LESS STRIKES OR LESS PAY EDICT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—(P)—Increased efficiency to reduce operating costs—or wage reductions—are alternatives given Pacific coast longshoremen today in an offer from employers for renewal of the working contract which expires September 30. In presenting the offer, with proposals for contract modifications to reduce operating costs, Almon E. Roth, president of the waterfront employers' association, asserted: "The only alternative . . . is a wage reduction . . ."

MA BRITE PLANS VISIT TO FOLSOM

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 6.—(P)—Mrs. Margaret ("Ma") Brite, halted on a hitch-hiking trip to Washington to plead with President Roosevelt for the lives of her sons, planned to visit them at nearby Folsom prison today. The 68-year-old mother of John and Coke Brite, under death sentence for the slayings of two police officers and a vacationer in Siskiyou county, arrived by train from Rock Springs, Wyo., last night. She was persuaded in the Wyoming city to heed the advice of Horace Fry, attorney for her sons, that the president would be unable to aid them. Fry said that after Mrs. Brite visits her "boys" at the prison, he would take her to Lakeport, where her husband and another son lives.

WINNERS SELECTED RECEPTION WILL HONOR FR. BLACK

Ben J. Trowbridge of the Hill and Crown roads is the winner of the 68 first prize in the Mail Tribune's "Guess Who" contest. Mr. Trowbridge was one of the six contestants who turned in perfect solutions. At the drawing to determine the prize winner at the Mail Tribune office late Friday afternoon, Mr. Trowbridge's name was drawn. Miss Margaret White of Jacksonville won the $5 second prize in the drawing. Third prize of $2 went to Mrs. Lottie VanScoy, Box 65, Eagle Point. There were three drawings among the contestants tied for first, second and third places. Winners may procure their checks by calling at the Mail Tribune at their convenience.

Sacred Heart parish will hold a reception from 7:00 to 9:00 tonight in honor of Father F. W. Black, pastor of the church. The reception will be held on the lawn of St. Mary's academy. All friends of Father Black are invited. The testimonial is in recognition of Father Black's silver jubilee as a priest. He was ordained 25 years ago in Portland where he was born. He has been pastor of the Sacred Heart church here for 15 years. At 8:00 o'clock a short program of musical numbers and talks by presiding officers of various church societies will be given. Among visiting priests coming for the reception are the Rev. B. V. Kelly, Cathedral parish, Portland; the Rev. Joseph Sherbering, Sublimity; and the Rev. P. J. Feinler, Grants Pass. The Rev. William J. Meagher of the Sacred Heart hospital and the Rev. Augustus Meyer, assistant pastor, also will be present.

Courtesy's No Ice Cake, But Helps You Cool Off

By Joan Durham. AP Feature Service Writer. There's no slack season in good behavior. Sultry summer days should be an incentive to it, if anything, even though you don't feel up to par. There are a number of things we can do to help each other keep comfortable. The hostess, for example, will suggest on a hot day that men guests remove their coats if she senses they would like to do so. If she doesn't suggest it, it's perfectly all right, under fairly informal circumstances, for them to ask permission to do so. Naturally, they shouldn't ask permission on such occasions as formal dinner parties. Nor should they let the coat-removing habit hold over when temperatures drop to comfortable levels. Don't Be a Loller. Neither the hostess nor her guests will take summer informality as an excuse to loll all over the place in extremely informal attire. Lolling never kept anybody cool. Other hot-weather hints: To the ladies: Don't take off your shoes in public. Buy comfortable shoes and keep them on. And don't roll your hose down below the skirt line. To the men: It's all right to mop your brow when occasion demands. But don't forget to have on hand a supply of clean handkerchiefs if you're going to need them. A Word to the Young. To the younger generation: Watch your behavior in the park and on the beach. Reserve your good-night kisses for privacy. To guests who visit in localities where there is lots of swimming: Don't sit in your wet bathing suit anywhere except on the beach or in places the water won't run.
