, the shells of warships and the torpedoes of submarines to carry supplies to the government coast.

All Nations Crew. Take, for example, the little British tramp steamer Stanpore of London, with a single black and white stack out of 820 blistered tons of freight. Aboard her are 15 men: the Welsh captain, Robert Downan, a veteran of 50 years at sea; five Estonians, three Frenchmen, two Englishmen, one Canadian, one Pole, one Norwegian and one Dane. The Canadian, dark and wiry, with a beret, turtle-necked sweater and pants of navy blue, calls himself Tom Evans of Toronto. He first went "to sea" on the Great Lakes, at the age of 15, during summer vacations from high school. "I've been in eight bombardments and heard more from the water, some as we passed ports at night," he said aboard ship.

A Close Shave. "About the closest shave we've had was in Gijon last November. We were just going alongside with a cargo of cigarette lighters, shoes and socks when the planes came over and started bombing the port. They dropped 30 bombs around us, but never hit us. "Another time, we came into Valencia. They started to bomb. Six men on the quay ran down a tunnel, and a bomb lit right over them. Five of those men they never found. The sixth was a piece of shrapnel went right through his head. "Once, we went into Valencia with 350 tons of TNT from Rotterdam and Amsterdam. About 2 a. m. they came over with the planes. Never Mind Pilot. "At that time, all the ships used to go out in the harbor at night, to anchor away from all that. But we had stayed at the dock. The warehouse alongside was full of TNT and so were we. Some bombs dropped near. "The next night, with some TNT still on the captain took the ship out in the harbor without even waiting for a pilot."

The Stanpore came to Port Vendres this time from Burriana with a cargo of oranges—"it took us 10 days to get the cargo because the planes came over and scared the dockers," Evans said—and left for Marseille to pick up gasoline for Barcelona. Despite the hazards, the men don't quit. They go out for high adventure, but for high pay. Their work is usually overseen by non-intervention control officers, who rule out war materials, but they still must elude the insurgents trying to keep all supplies from reaching governmental Spain. The seamen, whose average base pay is about $16 a week and keep, receive double wages from 24 hours before they enter a Spanish port until 24 hours after they leave it.

BUTCHER TELLS TIME BY FLOW OF MONEY. FORT COLLINS, Colo.—(AP)—Ray Anderson, butcher, says he can tell the time of the month by the size of the money that comes over his counter. "For the first few days it's $5 and $10 bills," said Anderson. "By the last of the month it's down to nickels and dimes."

Polish Airmen On Flight to Mazatlan. LOS ANGELES, May 13—(AP)—Delayed more than two hours by an early morning fog, five Polish airmen took off in their American monoplane at 9:15 a. m. (EST) today on the first leg of a 16,000-mile flight to Warsaw. Because of the unexpected delay in starting, the airmen changed their plans and made arrangements to stop first at Mazatlan, on the west coast of Mexico before continuing to Mexico City. The next leg of the journey will be a non-stop flight to Panama City. Reveals Indian Grave. FOND DU LAC, Wis.—(AP)—The buried place of at least six Indians was uncovered by Robert Weeks, collector of Indian relics, under the topsoil of a backyard garden.
