REDS' FIREBALLER TURNS IN SECOND NO-HIT, RUN GAME

Johnny Vander Meer, 23-Year-Old Southpaw Turns Trick for Second Time in Row—Ninth Inning Tense

By SID FEDER (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Johnny Vander Meer moved into baseball's hall of fame last Saturday. Now he owns it.

The Cincinnati Reds' 23-year-old southpaw fireballer, in his first full year in the major leagues, reached a new all-time pitching high last night in Brooklyn by hurling his second no-hit, no-run game in a row.

That's something not even the Mathewsons, the Johnsons, the Youngs ever did.

Twice in Four Days

In all baseball history, only two pitchers ever have turned in two no-hit games over their entire careers. None ever had come through with two in one season.

And now, along comes young Johnny, who started his baseball in a church league near his home in Midland Park, N. J., and then was given the go-by from three big league clubs, to toss two no-hit games in two consecutive appearances—all in the space of four days.

Last Saturday, pitching against the Boston Bees, he hurled the first nine-inning National league no-hitter since Daffy Dean turned the trick in 1934. Last night, he repeated against the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-0, before a sellout crowd of 18,748 which packed Ebbets Field to see major league night ball inaugurated in the metropolitan area.

Eight Walked

Eight men reached base, all on walks, as his mates fielded perfectly but Johnny pitched his way right out of every pinch. Even in the ninth when, with one out, he loaded the bases on consecutive walks to Babe Phelps, Cookie Lavagetto and Dolph Camilli, the Dodgers' "murderers' row," he got hold of his control again to finish the job. In that spot, he forced a runner at the plate for the second out and got Lippy Leo Durocher to fly to center on a two-and-two pitch to end the game.

Except for that one inning, only one other Brooklyn runner got as far as second base against the six-foot, 190-pounder and his fireball, as he posted his seventh win of the year against two defeats.

HOLLYWOOD STARS PRESENT COMEDY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—(AP)—The Pacific Coast baseball league presented the Hollywood Stars in "A Comedy of Errors" last night.

Playing with the precision of a tall-end bush league outfit, the glimmering Stars "sparkled" in the second inning to commit four errors, their pitchers, Stu Bolen and Jim Pendergast, issued four walks and the Seals tossed in a couple of hits—both by Harley Boss—to collect a total of eight runs.

As the game progressed the Stars got better, they only made two more errors and held the Seals scoreless until the ninth inning when the Seals made four more runs, three of them on a homer by Ted Norbert. The final score was 14 to 4 for the Seals.

Seattle dedicated a new half-million dollar baseball plant yesterday by losing its eighth straight game.

The Portland Beavers trimmed them, 3 to 1. Some 12,000 cash customers saw the game.

SON OF GALLANT FOX WINS ASCOT CLASSIC

ASCOT, Eng., June 15.—(AP)—William Woodward's American-owned Flares, a five-year old son of Gallant Fox, today won the historic Ascot gold cup race worth more than $37,500.

The king and queen were in the crowd which saw Flares lead Lord Glansley's Bucklight and W. Barnett's Senor, across the finish line in a neck and neck finish. The race is over a course of 2½ miles.

An outsider in the betting, Flares rewarded his backers at 100 to 7.

CATBALL PITCHERS CHALK UP PAIR OF NO-HIT VICTORIES

Games Tonight

Division A
Piche vs. Catholic Men, 8 p. m.
Maid-Rite vs. Jennings Tire, 9 p. m.
Division B
Grocceteria vs. Gasco.

Two no-hit games, the first of the season, were turned in by Division A softball hurlers last night before a huge crowd at the high school stadium.

Marvin Steiner, fireball right-hander for Wooden Boxmen, gave up no safeties in eight innings of mound toil to pitch his club to a thrilling 2 to 1 victory over Jennings Tire company in the first extra-inning game of the year.

The losers tallied their lone run in the third inning when Stewart walked, stole second, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on an infield out.

Bob Wilson, Wooden Boxmen catcher, blasted a home run far over the rightfielder's head in the first of the eighth to break a 1 to 1 tie and give his team victory. Manager Hooster Hofstad's single through the box in the fourth frame drove in the other Boxmen tally.

