ment, dedicated to 150 years of Americanism.

That was the signal of a flag and bunting draped shield to be pulled from a Lewis and Clark memorial.

The president said, in his introduction, that his "two old friends," Senator Bulkley and Representative Robert T. Secrest, of Caldwell, Ohio, invited him to make the address several months ago.

"This was the only reference to Secrest, also a candidate for re-election.

On Mental Migration

President Roosevelt asserted today the nation is on a "mental migration," seeking to open new frontiers of social and economic security.

To that modern movement he pledged anew the leadership of his administration, and urged the people not to be "afraid to help each other."

"Let us never forget that government is ourselves and not an alien power over us," he said.

The speech was the first of several the president will deliver on a cross-country tour designed to expound his policies and to win support at the polls for "liberal" senators and representatives.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized repeatedly the cooperative aspects of government, both when the northwest territory was being settled and in modern times.

"Today under new conditions," he said, "a whole nation, the original 13 states and all the west and south that has grown out of them, is on a mental migration, dissatisfied with old conditions, seeking like the little band that came to Marietta to create new conditions—of security. And again the people see an ally in their own government."

Statutes Stand Guard

"The spirit of the frontier husking bee is found today in carefully-drafted statutes—statutes insuring bank deposits; statutes providing mortgage money for homes through F.H.A.; statutes providing help of foreclosure.

The reference to "the efficiency of government machinery" was taken by many to mean that President Roosevelt intends to make an issue

Deep Decollette At King's Court Cause For Worry

LONDON, July 8.—(AP)—Low-cut necklines and daring bodice effects at King George's third court gave the new lord chamberlain something else to worry about today besides walking backwards gracefully.

Eyebrows went up like elevators last night at Buckingham palace as debutantes curtsied prettily in gowns plainly cut more décolleté than unofficial court practice prescribes.

As a result, gossips predicted the Earl of Clarendon, the lord chamberlain, would "take steps" to see to it that dresses hereafter are not quite so peek-a-boo.

Last night's court was the first for Clarendon to carry the white wand and gold key of the lord chamberlain as he walked backwards before the monarch.

The United States embassy presented no Americans, although Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy attended.

CORVALLIS, July 8.—(AP)—A fourth construction job on sorority-fraternity row at Oregon State college was authorized yesterday when the Sigma Kappa sorority planned an 18-foot addition, to cost $800.
