SUMMER HOLIDAY SOUGHT IN MINING

The Capital Parade

By Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner
Copyright 1937, by The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The million when the lion and the lamb shall lie down together, is very far from being at hand. But, although business and government have never been more unfriendly, the time is not yet past when Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, and Thurman W. Arnold, official trust-buster of the new deal, can take a cocktail of the same tray.

The meeting was a significant one—less because the new dealers present assured the business men that the oncoming anti-monopoly inquiry would be fair and reasonable, than because it was part of a new and more promising effort to bring government and business together.

The get-together was arranged by Pleasant Conoley, tall, sandy-haired, pleasant mannered partner of Paul Shields, the powerful broker who is Wall Street's chief contact with the White House. At the suggestion of W. Averill Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad and another White House friend, Conoley moved to Washington a month or so ago to promote better business-government relations.

ROGUE HYDRAULICS URGED TO LAY OFF JULY 1 TO NOV. 1

Proposal Offered As Concession to Groups Complaining Tourist Trade Damaged—Acceptance Seen

PORTLAND, June 22.—(AP)—Earl K. Nixon, director of the state department of geology and mineral industries, said today hydraulic miners on the Rogue river and its tributaries had been asked to cease operations from July 1 to November 1.

The proposal was offered as a concession to groups who complained mining damaged fishing and the tourist trade. Nixon said a sufficient number of miners had been contacted to assure acceptance.

Operators will be asked to sign an agreement indicating their willingness to close down for four months. In return, Nixon explained, the miners will assume that lower river interests will recognize the concession before taking further legal action against hydraulic work.

Curry county residents filed a suit last year to enjoin 17 mining operators from rolling the Rogue.

"It is understood that this department has no authority to compel compliance with this closing down agreement," Nixon said, "but it might be pointed out that operators not in sympathy with the agreement would be most apt to be affected by retaliatory measures on the part of the lower river interests."

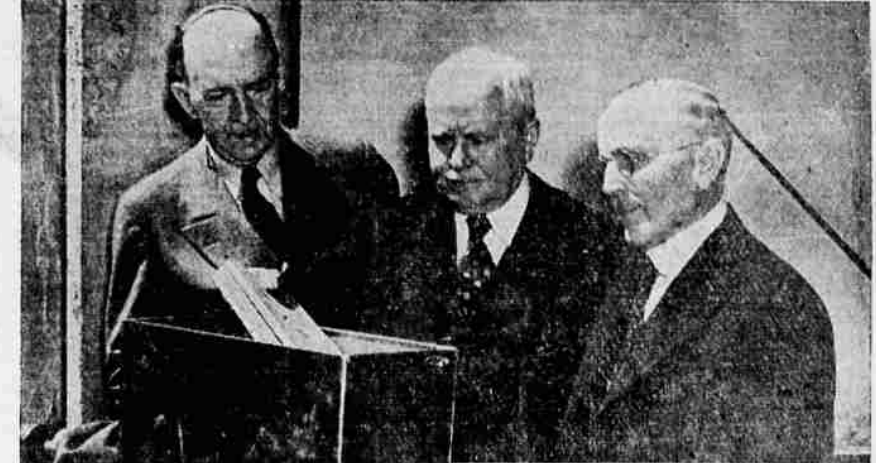

Miners have not been active at the week-ends since April, Nixon asserted, however, that complaints from Gold Beach continued.

The suggested closing dates conform with a California law affecting mining on the Klamath river.

SPRAGUE NOT IN FAVOR SMASHING UNIONS, HE INFORMS CONVENTION

TILLAMOOK, June 22.—(AP)—Charles A. Sprague of Salem, Republican nominee for governor, told the State Federation of Labor convention today "I am not in favor of any legislation to smash unions."

The candidate, whose address followed a speech by Henry H. Hess, Democratic nominee, at Rockaway last night, said he sought the continuance of all civil liberties and civil rights guaranteed by the constitution.