By their victory, Wooden Boxmen remained in a tie with Timber Products for the Division A leadership, while Jennings Tire dropped into second place.

The other no-hitter was turned in by Dale, who shot his blinder past Lamport hitters to give Timber Products an 18 to 1 victory. The losers lone run came in the last inning on a pair of errors.

Cliff McLean, Timber Products centerfielder, belted four hits in five trips, two of them homers, to pace the winners' attack.

In Division B encounters, Lewis Super Service beat Eika, 13 to 12; and Domestic Laundry nosed out Western States, 8 to 7.

Division A Scores:

Team	R.	H.	E.
Wooden Box	2	8	2
Jennings Tire	1	0	2

Death Affirmed In Scottsboro Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 15.—(AP)—The Alabama supreme court today affirmed the death sentence of Clarence Norris, negro "Scottsboro case" defendant.

Electrocution of the negro, one of nine originally arrested on charges of raping two white women aboard a freight train in 1931, was set for August 19.

A week ago the court upheld the 99-year sentence of Andy Wright and the 75-year term of Charlie Weems, convicted also in the mass assault case. Heywood Patterson is serving a 75-year sentence and Ozle Powell was given 20 years. Charges against the others were dismissed.

2nd Fatality

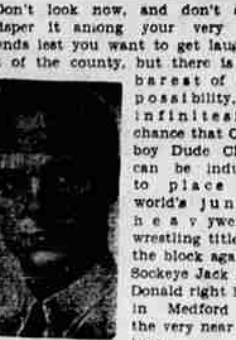

PORTLAND, June 15.—(AP)—An elderly man, tentatively identified as W. E. Hammond, Beaverton, was hurled 64 feet and killed last night when struck by an automobile driven by Larry V. Snyder, 26, Prindle, Wn. Snyder was held without formal charge in lieu of $1500 bail. The death was Portland's 22nd traffic fatality of the year.

Billy Hulén says:

Dude May Give Sockeye Chance At Title Here

Billy Hulén

Don't look now, and don't even whisper it among your very best friends lest you want to get laughed out of the county, but there is the barest of slim possibility, an infinitesimal chance that Cowboy Dude Chick can be induced to place his world's junior wrestling title on the block against Sockeye Jack McDonald right here in Medford in the very near future.

Promoter Mack Lillard didn't even want to talk much about it yesterday when this writer broached the subject, explaining that it was such a long-shot possibility that it might be better to wait until negotiations were further along and not take the chance of disappointing hundreds of fans by falsely arousing their enthusiasm. However, the impresario did admit that he was going to do all in his power to promote the scrap, and he mentioned several angles that would be worked in an attempt to get Sockeye a crack at the crown.

Of course, the biggest hurdle standing in the way is the matter of do-re-mi, Chick, naturally, wouldn't risk his championship for marbles, and especially against a man of McDonald's caliber. (Sockeye beat Chick here Monday in a non-title match, the second southern Oregon setback for the champion in three years.) Realizing that, Lillard is prepared to offer the cowboy everything within reason; to-wit: a flat $500 guarantee with an option of 30 per cent of the gross gate.

Lillard is trying to arrange the match for July 11, at a grand opening inaugural under the stars at the high school stadium, and to sweeten the pot for Chick he is toying with the idea of taking off $100 from the June 20 and June 27 armory cards and throwing that sum in along with the $500 guarantee. So far as Sockeye is concerned, he told Lillard he would wrestle the champion for car training expenses, just to get a crack at the title, donating most of his share of the purse to Chick. All in all, Lillard figures he can see around $750 to offer Dude.

Now, $750 can't be considered exactly marbles, but at that it is far below the figure Chick is in the habit of demanding, and getting, when he goes to the post with his diadem the prize. Chick has never fought a title match has in southern Oregon, and Lillard said that every time the idea was suggested to him in the past, he quickly stopped all such talk by mentioning impossible sums of money.

