

APPLEGATE PEAKS VISITED BY MANY DURING HOLIDAYS

View From Forest Service Lookout Stations Impressive to Easterners — Many Picnic in Forest

BIG APPELATE, July 8.—(Spl.)—Many visitors sought the mountain areas to spend their Fourth of July holiday, and reaching the forest service lookouts here, were inspired with the panoramic view of Jackson county from its towering heights.

Snow drifts previously had blocked the road to Dutchman's Peak summit, and Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Cameron, formerly of Oklahoma and now of Rogue River valley, were the first to drive their car up the south slope of the peak to its pinnacle dwelling. Mr. and Mrs. Cameron were accompanied by Oklahoma guests, May and John Dunlap. Other Richey and Warden Loyd. Words could not express their appreciation of the beauty of Rogue River valley as seen from the Siskiyou mountain top. They stated that the scenery had not been equaled since they crossed the Rockies en route to Jackson county, and they were exceptionally pleased with the fact that Dutchman's peak is not a snake infested area. The visitors said they would be frequent callers at the lookout this season. Bill Aicken, in charge of the lookout, also appreciated the southern hospitality of his guests, having been presented with a chocolate cake by Mrs. Cameron.

Visit Wagner Gap County Commissioner Ralph Billings of Ashland, accompanied by Mrs. Billings and friends, were among those visiting Wagner Gap guard station. Mr. and Mrs. M. Ottoman and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Woodford of Medford also motored to the station, where they visited Robert Ottoman, son of the former couple, who has charge of the post. Thirty picnickers and fishermen were reported at the gap during the day. The vacationists gave accounts of very unsatisfactory fishing in the headwaters of Little Applegate, declaring that the fish also had gone on a holiday.

Several ventured on the three-mile hike from the Gap to Wagner Butte lookout, which is in charge of Herbert Knott's son, Ross, and Raymond Ross of Medford, Mildred Work, Gladys Goddard, Betty Combest, and Anita Mason of Talent.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Walker, owners of a Talent grocery, visited Hugh Shurtziff at Anderson Butte lookout. Mr. and Mrs. Walker said they were seeking a place of solitude to spend the Fourth, and came upon this mountain habitation unaware, not realizing that a modern glass house had been built in that area. Mrs. Ruth Fox and R. E. Spence of Portland were guests of the former's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fox at Sturges guard station. They left Tuesday after a five-day visit.

180 Get Permits. Herbert Heyde from the forest service warehouse in Medford, accompanied by his brother, Albert Heyde, of Portland, visited at Thallowbox. The star ranger station here reports that 180 people were served with camp fire permits, not including those camping at the new improved forest camps. These camps were crowded to capacity.

Among others spending the holiday in this district were A. H. Brown and a friend from San Francisco, who vacationed at the headwaters of the Big Applegate. They stated that they sought the wildest section of California for their holiday, and had been referred by San Francisco friends to this remote section of the Applegate over the California line.
