Miss Drury Wed To Mr. Porter In Beautiful Ceremony

At the largest and most impressive ceremony of the season held here Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock in St. Mark's Episcopal church, Miss Laura Drury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bernard Drury, became the bride of Mr. Norris Porter, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Porter. Father Ernest S. Bartlam officiated in the ring service.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Otto Frohnmayer presided at the organ and played "Thema Prayer" after which Mrs. Norman C. Gail sang the ever beautiful "Because," by Guy d'Hardiel.

To the rhythm of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. Frohnmayer, the bridal procession moved slowly up the aisle to the altar.

The bride, a charming brunette, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white starched lace dress of princess lines over tulle with Elizabethan full length sleeves and high neck. A finger tip veil of white tulle, crowned by a halo cap encircled with lilies of the valley, completed the beautiful ensemble. Her bouquet was of gardenias, lilies of the valley and baby breath.

Little Miss Tana Bawden, as flower girl, wore a pink accordion-pleated dress of tulle with a matching wreath encircling her head.

The bride's two sisters, Miss Barbara and Mildred Drury, were bridesmaids. Miss Barbara was becomingly dressed in a princess-style gown of starched yellow lace over tulle with a collar of three strands of seed pearls. Miss Mildred's dress was of the same fashion but of turquoise color. Both wore matching Juliet caps and carried bouquets of tallinn roses.

Tom Pison, Jr., acted as best man for Mr. Porter and Fred Underwood as his attendant. Ushers were the groom's two brothers, Robert and Junior Porter and Otto Frohnmayer.

The couple spoke their vows before an altar banked with white flowers and ferns with white tapers in gilded candelabra.

Mrs. Drury, the bride's mother, was gowned in flowered chiffon with a blue background. She wore a picture hat of biege straw and a corsage of tallinn roses.

Mrs. Porter's mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in a white and black ensemble and wore a corsage of gardenias.

After the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the Drury home on South Oakdale avenue to which sixty guests were invited.

The rooms were decorated with garden flowers and the tea table was attractively appointed with a lace cloth, mixed basket centerpiece of garden flowers and white tapers. Mrs. Hazel Schuering, University of Oregon dean of women, and Mrs. Alice B. McDuff, also of Eugene, Mrs. E. H. Porter and Mrs. C. M. Hurd, alternately presided at the table.

The large wedding cake was on a small table draped with lace cloth. In traditional manner, the bride cut the first piece after which Mrs. C. H. Pank served the guests. Each guest also received a small package of fruit cake wrapped in oil paper and silver ribbon.

Following the reception, the bride and groom departed on a wedding trip to the coast after which they will go to Eugene. The couple will return to Medford for a visit later. The last of August they will leave by plane for Seattle whence they will return to their future home in Flat, Alaska. In Flat both will be territorial district teachers in the community school.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Porter are graduates of Medford high school where they were active in social and school affairs. Mr. Porter was graduated from the University of Oregon in 1936 and Mrs. Porter in 1938. She is affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta, social honorary fraternity. For the past three years she has been secretary to the dean of women of the University in Eugene.

A number of pre-nuptial affairs honored the couple prior to their marriage. Among those entertaining for them were, Mrs. Norman C. Gail, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Frohnmayer, Mr. and Mrs. Neville Biden, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peter and the Misses Barbara and Mildred Drury.

Custom Dictates The Time For Cutting Wedding Cake

By Joan Durham
AP Feature Service Writer.

The ceremony of cutting the cake is a time-honored part of wedding festivities.

When should the ceremony start? If the wedding is followed by a sit-down breakfast, says John Shatzkin, executive of a restaurant organization noted for its wedding cakes, the bride cuts the cake at the desert. If the affair is a reception she cuts it after she has greeted the guests.

A Bow On The Handle

The bride usually makes only one cut. If the cake has two or three tiers and is decorated, she removes the decorations and cuts one piece of the top tier. The pieces of cake should be about half an inch thick. A sharp, thin-bladed knife may be used in cutting. Its handle may be decorated with a white satin bow.

The bride shares the first slice with the bridegroom, then a waiter or a family friend cuts the rest of the cake or each guest may cut his or her own portion.

Favors are often placed in wedding cakes, especially in those to be served to the bridal party at a dinner the night before the wedding. (Sometimes, too, the favors are placed through the cake to be served after the wedding.)

Favors and Their Meaning

Usually a special figure in the icing decoration indicates which side of the cake contains favors for the bride's attendants and which holds those for the bridegroom's. Then members of the bridal party and parents of the couple usually get the first pieces. (If the cake is served to the bridal party only and some is left over the bride's mother sometimes puts the rest in an air-tight box and saves it for daughter to open on an anniversary. Only fruit cakes may be stored in this manner, however.)

As many as a dozen favors may be placed in the cake—six for the bride's and six for the bridegroom's attendants.

Traditional for the bridesmaids' favors and their significance are: Washbone, luckiest; ring, first to be married; anchor, hope; fleur-de-lis, a flowery life; dime, riches; horse with rider, sport; thimble, old maid.

On the bridegroom's side are: Dice or shamrock, lucky chance in life; heart, love; horseshoe, good news; dime, riches; bulldog head, hang on; button,achelor; barrister's head, knowledge.

What the Girl Scouts Are Doing

The special summer activities planned for Girl Scouts from every troop are proving popular and instructive.

Fifteen Girl Scouts are taking the first aid course on Mondays.

Twenty are enrolled for the nature course. The first nature hike and observation trip was at the home of "Grey Owl."

Thirteen are enrolled in the design class, given by Richard Slight. Designs made in this class may be used on articles made at the established camp at Lake of the Woods. Twelve have registered for the clothing class. Miss June Williams is in charge.

Thirty-three girls have registered for the explorers trips. The first trip was Friday. The girls explored the city. This was a very exciting trip and especially interesting.

The group of explorers, accompanied by Mrs. Ann Schwartz and Mrs. Marjorie S. Penn, visited the city hall. Here they were conducted by city policeman Ray Sloneker. In the works progress administration office, they learned of the projects under construction and how this department functions. From this office they visited the Jackson county relief offices, where they were instructed in the services given through this agency. The final visit in this building was to the jail.

From the city hall this group visited the chamber of commerce.

The group went into the many offices in the court house and had a picnic lunch in the city park.

After lunch the explorers were instructed in the departments of the public library and were given a demonstration of book binding by Mrs. Thompson.

The Medford Hotel management, under the personal direction of Mr. Emil Mohr, conducted the exploring party through the hotel. The entire group was served ice cream in the coffee shop.

At Snider's dairy the party witnessed the making of butter, ice cream and soda pop. Each scout received a generous sample.

Closing the days trip the group strolled through the Medford Domestic Laundry by Mr. Hegenbotham.

Other Girl Scouts may register for these activities as they are to continue through the month of June.
