And He Did It!

THEY told Douglas Corrigan it couldn't be done, but Douglas hopped into his old crate, and DID it! Very wrong of Douglas. No young man should fly in an eight year old bus, much less try to get to Europe in it. And when the Department of Commerce refused to give Douglas a license, that should have settled it.

But judging by his name Doug was Irish and had the Celtic imagination and fighting spirit. He had flown 3,000 miles over land, he could see no reason why he shouldn't fly the same distance over WATER.

So while all the wise-boys gasped and the officials at Floyd Bennett field shook their fists Douglas once free in the air turned the nose of his boat to the East instead of the West, and the next thing heard of him he had landed safely in Ireland!

DOUGLAS is now subject to arrest and the cancellation of his pilot's license. Well, if rules and regulations regarding air transportation aren't enforced, what is the use of having them!

BUT,—arrested or not arrested, license cancelled or not cancelled, we predict no red tape officialdom is going to stop Douglas Corrigan.

He has certainly shown the proper spirit, and has won his place with that inspiring list of heroes and hardy pioneers, who have made this country what it is today, by listening respectfully to those who said it COULDN'T be done,—and then, hopping off and DOING IT!

Making Better Citizens

WITHIN the next two weeks, a group of young men of Medford will leave for Portland where they will participate in the Beaver Boys' State, to be conducted at the Hill Military Academy.

For those not familiar with the Boys' State, this comparatively new, American Legion-sponsored movement, brings together boys of high school and junior college age to seriously study by ACTUAL PRACTICE the principles of self-government. Already, the program has reached a nation-wide scope, and to the American Legion goes the credit for initiating a movement of far reaching importance to the young men who participate and to the nation!

TOO often, John Q. Jones, average American, decides the duties of administering the affairs of government should be left to professional politicians. For these duties are manifold and mysterious. He hasn't time to study them,—or thinks he hasn't. He may let off steam occasionally if taxes increase too rapidly, but then that's a typically American prerogative granted in the Bill of Rights. . . . Too frequently he exercises this right but doesn't ACT. No! Government responsibilities belong to the politicians!

THAT is why the Boys' State was organized. . . . to teach young Americans WHAT our national, state and local governments are; to teach them HOW these governments operate; to give them a thorough understanding of their rights as citizens and how to intelligently fulfill their responsibilities of citizenship! It is the aim of this movement to emphasize the fact that politics should not be regarded as a RACKET for the few, but as a SCIENCE OF GOVERNMENT for all. . . . it being believed a knowledge of this distinction will itself open avenues for vast public usefulness!

THE Boys' State brings together young men who, with careful leadership and assistance, organize themselves to conduct the affairs of mock government. Through this type of actual, practical instruction they are given an insight into the operation of government that few adults have experienced. Situations are confronted; problems of national, state and local governments analyzed.

SO in these Boys' State camps, conducted this year in several states, a knowledge of better citizenship and an appreciation of the finer things that citizenship and patriotism offer, are instilled in those who some day will guide the destinies of this nation!

The movement is sound, practical, far-reaching! Other organizations have been quick to recognize and appreciate the importance of Boys' State. . . . Here in Medford, young men who represent this city will be sponsored by service clubs and fraternal organizations under the leadership of Medford Post 15, American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary.

Nine young Medford men are already in line to attend the "camp" at Portland. Legionnaires here expect to send more. Oregon's Beaver State Boys' camp will accommodate 250 and state members of the American Legion are striving to make it a two-session affair with a combined attendance approaching 500!

Similar interest is being manifested elsewhere. 400 young men just completed the Boys' State course in California; 2300 in Illinois! This interest, here and throughout the nation, is an encouraging sign!

LIKE every large family with periodical rounds of measles and chickenpox, America is not without her economic and social ailments; America, too, has her share of imported and home-grown crack-pots who spread both openly and under cover their unsound doctrines in an effort to supplant the lessons of 160 years of American self-government, with some 1938 stream-line "ism."

Those things which are alien to American principles of democratic government can best be RECOGNIZED and EVALUATED by those who KNOW what this nation's principles and policies really ARE; what American democracy really IS.