It is our opinion that if fans in the valley will start demanding that championship match, really put the pressure on the Cowboy to enter the arena in a title go with McDonald, that there is better than an outside chance it can be arranged. While he wasn't exactly hopeful, Lillard admitted that Chick might be forced into the match, especially in view of that $750 and the possibility the optional 30 per cent might run considerably higher. There is no doubt such a match would draw at least 3,000 spectators into the stadium.

Solly Kreiger of New York apparently injected himself right into the scrambled middleweight picture Tuesday night in Seattle when he battled Champion Freddy Steele toe to toe for 10 vicious rounds, only to lose the verdict on what, according to the radio impression of the fight, was one of those "home town decisions." Maybe the announcer leaned over backwards to paint a word picture of Kreiger's aggressiveness, but it certainly sounded like the New Yorker was handing out just a little more than he was receiving from the champion.

Kreiger scored in the ninth and tenth rounds with terrific right hands to the chin, according to the announcer by far the hardest punches landed during the fight, but that didn't alter the verdict. Steele was awarded the decision and the radio loudspeaker rumbled and roared as the crowd booed the official outcome. It really sounded like Solly should have got the nod, or at least a draw.

Anyway Solly put up a whale of a battle, and now the busiest weight-division in the fight game is even busier and more hashed up, with no less than six middleweights right in the thick of things and all so evenly matched it would probably take a modern Solomon to name the best boy. Yes, there are more great fighters in that one division than there are in any other two, relatively speaking, of course.

First, there is the champion, Steele. Next is Freddy Apostoli, San Francisco who scored a technical KO over Steele not long ago in a non-title bout. Then comes Young Corbett III, who further complicated the picture a couple of months ago by taking a decision from Apostoli. There is Al Hostak of Seattle, whom nobody seems to want to fight; Glen Lee, who lost a pair of hairline decisions to Apostoli, and lastly Kreiger, apparently about on a par with any of them. Put 'em all in the ring at once and let the best man win would be our way to selecting the deserving champion.

While speaking of middleweight fighters, here is some plenty good news for the hundreds of Ashland friends of Johnny Shumway, ex-Southern Oregon Normal school football fullback, and one of the most promising battlers in that class in the country. Shumway has been taken over by Pop Foster, who managed the great Jimmy McLarnin, and is now in Los Angeles learning from the man generally acknowledged as one of the smartest in the game.

Mack Lillard, a personal friend of Foster's, told us the news and cleared up the mystery of what had become of Shumway. He said that when Foster agreed to handle a young fighter, you could bet dollars to donuts the boxer has what it takes. He explained that Foster has plenty of money laid away and doesn't have to experiment or gamble on his fighters.

It is here predicted that it won't be long before Johnny Shumway is right up there at the top, battling the Steeles, Apostolis, Hostaks and Lees. And perhaps knocking them over with that savage straight right of his.

Irish Wrestler Balks When Gals Feature Program

PORTLAND, June 16.—(AP)—Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, Irish wrestler, refused to participate on a mat card last night which featured women athletes.

His substitute, Le Verne Baxter, defeated Frank Cutler two out of three falls. Clara Mortensen defeated Patsy Miller, Texas, in an exhibition.

MEXICAN GAL TO MEET CLARA MORTENSEN ON MONDAY NIGHT'S CARD

María Martínez, 135½-pound Mexican gal and considered one of the finest feminine wrestlers in the game, will be the opponent of Miss Clara Mortensen, world's woman champion, next Monday night in the Medford armory. It was announced today by Promoter Mack Lillard.

Making her first appearance here in three months, Miss Mortensen will wrestle Senorita Martínez, two falls out of three to a finish, the female exhibition taking place immediately following the middle event of the regular men's program.

In the main event, Cowboy Dude Chick, world's junior heavyweight champion, goes to the post against Armbreaker Floyd Britt. A well-known villain reappears after a long absence, in the middle bout, when Terrible Ted Christy faces Sockeye Jack McDonald in an alley brawl. In the opener, Tony Morelli and Cy Fox battle it out.

Promoter Lillard announced there would be no raise in ticket prices for the four-star program, one of the best yet to be offered here. Reserved seats went on sale today.
