A "Free Press" is coming to the front as a possible campaign issue. Most every community, on one time or another of its civic life, has weathered a few hectic periods, when a "free press" was too much so.

In the financial and matrimonial squabble, between a Danish count and an American heiress, a two-year-old boy promises to be the storm center, and the main pawn next to the $5,000,000 member of the nobility seeks as his price for a divorce. It is hoped he grows up to have more sense than his mother, and not look like his father.

Country squirrels and jackrabbits are now racing back and forth across the highways, for no more reason than the autos that run over them when they can't travel 80 mph. going no place in particular, either.

Cold figures now come to light revealing that the Republican nominee for the US. senate, in his last appearance before the voters of Oregon received 20,000 more votes than the Democratic aspirant, in his last oratorical espers before the people. There are also ample signs the people are recovering from their political giddiness, and ready to remove the latter from the public eye, despite the blinding of New Deal underlings. Along in the fall, it may be necessary for the senator from Nebraska to write a letter to a Portland Democrat, after a state or federal plun, pronouncing the GOP. selection, as no true liberal, and villain who won't do right by Bonneville Dam.

SUSPICIOUS! (Arizona Daily Star) "Theft of nine hens was reported to the sheriff's office yesterday by Mrs. Fred Franklin.

A chicken dinner will be served by Phillips chapel, C.M.E. church today.

A Canadian scientist declares the "Einstein theory is a fake. The original theory was as clear as mud, and so is the allegation.

A new "Bull Moose" movement is reported brewing in the Middle West. It is understood there is nothing new about it, but the moose.

"Several relief families have moved to Topeka from another county where aid will not be given persons owning and operating motor cars." (Topeka (Kan.) Journal) - Hard heartedness in Kansas.

A speaker before the convention of National Society Workers, espoused efforts to inject character into delinquents "is a waste of time." There has been too much robbing of service station tills on the way back from character rebuilding meetings.

ADVICE TO WIZARDS (Macaulay's Writings) "Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the nation by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties—by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodities their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment—by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the state."

The Safety slogan, "Be Alive on the Fifth" failed to curb the Fourth of July horror toll. Analysis by experts reveals the slogan had a number of defects, and failed to leave a "vivid impression" on reckless drivers. It did not remain in their minds as a permanent thought. A nice permanent thought for speed idiots would be: Nothing is so permanent as death.

"On Thursday the Second Mile Bible Class will have at the parsonage a Mr. Patrick covered dish supper. Bring your own table service, sandwiches, and husband." (Clinton Items)—Social warning.

Protect Our Country Roads

THE county court is doing an excellent job of road building. The recent surfacing of East Main street to the Golf club, is an example.

This job was completed in four or five days, at an average cost of only $1000 per mile! Those who have driven over it will agree it is now one of the smoothest highways in southern Oregon.

And it will hold up. For up to a certain limit, the more it is travelled the firmer it will become. Such roads are not rolled into shape, they are packed into shape by the motor traffic. And when wear and tear sets in they can be easily and inexpensively repaired.

WITH the construction of permanent hard-surfaced highways in the state costing from ten to one hundred thousand dollars a mile,—and more—the achievement this new type of road represents, is strikingly apparent. And it was no accident. It was the result of several years of careful study, experiment and research, by the members of the County Court and their engineer, Paul Rynning.

THE County Court is now constructing two or three miles of similar highway, in the Phoenix district, and before the season is over probably eight or ten miles in all will be constructed. In other words, thanks to the development of a cheap, serviceable oil-pulverized granite surface, Jackson County will soon have the best system of highways in the state—if not on the entire coast—PROVIDED,—

Provided,—the people, for WHOM THE ROADS ARE CONSTRUCTED, DO THEIR BIT AND TAKE PROPER CARE OF THEM!

For these new highways are not cement pavements. They are entirely adequate for motor travel of any sort, but they are not built to stand up under heavy tractor travel of the caterpillar type. In fact there is a law against running such tractors over these highways.

Yet only yesterday, some one drove such a tractor over an oil gravel road in the Voorhies Crossing district, and for a mile or more practically destroyed a portion of it! According to the County Court such cases of criminal carelessness,—complete disregard of the law, and the public interest,—are of frequent occurrence.

OBVIOUSLY this sort of thing must be stopped. There is no earthly point in building good roads if one or two caterpillar tractors are going to be allowed to tear them up.

If a public warning fails to stop this sort of vandalism, we suggest Sheriff Brown get busy, if necessary swear in a group of rural deputies, and see that THE LAW IS ENFORCED!

Shocking Evidence

HAVE you been reading the account of the Al Rosser trial in Dallas, Oregon?

If you have, then you have some idea of the need of a new deal in organized labor circles in this state.

For regardless of what the verdict of the jury may be in this particular case, when union labor officials will admit under oath, that they paid out union money to have the factory of an employer burned to the ground, no further evidence is needed to establish the fact there is something decidedly ROTTEN in our labor Denmark.

