Miss Betty Cleland Wed In Beautiful Eastern Ceremony

An interesting announcement received here from the East tells of the marriage of Miss Betty Cleland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hanco H. Cleland of this city, to Dr. Tom D. Throckmorton, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Throckmorton of Des Moines, Iowa.

The ceremony took place at Winnetka Congregational Chapel on June 28 at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, near Evanston, Ill., with Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown officiating in the impressive service.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful dress of white chiffon, the sleeves and girde of which were delicately smocked in white. A long train completed the exquisite creation. Attached to a halo cap was a full length veil of fine tulle. White girdle formed the nucleus of her bridal bouquet which was composed of sweet peas and roses.

Miss Patricia Murray of Olympia, Wash., was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Janet O'Leary of Olympia and Miss Jean Wolfe of Des Moines, Iowa. They were gowned in blue net of a dark hue and the maid of honor wore light blue net of the same fashion. Blue delphinium and yellow roses predominated in their bridal sheafs.

Mr. Robert Throckmorton of Des Moines was best-man and ushers included Dr. Arthur Lueck of Chicago, Dr. James Weimar of Chicago and Mr. John A. Cleland of Medford.

A reception at The Georgian in Evanston, followed the wedding.

The bride and groom, after a wedding trip to the Pacific coast, will reside in Philadelphia, Pa.

The wedding was the culmination of a college romance. Dr. Throckmorton was graduated last June from Northwestern medical school, where he was affiliated with Phi Beta Pi and Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical fraternity. He spent his undergraduate days at Drake university where he was a member of Alpha Tau Omega, national social fraternity. He was awarded a Phi Beta Kappa key, premier scholarship honor.

The bride left Northwestern university this winter in the midst of her sophomore year to take up studies at the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences in Chicago. She was a member of Tri Delta at the university.

The bride's father, Mr. Cleland, president of the California Oregon Power company here, attended the wedding. His wife and sons John and Buddy are at present enjoying a sojourn on Puget Sound near Olympia, Wash. They expect to arrive in Medford sometime in August to reside. It is anticipated that Mr. and Mrs. Cleland will be active members of Rogue valley society, their sons participating in social activities of the younger set.

Chartreuse Colors In Wardrobe Fashions Popular

By Audrey Ames
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS—(UP)—Chartreuse, whether it be to the green side or to the yellow, to the pale or the vivid, is with us once again on the Paris color chart. But unlike past vogues of chartreuse, the color this year probably will be sparingly mixed with anything but blue.

Although no dressmaker particularly exploits chartreuse, it is found in every collection and with increasing frequency in smart accessory shops. Madeleine Vionnet uses it for an hour of the day. Her polka-dotted bluish purple silk dress has a pale chartreuse kid belt to mark the waist of its tunic blouse. Two large chartreuse balls, one perched on each shoulder opening, complete the effective combination.

Rows of diagonal hemstitching form an openwork pattern in the bodice of a straight, short chartreuse silk afternoon dress. Deep tucks mark the armhole seams of short full sleeves. There is a narrow brown kid belt.

For evening, Jean Patou's displays a chartreuse organza whose full skirt whirled panels of lavender satin ribbon. Three lengths of the same ribbon or inserted horizontally for a corset effect at the waist.

Mainbocher chooses chartreuse chiffon for the sophisticated dinner dress which has a tailored long-sleeved blouse and a floor-length accordion-pleated skirt.

And an unflattering recipe for a "striking" evening gown is one which combines a silk and wool jersey material with a vivid chartreuse color—and wraps the whole tightly around any figure that can take it. At least that is Paquin's idea.

If a little chartreuse goes a long way with you, try mixing it with cyclamen and pink for a silk such as Patou puts round an alabaster silk suit. The ash is formed by diagonally cut stripes of the three colors and is the only trimming for the smart off-white suit.

Henry J. la-Pense suggests a rich chartreuse silk blouse which ties in a bow at the neck and has glazed kid gloves to match.

Mrs. John Lawrence Presents Report Of Zonta Convention

Medford Zonta delegates to the 18th annual convention of Zonta International included Mrs. John Lawrence, Mrs. Effie Kurta, and Mrs. Margaret Fabrick.

