

MASONIC MEETING CRATER LAKE RIM SAT., AUGUST 13

Grand Lodge Of Oregon Officers Coming For Unique Session—Brill Is Honored Guest.

On lofty Cloudcap Point, overlooking majestic Crater lake, an impressive Masonic ceremony will be held Saturday evening, August 13, by members of Medford lodge 103, A. F. and A. M. A special dispensation has been secured from the grand master to hold this open-air session, at which time the master mason degree will be exemplified in full form, according to L. L. Sanders, worshipful master of the local lodge.

In addition to the ritualistic work, a program of musical numbers will be presented and the beautiful Indian legend of Crater lake will be told. The meeting will begin at 7 p. m. and Masons from all parts of southern Oregon have been invited to attend.

Cloudcap point, with an elevation of 8,070 feet, may be reached on the rim road leading from the Crater lake lodge, according to Secretary A. G. Bishop of the Medford lodge. A slide road will provide ample parking space within 500 feet of the place of meeting. Officers of the lodge here, who are acting as the committee for the open-air ceremony, suggest that Masons bring small camp chairs or cushions and a light lunch if desired.

During the impressive Cloudcap point ceremony, honor will be paid to Emil Britt, one of Oregon's oldest past-masters. Mr. Britt, a past-master of Warren lodge No. 10 of Jacksonville, made his first pilgrimage to Crater lake exactly 64 years ago and the open-air Masonic meeting will be held on the anniversary day of that first visit.

According to word received from Portland, four carloads of Masons will come to this city to participate in the unique Crater lake meeting. The representatives of the grand lodge of Oregon who have already accepted invitations to attend are Franklin C. Howell, grand master, and D. Rufus Cheney, grand secretary.

They are in demand, — well paid — machines can never displace them. Artistic talent is comparatively scarce. If you can draw, why waste this rare gift? Train yourself to do work for which nature has fitted you and which few people can do. Success nowadays comes easier to those who develop natural ability. LARGE AUDIENCES ATTEND FESTIVAL OF BARD'S PLAYS

The Oregon Shakespearean Festival entered the second night of its fourth annual series last night with the production of the Merchant of Venice at the Elizabethan theater in Ashland.

As at the opening performance of Hamlet Friday night, a large audience again greeted the players, the cast receiving numerous curtain calls at the end of the play. As produced by Angus L. Bowmer, festival director, the plays move much too swiftly to permit applauding between scenes. A fast tempo, like that of play production in Shakespeare's time, is maintained from beginning to end. The professional smoothness of the action and the authentic characterizations created much comment.

The audience Friday night was the largest that has ever attended an opening festival performance. Attendance the first two nights indicated that this year's festival will be by far the most successful of the annual series.

The festival will be resumed Monday night with the "Taming of the Shrew." Schedule for the remainder of the festival follows: Tuesday Hamlet; Wednesday, Twelfth Night; Thursday, the Merchant of Venice; Friday, Taming of the Shrew; and Saturday, Hamlet. The plays begin each evening at 8:30.

On Friday night the cast received gorgeous clusters of gladioli from the annual gladioli show held in Granta Pass Friday and Saturday.

Insurance companies usually have a lower salary range for women office workers than banks.

Second Travel Picture Ready

The second picture in the series of outstanding natural color reproductions of Oregon's scenic wonders, a new and unusual picture of Mt. Hood as seen from Lost lake, will be distributed beginning Monday at Standard stations and dealers throughout the state of Oregon, states H. L. Hathaway, district manager for the Standard Oil company for this area.

For the past two weeks Standard has been giving away thousands of the beautiful full-color pictures of Crater lake," declared Hathaway. "Now, beginning Monday, we have another beautiful picture for distribution without charge—a brand new one of Mount Hood."

"Reports from all over Oregon indicate the overwhelming interest evidenced by the motoring public in these travel pictures. The full-color reproductions suitable for framing are being distributed in an effort to sell Oregonians on "seeing Oregon" and to stimulate interest on the part of all motorists to visit the many natural scenic wonders in Oregon.

"The Mount Hood picture, available Monday and as long as the supply lasts, was taken from the famous scenic point on the shores of Lost lake where many motorists think the best possible view of majestic Mt. Hood is obtained. It is possible to drive within a few feet of where the impressive scene was photographed.

"For those who like real outdoor beauty, an unsurpassed view of the mountains and plenty of hiking, swimming and fishing opportunities, a visit to Lost lake should certainly prove enjoyable.

"Lost lake is easily accessible from every part of the state and full directions for reaching this beauty spot in the heart of the Mount Hood national forest are contained on the white envelope in which the scenic view of Mount Hood is enclosed.

"The lake is 67 miles from Timberline lodge, Oregon's million-dollar resort built on the south slope of Mount Hood and dedicated by President Roosevelt in February, this year. A trip to Lost lake, which takes in part of the famous Mt. Hood loop highway, will provide a pleasant day's excursion for guests at the lodge," Hathaway explains.

A. O. Waha, supervisor of the Mount Hood national forest reports that boats and cabins are available at the lake, trails have been further improved and the camp ground is in good condition. Waha also pointed out that one of the favorite easy hikes for those who visit Lost lake is the scenic trail around the lake. Other favorites are the trail to the famous Eden alpine park at the very base of the mountain and the hiking trip over Indian mountain into Wahtum lake.