And where did the money thus paid to these confessed arsonists, come from? It came from the pockets of the members,—it was paid over to the higher-ups in dues by the workers themselves,—money they could ill afford to part with, much less throw away to gain the services of CRIMINALS.

Certainly every DECENT citizen, whether he belongs to a union or doesn't, should in the face of such evidence, join in the movement to drive the labor racketeer and gangster out of this state!

Such Is War

ON the anniversary of the outbreak of the undeclared war against China, Tokio proudly announces that,—

Japan has conquered 775,000 square miles of territory, and inflicted 1,300,000 casualties.

Of the latter, 83,000 Chinese bodies were found in Nanking and vicinity during the Christmas holidays; and $1,000 in the Shantung area during the fighting of the previous three months.

Total losses for Japan on the other hand, are listed at the meagre figure of 36,629.

BEFORE we rise in righteous indignation, and condemn pagan Nippon for this cruel slaughter, and above all for a spiritual callousness that would GLORY in it,—

Might it not be wise to look back 20 years, and recall what our own sensations were when we found the German assaults greatly exceeded those of the Allies?

We gloried in death and destruction on the other side, of course,—the unspeakable Hun had to be exterminated from the face of the earth. And now,—at least among those who sympathize with China,—it is the "inhuman yellow beast," that should be wiped out.

Ho Hum,—it depends so much upon whose ox is gored, doesn't it?

If we were a wise and logical people we would concentrate upon the condemnation of war, and a united effort to get rid of it; and not waste our time and energies condemning the nations who engage in it. For white, black, red or yellow, when it comes to war, we are all brothers, under the skin!

The bill providing for a transaction tax for the payment of annual retirement annuities, the Townsend plan for pensions, and the bill regulating labor strike picketing, lead in number of signers.

Other measures on the list include an amendment requiring the state to make annual payment of $10 for each school child. This measure is sponsored by the American Legion and the Oregon Congress of Mothers. The $10 levy for elementary schools is now paid by the county.

There are also petitions for adoption of an alcohol regulation bill, stream pollution, a power bill, a one-house legislature, and declaring the steel road to be a game fish.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION, ATHLETICS AND SPORT

Education is the act of process of training by a course of study or discipline. Physical education applies to the development of the body and the cultivation and preservation of health. Athletics means activity or skill in exercises, games or contests. Sport is amusement, diversion or pastime, especially as a spectator or "fan."

After all, no system of exercises, setting-up drill or callisthenics performance is especially an instructor or drill master can compare with a game played against a single opponent or as a member of a team against an opposing team, for its physical education value.

For years one fine high school required for graduation that the boy or girl candidate pass a rigid test in swimming and proficiency in rescue from drowning. That is what I call sound education. In another public school for years the principal staged private boxing matches or contests under proper supervision, and by such contests boys settled their differences or quarrels if any.

The plan worked with great success until one wicked kid, a spoiled child, boo-hoed to his foolish parents, and they raised a scandal over the matter and succeeded in having the arrangement stopped. Just the same, in my judgment, a growing boy should have no real fair training and opportunity to practice the art of self-defense under qualified instructors who are members of the school faculty, non affide teachers, has not had a fair deal in education.

Parents too often acquiesce or probably connive with their children in various dodges or cheats whereby the misguided young ones evade or escape part or all of the physical education the curriculum provides. A favorite fraud of this kind is sometimes aided even by the doctor who in his anxiety to hold the family patronage contents to help a girl to pretend a natural function is sickness, weakness or delicacy. This practice is a disgrace to intelligence. Doctors who participate in it should be exposed as shysters. Experience of thousands of young men of high school and college age has proved, beyond all eyebrow raising, that it is better for the health of the girl or woman that she continue all her usual activities, including regular athletic or gymnastic work, without interruption during the menstrual period. There is plenty of evidence, too, that pampering at that time, as though the function were a weakness or an illness, invites trouble.

Any boy or girl, young man or young woman, who is able to be up and about should be required to take his or her regular physical training classwork, as well as any other classwork. It is high time that our physical educators put an end to this abuse.

One of a Pair Is it possible for a person to have a kidney removed and live for many years in apparent good health afterward? (C. H.) Answer—Yes, many persons have lived for long years in good health after removal of a kidney. The loss of any organ or gland of which the individual has a pair is without effect so long as the remaining one is not damaged by disease or injury. (Copyright, 1937, John F. Dille Co.)

Man About Manhattan By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—They can throw out the flowers and the empty medicine bottles. They can throw out the magazines and the package-wrappings. They can throw out everything they can even throw me out. But they can't throw out the bills. Not until papa pays 'em. It costs money to indulge the luxury of being ill. Did you know that, Sugar? But that's all right. My Pollyanna nature whispers, "Thank me, money wasted. That's my investment in good health." I'll invest in the Pollyanna down the stairs when the first of the month comes.

But there's no kicking today, no back-talk. I'm getting out of here. I feel ill, too. Little pale around the gills, mope, and shake in the superlatives, but that'll correct itself. And do I need a haircut!