"The test of any legislation," he said, "can be made by asking this question: 'Does it preserve human rights?'"

"I fully subscribe to the rights of labor to organize and bargain collectively, not necessarily because it is the law of the land but because of human necessity."

Sprague warned the unionists they could not have rights without responsibilities.

"You know you exercise tremendous influence over workers and industries," he said.

PLEA IS MADE FOR COUNTY MUSEUM AT COUNCIL MEET

Valued Articles Being Lost to Oregon, Session Told, But City Aid Unavailable—Budget Group Named

Most of the discussion at last night's meeting of the city council came from the floor, the councilmen doing the listening, visitors the talking.

William H. McClure, second vice-president of the Southern Oregon Gem and Mineral society, explained the need of a museum in Jackson county and endeavored to enlist the official sanction of the city in establishing one here; E. C. Jerome, field representative of the Shasta Cascade Wonderland association, described the work being done by the association to publicize southern Oregon and northern California; C. E. Conway, operator of a beer parlor at 110 East Main street, asked that card rooms be permitted to remain open until 1 a. m., saying that the state liquor control commission had sanctioned extension of the closing hour from midnight to 1, and Ernest Walter sought to improve the amount paid for street improvements for a quit claim deed to lots on which the city has acquired assessment deeds.

No Action Taken
No definite action resulted from any of the talks. Mayor C. C. Furnas told Mr. McClure that while the museum was a worthy project so far as the city was concerned, the mayor indicated that there was nothing at present the city could do but Mr. McClure was advised by councilmen to present the matter to the budget committee this fall.

Mr. Conway's request went to the license committee for review, Mr. Walter was advised to confer with Frank P. Farrell, city attorney, and Mr. Jerome asked nothing of the council excepting that it lend its collective ear to his recitation of the accomplishments of the wonderland association.

With the approval of the council Mayor Furnas appointed the following citizens budget committee: William A. Gates, Joe Marshall, R. A. Skinner, George Hiles, Lyle Thurman, Moore Hamilton, Ernest R. Giltrap and W. H. Belchstein. This committee will work with the council in preparing next year's budget and Mayor Furnas asked the councilmen to work closely with the citizen members in acquainting them with the work of the various city departments.

Giant Mosquitoes Attack Portland, Leave Big Welts

PORTLAND, June 22.—(AP)—Portland citizens who spent their evenings slapping at a winged hell in the darkness and appearing the next day with angry, itching welts complained today that the mosquitoes were the largest and most aggressive in years.

The hungry insects have hatched along the river banks by the millions, disturbing the mental and physical comfort of golfers, swimmers and playing children. Many families have been driven indoors from a summer evening on the front porch.

In recent years the city and the WPA cooperated in controlling the pests. The WPA withdrew from the project last spring.

The changes also will permit national banks to resume purchases of bonds of small companies whose securities are not listed on stock exchanges.

"Guess Who" Contest Starts Thursday for Mail Tribune Readers

A few days ago members of the Mail Tribune staff started going through files of photo engravings to bring them up to date. It soon became apparent that many of the "cuts" could not be easily identified by sight though they were pictures of well known local men and women. Only by reference to the catalogue could the identity be quickly established.

The staff members found it interesting to guess who were pictured by the "cuts." Other members of the Mail Tribune family became interested in the guessing game and presently a real honest-to-goodness "guess who" contest was on.

From the office game developed this question: If the Mail Tribune

Staff members were interested in guessing the names, why wouldn't Mail Tribune readers be equally interested?

So here we are, folks, announcing a cash prize contest. This is the Mail Tribune contest. Beginning on Thursday, the Mail Tribune will publish one of these old "cuts" each day. Twenty-five "cuts" will be published in all, one a day for 25 days. Each picture will bear a number, from 1 to 25 consecutively. If you want to enter the contest, here's what to do: Each day put down the number of the "cut" and after the number write the name of the person of whom you think it is a picture. For example, if you think the