Mrs. Lawrence's report on the convention is as follows:

"We went to Vancouver, B. C., from Medford by auto and then took the Canadian Pacific from there to Banff, Alberta, where the convention was held in the Banff Springs hotel. A magnificent setting in the Bow River valley of the Canadian Rockies. The convention lasted three days, June 30th to July 2nd, and was attended by delegates from Canada, Hawaii and from all parts of the United States. At different times during the convention, many Rotarians were guests who were also participating in the entertainment programs."

"The territory for Zonta is divided into districts and there were 18 districts represented, each of which served as a hostess for the program. Medford club is in district 6, representing the Pacific northwest and we had a prominent part in the program, which was out on Friday evening, July 1. It was at that time we had on all the tables in the big "room" the pictures of Crater lake, wrapped in scrolls of blue cellophane and beautiful candied pears, all of which attracted much attention, but the most popular of all were the Crater lake pictures. Mrs. Effie Kurta, was in charge of the program and sang so beautifully the following three songs of the northwest, "Far Off I Hear a Lover's Flute," "Cadmian," "The Land of the Sky Blue Water," "Rose Marie," by Primi. Medford showed very proud of Mrs. Kurta, as we have never known a more attentive audience."

"The delegates found the whole convention very inspirational and instructive. It was conducted by a group of women of whom the whole nation should be proud."

Mme. Schiaparelli Predicts Wearing Of Miniature Hats

By Audrey Ames
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS—(UP)—"Doll" hats, which perch jauntily on the side or front of the head like the hat on an organ-grinding monkey, were introduced by Schiaparelli in her mid-summer collection.

And now Mme. Schiaparelli insists that the miniature hats will be the accepted thing for fall and winter wear. She's usually right—even if the world doesn't come round to her way of thinking until a couple of years later. But leading Paris milliners are beginning to swing over to the doll hat, which is just about as big as its name signifies.

Fashion experts say that the tiny hat must come for two reasons: One is the definite advent of the pineapple coiffure which sweeps everything upward; the other is the necessity for a more readily portable hat owing to modern travel ways. You can't duck in and out of airplanes—or jam yourself in crowded subways—with a broad-brimmed hat in the way.

Getting down to details, these microscopic hats are trimmed almost invariably with ribbon bows or feathers. And the ultimate note of smartness (as far as Schiaparelli is concerned) is to match "shocking" red lipstick with a "shocking" red velvet bow perched on the front of a black hat.

Shapes vary from modified tricorne and hatched-in Tyroleans to little saucers with irregular rims, but they all take care to leave the entire back (and half the top) of the head completely uncovered. They all have a tendency to tip down well over the forehead or over one eye.

One little navy felt visored hat has a crown which is no more than quarter-moon shaped, thus allowing for any amount of curls on the top of the head. It is held on by a navy program back strap.

A miniature navy felt beret literally stands on the right side of the head, while a ribbon is tied around the back of the head to keep the doll hat from falling off. Black mouseline makes a fluffy bow perched on the top of a tiny black velvet toque. Jack-rose velvet ribbon makes a bow which is a whole hat. And the Bol-dini effect is frequent.

FLUHRER'S PRESENT CONVINCING PROOF

New Baking Methods Greatly Improve Bread

In their advertisements and radio talks, Fluhrer's have stressed the fact that their new Holsum bread, because of new methods in baking and cooling, will stay fresh days longer. Recently Fluhrer's have brought to their attention, a case in Medford which is convincing proof that their statements in this regard have not been exaggerated.

On Saturday, June 18th, a Medford family of two who eat very little bread, bought a loaf of Fluhrer's new Holsum. Because there was no need for it, the wrapper on the loaf was not broken until Wednesday, June 22nd—5 days later. When opened, the bread was found to be in perfect condition, almost as soft and fresh as the day it was baked.

This bread was kept in an ordinary closet and as the slices were removed, the end of the wrapper was crumpled up to keep out the air—a precaution any family would take.

The loaf of bread was finally used up on Wednesday, June 29th, and the remaining slices did not contain a spot of mold and the bread was still soft—12 days after the loaf was baked and in hot weather at that.

Fluhrer's consider that this is convincing proof that their latest, improved baking and cooling methods and a double wrapper, do make a vast difference in bread goodness, freshness and keeping qualities.

And, because this bread stays soft and fresh so long, it is an economical loaf to use as there is no waste.

There really is no substitute for this fine bread on the local market and Fluhrer's Holsum is on sale at all stores.—Adv.