Well, let's see. Let's check over everything, and see what adds up. The thing I had was an old-fashioned case of honest-to-goodness bronchitis. I didn't have a cold, and at no time did I have a sore throat. But the fever was pretty high for a while. It leaves you sort of dizzy, and the results, well, I thought I was going to freeze to death, and knock all my teeth loose chattering.

The nastiest part of it came in an innocent looking little bottle, about four inches high. Just a junior bottle. And the liquid inside, purest yellow, you could imagine. It was so transparent you could read a newspaper through it. Well! If I ever run into any of that stuff again I aim to renege and let nature take its course.

In all there were some 14 bottles, liquids and solid capsules and pills. Pills! Well! I don't think I'm built right. I can't swallow pills the way other people can. They hang up in my throat and they slowly disintegrate. But I guess that's better than my disintegrating.

And now, like something creeping out of a cocoon, I'm slowly emerging into the sun. I'm going back to the office, for a day or two days and get my desk in order and write some thank-you notes, and, as I told you the other day, I'm going on that sailing trip with Mel Graf.

He says, "Well, they're here, they're here all right, but you've kicked around enough to know that sometimes you get them and sometimes you don't. I just don't want you to be disappointed if we don't get them."

I won't, Mel. I promise to be good. I won't even sulk if we don't even get a strike. But somehow I have a hunch that this is going to be "G.P." or something. I feel it's going to be one of

Comment on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

YOU've read here of the sap who lost $250 matching coins with a couple of total strangers in Portland, and of the boob who paid $100 for a Los Angeles street car, taking the word of the slicker who sold it to him that it was a nice, easy way to make a living.

Both of these were a long way off, but the same thing is going on right here at home.

AT a southern Oregon carnival the other day, one poor devil came off $17.50 loser. Another dropped $10. A third came out of the small end of the horn to the tune of $7.

None of the three could afford to throw his money away. One was a CCC youth, just mustered out and on his way home. Another had been married less than two weeks, and certainly needed all his loose change. The third wasn't heavy financially.

IT is not intended here to intimate that the three were robbed. They probably got as good a run for their money as anyone is expected to get at a carnival. Carnivals, you know, aren't run as charitable institutions.

The point is that three young fellows, who ought to have known better, but DIDN'T, tossed away a total of $34.50 that they couldn't afford to toss away.

In each case, probably, the result will be deprivation of one sort or another.

THERE is poverty in America, which is a great pity. In a land as rich as this, there should be no poverty.

But how are you going to PREVENT poverty when so many people insist on throwing their money away?

SUPPOSE we divided up all the wealth in America, and gave to each person his exact and equal share of the total. How long would this artificially enforced equality last?

Not very long, unfortunately—for some would match coins with a couple of total strangers, some would buy street cars from plausible slickers and vast numbers more would toss their money away without ever stopping to think whether or not they could afford it.

Very soon indeed we would be right back where we were before the distribution was made.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN MARRIED TOO SOON FOLLOWING DIVORCE

HOLLYWOOD, July 7.—(UP)—Something new in Hollywood marital mixups was disclosed today when superior court records showed Lita Grey Chaplin, who was married for the third time yesterday, still is the legal wife of her second husband.

The former leading lady and wife of film comic Charlie Chaplin yesterday was married to Arthur Day, Jr., a film agent, on the assumption that her divorce from the second husband, Harry Aguirre, Jr., had become final last Friday.

The court records disclosed that someone had reckoned without the holidays. Although Mrs. Day obtained her interlocutory decree July 1, 1937, the court order was not actually entered until five days later. The divorce will not become final until tomorrow.

Day, reached at Santa Catalina Island and informed of the mix-up, expressed great surprise and said he would call a lawyer at once.

"If that information is correct," he said excitedly, "I guess we will have to marry again right away." The groom said he and Mrs. Day would remain in Avalon, principal town of the island, for about a week, adding:

This information certainly will not interrupt our honeymoon."

The Capital Parade

In the end the president returned to his spending policy, the old faces reappeared at the White House, and Morgenthau and Jones relapsed into their former niches.

While he drives his congressional leaders unmercifully, the president is content to let his better executive subordinates do their own work under his supervision. Morgenthau at the treasury; Jones in his domain; Cordell Hull at the state department; Henry Wallace at Agriculture; Martin S. Eccles at the federal reserve board—all of these and a host of minor agency heads are reasonably independent. There are gradations. For example, the president is almost as much secretary of the treasury as Henry Morgenthau, but they have a friendly partnership. Wallace is almost completely independent. While Eccles, an economic mystic, might almost share the general policy-making functions of his allies in the inner circle, if he were not such a one-man idea. These are details, however.

The important thing is that, since these men in the cabinet, at the agencies and in congress, are virtually excluded from policy making, they have little interest in and feel no responsibility for the general policy of the government. Toward the members of the White House inner circle, who do make policy, they feel a marked hostility.

Both of these were a long way off, but the same thing is going on right here at home.
