Ten Commandments For Looking Chic On Vacation Trips

- By Adelaide Kerr
AP Fashion Editor
- Commandments for chic on vacations:
1. Remember to keep your baggage light.
 2. Choose a travel suit which is light in weight and neutral in color. Keep it free of light soluble accents which can't be changed.
 3. Select play clothes which will dress you for the things you intend to do. (Swim suit and beach coat, slacks and shirt and three-piece play suit are the three sides of the summer sports clothes triangle.)
 4. Build your wardrobe around one color scheme—not six.
 5. Remember the charm and chic of white for both clothes and lingerie.
 6. Do not forget that sports articles are as necessary as evening girdles. (The new ones have detachable supporters.)
 7. Consider the comfort of washable clothes for both day and evening wear.
 8. Remember the usefulness of little wraps—bright, bold, embroidered jackets and brief sports sweaters which can top both sports frocks and evening dresses.
 9. Choose evening clothes which are colorful, inexpensive and as uncrushable as possible.
 10. Remember your face, to keep it serene.

Tall, Cool Drinks Always Welcome In Summer Heat

By Mrs. Alexander George
AP Feature Service Writer

Tickling ice and the aroma of tea, coffee or fruit juices announce the arrival of that welcome tray of summer thirst-quenchers. Gaily-garnished and passed from an attractive tea bar and service these cooling drinks are a refreshing delight after a motor trip, shopping tour or tennis game.

So keep your refrigerator stocked with fruits, juices and other "moxlings."

Fruit Juice Supply

Save juices left from the canned and fresh fruits you use in salads or desserts in covered jars.

Most people like their summer beverages very cold—with plenty of chopped ice or ice cubes in the glass. But since melted ice dilutes the drink most beverages must be made extra strong. You can freeze your fruit juices in your refrigerator trays and serve those cubes instead of ice.

To give a fuller flavor you may substitute iced tea for water in many drinks. Ginger ale or charged water, too, will give added sparkle if they're mixed into the drink just before serving time.

Combination Flavors

Combine several fruit juices in one drink to get variety in flavor. Apricot, pineapple and grapefruit juices, for example, are a delicious combination. So are grape, orange, pineapple and prune juices. Grapefruit, pineapple, currant and loganberry juices make a delicious concoction. For an exotic drink, mix gooseberry with prune and pineapple. Remember, too, to add a bit of lemon juice—or serve lemon slices—with almost every chilled drink. Mint extract, finely chopped mint or grated orange and lemon rinds give an appealing flavor contrast.

Sweeten your nectars with the old-fashioned sugar and water syrup you use to serve with pancakes. Make up a quart or two at a time and use it as you need it. Add some bark cinnamon and whole cloves during the boiling process—for a spicy touch.

Old-Fashioned Sweetener

Strained honey and maple syrup are also delicious sweeteners. But be careful not to sweeten tart drinks too much—if you want them to be real thirst-quenchers.

Garnishes are very important in making summer drinks attractive. Red and green cherries are stand-bys. Vary them, once in a while, with mint leaves dipped in orange juice and sprinkled with granulated sugar, twists of lemon or orange rinds, or candied fruit strings.

Sprinkle a little coconut over the top of your drink to give it a frosty look. Add a few preserved strawberries or speckled blueberries as intriguing fill-ins. And, once in a while, try candied ginger.

Helps for Housewives

Need a hurry-up meal? Combine all your left-over vegetables with a savory cream sauce. Add some grated cheese and heat. Serve the combination on mashed potatoes fashioned into cakes or pour it over crackers or toast. You can add a little left-over gravy, too, for flavor.

To improve the flavor and texture of chicken used in salads let the cooked chicken stand an hour or so in the broth. Then cut the chicken into small pieces—don't mince or chop it. Toss the salad dressing with a little of the chicken stock.

Fried mush is often served with fried chicken. To prepare the mush mold it in a loaf pan. Chill it until it is firm. Then cut it into fourth-inch slices and sprinkle each with flour. Brown in chicken drippings and serve around the platter of chicken.

Want to be able to unmold corn-starch pudding easily? Add a tablespoon of butter to the mixture just before it is removed from the stove. Be sure, too, to rinse the molds with cold water just before you fill them.

Add a few salted peanuts to the chocolate sauce you serve over ice cream or sherberts.

The Garden Club

When Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Pickel built their home at the corner of West Main and Ivy streets in 1898 they felt a keen longing for the magnolia trees of their native state and so planted two of them. One never bloomed and its place was later taken by a tree of another variety. For years the other tree was a joy to all who passed the house as well as a matter of pride to the owners, and all watched for the beautiful flowers which came every June.

When the house was torn down to make room for a modern service station the fate of the lovely tree became a matter of public concern and it was then that the Garden club became interested. Mrs. Miles, who was then president, secured permission to have the tree moved to the court house grounds, where it now stands just south of the Court House building, and one more it is in full bloom. It is Mrs. Pickel's wish that the club dedicate this tree to the memory of Dr. E. B. Pickel. Medford well beloved physician. A bronze marker will be placed on the tree and the dedication ceremony will take place this coming week. Those and speakers to be announced later.

Mrs. Gipson Driver, president of the Medford Garden club, asks that all members of the club and friends of the family watch for further announcement and plan to be present.