In initiating the Boys' State, veterans of the world war have the OPPORTUNITY AGAIN of truly serving their country and again contributing to the strengthening and perpetuation of American institutions. H. G.

CONSERVATIVE TREATMENT OF SINUSITIS

One nose and throat specialist who was not born a specialist but achieved his skill in that field thru wide experience in general practice, informs me he has never been able to employ diathermy for the extrication of tonsils, perhaps, as he concedes, because he has never mastered the technique of the method. On the other hand he has found diathermy (electro-coagulation, electro-surgery, endothermy) a most gratifying advancement in the treatment of sinusitis; so much preferable to the older surgical measures that it has become the method of choice in his practice.

The inference I draw from this competent specialist's view is that radical surgical treatment of sinus trouble is not so good as the half-baked, inexperienced "specialists" of Yankeland would have unwary wisecracking customers think. What I mean is that the majority of so-called specialists in this country today are without any solid foundation of general experience. I call these trick specialists "brass specialists"—and I tell the world they're the curse of Medicine in America.

In urging the advisability of conservative treatment I do not mean to say that surgery is never necessary or advisable, nor that diathermy is always preferable to more radical surgical operation. My purpose is merely to warn the public against the pretensions made and the devices practiced by the charlatans. Most of these shrewd merchants who hold themselves out to the public as "specialists" would starve if they had to depend on the confidence of the reputable physicians in the community to call them into consultation in difficult cases or to refer patients to them for their advice.

In long standing cases it is sinusitis the thyroid gland function seems to become exhausted. This calls for either the iodine ration or, if the patient's temperature is below the normal 98 between 4 and 6 p. m., the small daily doses of thyroid extract—the thyroid extract should be discontinued if or when the body weight shows a loss or the pulse rate, which has been slow, is more than 80 a minute at the patient is at rest. Of course thyroid extract can be safely used in this way only under the observation of the physician.

The general hygiene, diet, clothing, ventilation, sunbathing, air-conditioning, heating, constitutional remedies advisable for sufferers from other chronic respiratory diseases such as chronic bronchitis, and we'll consider these factors in a separate chapter on bronchitis.

Regular or systematic use of sprays, douches, irrigations or suction is as likely to harm as it is to help. Such treatment should be restricted to occasional or periodic when the physician specifically prescribes it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS. Dangerous Drug. Kindly tell me about benzidine sulphate tablets. How will they affect a pregnant woman. Any information about these tablets will be appreciated. (Mrs. E. L. C.)

Answer—Benzidine is far too powerful a drug for any layman to monkey with. It would be as dangerous to use it without your physician's advice as it is to use morphine or strychnine.

Food in the Can. Friend horrified at our unorthodox habit of leaving certain canned foods in the can in the refrigerator for hours or days before we consume them. She insists that health authorities warn against that as a dangerous practice. (E. E. P. and Family)

Answer—Nonsense. If the can is a fit container before it is opened, it is just as fit after it is opened. Your friend probably harbors imaginations about "poisoning" poisoning—a few backwoods "health" authorities still foster such phobias.

Monorrhoidism. Please tell me if a man who has had one testicle removed can have children? (D. M.)

Answer—The loss of one testicle or ovary has no effect on virility or femininity, potency or fertility, provided the remaining organ is intact. That's why nature provides the spare.

'Sneak' Hop Over Ocean Without Instrument Aid

Those who watched him were astounded when he banked slowly and headed eastward instead of west. That was the first intimation that the Irishman might be attempting a solo conquest of the Atlantic.

Even then, those acquainted with him surmised that he must have altered course when he attained altitude and struck westward for the Pacific seaboard. They pointed out that he had been refused permission by the government last year to fly to Ireland.

He flew without benefit of a parachute, for use in an emergency. His plane, long out of production, is powered with a 175-h. p. motor, which is just 2,025 less horsepower than Howard Hughes had in circling the world last week in a transport machine.

Corrigan had his own method of taking care of the antiquated craft he flew. When he wanted to create the "push rods" which operate the valves of his motor, he merely unlocked the metal covers and shoved in a handful of grease.

