Fashion Premier Abroad Gives America New Hues

By Adelaide Kerr (AP Fashion Editor)
Colors and fabrics are headline news in 1938 fall fashions. Black remains a prominent costume hue, but a number of new intriguing shades have come to town for the winter mode. Those launched by French designers made their debut in New York this year on the day when they were revealed to buyers in Paris.

This was made possible by an arrangement whereby nine Paris designers (Behlapprelli, Molynoux, Patou, Chanel, Lelong, Lanvin, Maggy Rouff, Creed and Marcel Dornoy) furnished a New York dye company (United Piece Dye Works) with samples of their colors in advance. Among hues were the rich rusts, terra cotta and umbers to which Paris gave unexpected prominence: the greenish blue Mailard duck tones and the lichen, almond, vivid and dark greens used by some of "Paris' best." One of the most striking notes in the newly imported collection, from which many of America's fall fashion colors will be chosen, was the violet influence on reds and blues. Many d-violets, blue-violets and purple-violets as well as mauve shades and orchid pinks were among them. Browns included both dark "Rembrandt" tones and reddish shades.

Hints for Housewives

Note to Tom Sawyer: Surfaces to be whitewashed should first be well cleaned and freed of any particles that might scale off. Scrub with a stiff brush or broom. Whitewash adheres to moist surfaces better than it does to dry ones. So sponge off the area to be whitewashed with cold water.

Classroom Tips For Girls Going To Colleges

By Betty Clarke
AP Feature Service Writer
So you're going to college? Watch your classroom chic. Don't let it be just by accident that you look your best for that eight o'clock. Make it a point to give yourself a precious few extra minutes for:

Putting your make-up on correctly. Get the powder on smoothly, all over your face and well down under your chin. No rouge, unless you're extremely pale and think you need a faint blush. Lipstick that's becoming, but no hardening. (The danger lies in getting it too dark.)

Brush and Comb
Fixing your hair in its most becoming—and easy to keep—fashion. Half a dozen flicks with a comb won't do this year. You'll have to brush and comb carefully to bring out the life in your hair. Wear a hat or one of the new bandanas tied peasant-fashion under your chin for protection against wind damage.

Then check in your mirror to see that both stockings seams are straight, your slip isn't showing and sweater and skirt are together. Men are cranky on those points.

Don't forget to make necessary repairs on your manicure. Take that heather-tone polish all off or put a smooth, even coat on. If you've a broken nail, cut it off and file it down. Then you won't start biting it when the prof gets a little stuffy. And it won't catch in your hose when you give it an in-between tug during luncheon.

Methodist Group Meets Tuesday
The South Methodist Missionary society will hold a picnic meeting on Mrs. Ralph Woodford's lawn at 526 South Holly street next Tuesday. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock, followed by a program and a social hour.

Each member is asked to bring her own meat sandwiches and a covered dish.
