

ENGLAND PLANS NO RETALIATION IN BOMB ATTACKS

Chamberlain Tells House of Commons of Efforts to Work Out System Safety Zones in Mediterranean

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today that Britain planned no retaliatory action because of the bombings of British shipping in the Mediterranean, but was trying to work out a system of safety zones to end the attacks.

In his eagerly awaited statement at the first session following parliament's Whitson recess, Chamberlain said two proposals had been made which "might go some way toward cessation of these attacks."

The first provides for the establishment of safety zones in certain harbors, which "although it presents considerable difficulties is being actively investigated," the prime minister said.

Rebels Offer Plan.

The second plan, he continued, was proposed Saturday by the Spanish insurgent government; that "a report in Spanish government territory should be selected outside the zone of military operations for the use of British ships, which could enter or leave it unhindered."

Chamberlain also expressed hope of a settlement of the German-Czechoslovak crisis, and warned both Praha and Berlin they should show "the utmost patience and restraint."

He told the house negotiations were proceeding between the Czechoslovak government and its Germanic minority with "both parties showing good will." He added that the British minister to Praha "has continued to emphasize to the Czechoslovak government the urgent importance of reaching a comprehensive and lasting settlement by negotiation with the Sudeten (Germanic) party."

House Puzzled.

Chamberlain spoke to a puzzled and critical house, for during the four days ended June 10—the parliament was in recess—five British ships had been sent to the bottom and no indication of the London government's reaction had been given.

(All the bombings occurred in Spanish government ports and the attacking planes were believed to be insurgent craft.)

Chamberlain reported that since April 1 22 British ships had been attacked.

"Eleven of these ships have been sunk or seriously damaged and in several cases the attack appears to have been deliberate," the premier said.

"His majesty's government have considered retaliatory action of various kinds . . . but they are not prepared to embark on such measures, which, apart from their inherent disadvantages, can not be relied upon to achieve their object."

TRAVELOGUE FILM IS FEATURE AT ROTARY

A program of colored moving pictures was presented by H. D. Kern at the luncheon meeting of the Medford Rotary club today in the basement banquet hall of the Hotel Medford. Mr. Kern's entertaining pictures covered a trailer traveling of the northwest, including scenic views of Crater Lake, Glacier, Rainier and Lassen national parks with glimpses of Grand Coulee dam, the beautiful coast highway of Oregon and Mt. Shasta.

Plans for the Medford club's representation at the International Rotary convention at San Francisco next week were discussed in the brief business session today.

Products Used in Flea
A fleece of wool, some Oregon swimming suits and various other products in raw and manufactured state were used by Sammons in arguing to have the board make a start in the field of marketing comparable with what he says has been done in production. He said leadership is needed to marshal the forces of imagination, invention, advertising and selling connected with Oregon products.

Ruhl presented the majority report opposing the plan. He said that "it is the committee's opinion that as a fact-finding advisory agency in marketing and not a regulatory one, the institutions under our direction, particularly the state college, are in a position to give entirely adequate service without the creation of any additional departments."

For Instruction First

In support of this position Mrs. Sackett said the board is making instructional work a "step-child" and that until it had more adequate support for this primary function it had no right to divert one cent to new activities however meritorious.

Pearson in support of the proposal explained that no large department is contemplated, but that a coordinating agency, free to engage in either agricultural or industrial marketing, could accomplish great things over a period of time, and could not be properly organized or administered under any existing department or division.

"One of the values of this program," he declared, "is that the college already has the confidence of the producers of the state, and hence a closely connected agency through a marketing organization, the farmers and industry are able to assist the agency outside the educational system could."

Brand, in explaining his adverse vote, said the committee had not made a full study or held hearings, hence he held to the opinion that more marketing emphasis can be given within the present structure.

Sammons had held that the production work of the board institutions was using the lion's share of resources, with little left for marketing.

Pastor Refuses to Unite Heiress, Butter Salesman

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—An Episcopal clergyman who said, "I don't care to marry two people of varying social and financial standing" today upset the wedding plans of 18-year old Andrea Luckenbach, shipping heiress, and William Dobbs, 22, butter and egg salesman and amateur rider.

The minister was the Rev. William Grimes, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, at Great Neck, Long Island, who was to have officiated at the wedding at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The Rev. Grimes depled that either disapproval on the part of Andrea's father, Commodore Edgar F. Luckenbach, multi-millionaire shipping magnate, or fear of a reprimand from his ecclesiastical superiors had led him to decline to perform the ceremony.

"I have a principle," he explained. "The groom-to-be's mother, Mrs. Henry Reston, of Forest Hills, Long Island, said the wedding would 'go on as scheduled,' though she did not know where it would be held.

Commodore Luckenbach, head of the shipping line which bears his name, has frowned on the match, declaring Andrea is still 'too young.'

Miss Luckenbach will inherit $1,000,000 three years hence from the estate of her mother, the late Andrea Marie Fenwick Luckenbach, of Toronto.

REHEARING DENIED IN ACTION AGAINST OPP MINE OWNERS

SALEM, June 14.—(AP)—The supreme court upheld today a $29,000 judgment in favor of Henry Albrecht against Safeway Stores and H. M. Howard, Safeway manager for five eastern Oregon counties.

Albrecht was permanently injured while riding with Howard on a business trip November 15, 1935, on the John Day highway 17 miles north of Burns, Howard's car colliding head on with one driven by Thomas Veitin and owned by his father, George Veitin. Albrecht is Howard's brother-in-law.

The high court ruled that Albrecht was not a guest of Howard because he helped operate the car. If Albrecht had been a guest, he could not have sued.

Other opinions today were: Motion for rehearing denied in Robert S. Bailey, administrator of the estate of Bernice F. Bailey vs. John W. and Rose Opp, appellants. Appeal from Jackson county.
