Mickey Rooney, Freddie Bartholomew In Sunday Hit

Mickey Rooney and Freddie Bartholomew, as they are seen in "Lord Jeff," the unusual story of the lives of the two boys at the Barnardo Homes, famous English institution for the reclamation of youth. Bartholomew is seen as the tool of a pair of crooks who pass him off as a nobleman, while young Rooney plays the chief student petty officer at the training home. Other members of the large cast include Charles Coburn, Gale Sondergaard and Herbert Mundin.

"Yellow Jack" Coming to Rialto

Out of the fever-infested swamps of Central Cuba comes the greatest romantic-drama of a decade, "Yellow Jack," a stinging story of five brave men and a fearless woman fighting for humanity in a community dying with yellow fever. "Yellow Jack" comes to the Rialto theater Sunday for a three-day run with Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce (inset) in the starring roles. Andy Devine, Buddy Ebsen and William Henry add humor to the exciting film. Others in the large cast include Lewis Stone, Charles Coburn, Henry O'Neill and Janet Beecher. "The Marines Are Here," featuring Gordon Oliver and June Travis, will play as the added feature.

Singing Cowboy

Dick Foran, champion singing star of the west, comes to the Rialto theater tomorrow only in "Cherokee Strip," action-packed story of pioneers and redskins. Craig Reynolds and Jane Bryan star with Foran. Episode 11 of the Larry Crabbe serial, "Flash Gordon's Trip to Mars," is also on the same bill.

Heberholz averages approximately 100 outings each summer, with the number of attendants at the affairs ranging from 50 to 15,000. He utilizes a specially constructed automobile trailer to haul entertainment equipment. The Cincinnati says the secret of making any picnic a success is to get everybody to participate in games.
