

LARGEST CLASS IN MEDFORD SCHOOL ANNALS GRADUATE

207 Seniors Receive Diplomas Friday—Dr. Baxter Gives Address—Awards Announced.

To think without confusion, clearly. To love one's fellow men, sincerely. To act from honest motives, purely. To trust in God and Heaven, securely.

From these four sentences, which he termed the "standard of achievement," Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, president of Willamette university, developed his address to 207 graduating seniors...

He drew a parallel between the sinking of the Battleship Maine, which started the Spanish-American war because Americans, at that time, "didn't think without confusion, clearly," and the recent bombing of the Panay...

Dr. Baxter warned the young men and women to "love one's fellow men, sincerely;" not to set up barriers to either race or creed nor to persons who might not have obtained the excellent training they have.

He emphasized that every nationality has at least one characteristic that others might do well by copying. He advised the class to "never let down nor to forget to act from honest motives, purely."

Following the address, C. G. Smith, high school principal, announced that Mabel Stocke had been named the outstanding senior girl, and William Holloway the outstanding senior boy.

Roger Henselman was introduced as class valedictorian and Evelyn Shafer as salutatorian. Other awards announced were Dorothea Borg, P. E. O. award; Irene Sharp, Zonta International club award; Jeanette Field, D. A. R. good citizenship; Martin Luther, S. A. R. good citizenship; Roger Henselman, honorary science award; and Ted Marshall, first prize winner in the Oregon trumpet solo contest.

SUNBURN!

This is the time of year when nearly everyone worries about the first painful sunburn, how to keep the mosquitoes away, or what to do for poison oak. At Heath's Drug Store you will find a wide variety of preventatives and cures for summer infections, burns and pests.

For sunburn we recommend Sunex, "the sunshade in a tube." It prevents sunburn by absorbing the ultra-violet rays which produce burns. It also prevents freckles and helps to relieve sunburn already acquired. This scientific sunburn preventative is beneficial to the complexion and it protects the most sensitive skin.