Within an hour after his arrival stories about him began cropping up. Last Monday, invited to broadcast on a network, he refused to take $100 for his services. Fifty, then? No, he said. Finally he was asked what he did want.

"Well, I spent $4 on taxi fare getting here," he said. "I seldom ride in taxis, because when I don't fly, I walk."

They finally compromised on $15.

Comment on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS. THIS dispatch comes from Portland, where Farley paused for a few hours on Friday on his way to Seattle and then on to Alaska.

"Oregon is a testing ground of the Democratic party in the West, and if it can carry the state, Postmaster-General James A. Farley believes the party will sweep everything west of the Mississippi."

"Speaking of the November elections, when Oregon chooses a senator and governor, Farley agreed it would 'look bad' if the state slipped into the Republican column."

So we're to be the bug under the microscope, eh? Well, just for luck, let's be a REPUBLICAN bug when we come out from under in November.

THIS isn't uttered in any spirit of narrow partisanship. President Roosevelt is gunning openly for a congress that will do whatever he tells it to do. If he gets such a congress, there is no telling what wild scheme will be sprung on us as soon as the new congress assembles.

In the past five years, we've had to digest to us about all we can hope to digest in the next ten years. This writer fears that if the process of forced feeding is resumed as soon as the next congress assembles, the United States of America will get a bad case of indigestion.

What has happened in Europe when nations get a bad case of indigestion is none too reassuring.

WITH an election in the offing, we're having a breathing spell. Business is beginning to crawl out of the cyclone cellar and look around—timidly, to be sure, and ready to dive back into its hole, but at least willing to take a look. The stock market is rising, and a more hopeful spirit is abroad.

But we had a similar breathing spell in 1936, and no one should forget that when a practically 100 per cent rubberstamp congress assembled in January of 1937, a sequence of startling experiments was sprung on us that scared business out of its wits and sent prosperity tumbling and unemployment totals CLIMBING.

THE Republicans can't hope to make much of a gain in the November elections. But if they make ANY GAIN at ALL it will be a sobering influence. This sobering influence will tend to EXTEND the breathing spell. WE NEED the extension.

So, here in Oregon, let's try a little experiment of our own. Let's send some Republicans back to Washington, and elect a Republican governor for good measure.

It can't do any harm, and it may do a TREMENDOUS amount of good.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS IN SALEM CONCLAVE

SALEM, July 18.—(AP)—Republican leaders of Oregon were in Salem today for the organization meeting of the state central committee.

Principal business will be selection of central committee officers. Arthur W. Fraulix, Chillicothe, chairman since 1934, said he was not an active candidate for reelection.

Some men prominently mentioned as candidates were B. L. Clark, Kern Crawford and Walter Toose, Portland, and Edward Boehnke, Eugene.

Long-range artillery duels between Japanese warships and Chinese land batteries continued along the Yangtze river during the past two weeks in the Yangtze sector.

The main concentration of Japanese warships still was at the Matowchen boom, 175 miles downriver from Hankow, while land forces were held below Kiukiang, 135 miles below the provincial capital.

The warships reached Matowchen July 8 after three weeks of hard fighting to gain 40 miles from Anking, capital of Anhwei province.

An attempt to advance overland from the north bank of the river in conjunction with the naval advance was meeting similar resistance.

Chinese reports said the invaders had suffered 10,000 casualties during the past two weeks below Kiukiang. They held several boatloads of bodies were seen proceeding down the river.

JAP AIRMEN MAKE DARING ATTACK ON ENEMY AIRDROME

Squadron Lands at Nanchang and Set Fire to Chinese Planes—Chase Defenders From Base

SHANGHAI, July 18.—(AP)—Japanese naval fliers today carried out what a Japanese naval communique described as "the most daring attack in the history of military aviation."

During a large-scale attack upon the big Chinese airdrome at Nanchang, southwest of Lake Poyang, a seven-ship Japanese bomber squadron landed at the airport despite fire and machine-gun fire from the Chinese defenders, the communique stated.

Then the bombers' crews jumped out of their planes, the communique said, and with torches set fire to seven grounded Chinese planes, seized two machine-gun magazines as war booty, chased Chinese fliers in a gasoline truck into a neighboring rice field, and returned to their base unscathed.
