BARTLETT PEAR THINNING URGED TO BOOST SIZE

In a bulletin issued today American Fruit Growers, Inc. advised orchardists to start thinning immediately if it seems likely that their Bartlett pears will not size.

"With the warm weather prevailing up and down the coast it would appear that all Bartlett pears run smaller this year than last season and may develop a surplus of 18's and smaller sizes," the bulletin said.

"Therefore it is our urgent recommendation that all growers immediately look over their Bartlett crop and if it is doubtful whether or not your Bartlett will size it will pay to get in and immediately start thinning because if there are too many 18's and smaller sizes available this year they will not only be discounted in the eastern markets on fresh pack fruit but they may be eliminated by the canners on No. 2 grade.

"So it will be worth a grower's extra thinning expense to try to get as many pears larger than 18's as possible this year."

The California fresh pack Bartlett deal got under way July 8, the day the first car started rolling to the east, the bulletin stated. California sizes to date have been running surprisingly small, much smaller than anticipated, some of the early carloads running heavily to 18's-21's sizes, according to the bulletin.

With arrival of the small sizes the market slumped and growers and shippers are now being advised to pack nothing smaller than 18's size, the company's bulletin asserted.

No canners' offers have been made yet in California or the northwest but there is rumor of an offer and sale in Yakima on the basis of $15 a ton for number 1 and $7.50 for number 2, according to the bulletin.

"It is our opinion canners are waiting first to see just what prices these heavier shipments of California Bartlett bring before they make an offer," the American Fruit Growers statement said.

"The heavier shipments are due to arrive in the east this week and something should pop then or shortly after. On the other hand, if the Bartlett continue to run small, it may force canners to get in and purchase what they think they will need in the way of large sizes while these large sizes are available and they can't buy all they want of large sizes, they may be forced to take some of the small pears."

"Another thing: If the sizes continue to run small in all coast districts, it is naturally going to reduce the total tonnage of Bartlett available because culling out 18's and smaller Bartlett will mean a big reduction in the Bartlett tonnage."

Youthful Stars In Thrilling Picture On Craterian Bill

The drama of the British Merchant Marine serves to team Freddie Bartholomew and Mickey Rooney in a gripping story in "Lord Jeff," story of England's future sailors, now playing at the Craterian theatre.

Its locale, the Russell-Coates Nautical School, one of the famous English institutions grouped in the Barbados, where orphan boys are trained for the future, the new picture depicts Freddie as a youngster, the tool of crooks, represented as a son of nobility, who is taken from his dishonest guardians and trained at the school.

Mickey Rooney plays the student petty officer who is first Freddie's friend, later his foe, as the spoiled boy finds love and regeneration. Intimate details of the training of the boys, their athletic meets, mast-climbing contests, annual boat race, and their final graduation to places aboard the Queen Mary, form a background against which a story of sacrifice and heroism, loyalty and regeneration is played. Both youngsters are excellent in their roles.

Veteran stage star Charles Coburn plays the superintendent of the school with dignity and conviction. The crooks are played by Gale Sondergaard and Jonathan Hale and a new child find is introduced in Terry Kilburn, English boy actor.

Major Bowes' Revue Booked for Showing Holly Stage Tuesday

Amateurs may come and amateurs may go, according to those who have already had the pleasure of seeing Major Bowes' "Intercollegiate Revue," which comes to the Holly theatre for a one day only showing tomorrow, on the stage for both matinee and evening, the ten acts which appear on the bill will have no trouble at all in keeping right in the parade after they close their tour.

Amateurs yes—but least they were when the show started—but doing their stuff in a professional manner that will see most of them in big time before long.

Swing will be the order of the day when these collegiate boys and girls hit the stage tomorrow at the Holly. From New York's educational Madison Square Garden come the Four Shag Champions, exponents of the jittering school of dance; Jackie Fields of N. Y. U. shows what can be done with four spoons in a musical sort of way and also does a specialty on the harmonica; Smith College offers the "Duchess of Swing," Grace Johnston; from Villanova comes Alexander Muccucci to set toes tapping with his accordion; Billy Irons of Howard tap dances on roller-skates; and a graduate of Brooklyn Barbur College, Dick King specializes in impressionist; Bert and Betty give a lesson in drumming on the backs of chairs and for the first time, that gag about "she should be beaten regularly like a gong" has more than figurative meaning—for Bert actually beats Betty like a gong. Of course there's a catch to it but it won't be divulged here. Also in the act are O'Brien and Goldberg from the College of Hard Knocks with a line of patter that should hit the spot, while Bill Broadway, the "Believe it or Not" boy soprano has been credited with being tops in his line.

The closing turn is provided by Joe Smith and his daughter, Marie, with a singing-tapping routine.

"Prison Nurse" featuring Henry Wilcoxon and Marian Marsh will be the screen feature on the program.

Robert Montgomery Stars In Dramatic Picture At Rialto

A motion picture now tells the story of Major Walter Reed and the small band of scientists who invaded Cuba after the Spanish-American War, pledged to wipe out yellow fever.

"Yellow Jack" which opened yesterday at the Rialto theatre, is the story of men against death, men whose health and lives were offered in the interests of science. It is a strong drama, but so factual in all particulars that it points a new milestone in realistic motion picture entertainment.

Robert Montgomery is seen in his first powerful dramatic characterization since "Night Must Fall." Lovely Virginia Bruce plays the feminine lead, providing the romantic background against which the story gains momentum. Lewis Stone, himself a veteran of the Spanish-American war, is ideally cast as the historical figure, Major Walter Reed.

"Marines Are Here," featuring Grant Withers, plays as the companion feature with "Yellow Jack" at the Rialto thru Tuesday.
