Wallace Berry Has Lead Dramatic Hit Now At Craterian

A motion picture program that is winning capacity crowds to the Craterian theatre is the show that opened its three day run yesterday, with Wallace Beery starring in "Port of Seven Seas" as the feature attraction, and the new March of Time presenting "G-Men of the Sea" as a special added attraction on same program.

"Port of Seven Seas" is different from start to finish. It has comedy, drama and adventure all played to perfection by a brilliant cast headed by Beery.

Outstanding in their roles are Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Beal and Jessie Ralph. Especially appealing are the proposal scenes between Miss O'Sullivan and Morgan and the card game sequences with Beery and Morgan.

The unique story concerns the loves and sorrows of these simple French folk. A boy leaves his sweetheart to go to sea and breaks his father's heart by doing so. He is to return in three years and marry the girl of his choice. But the girl concludes he is gone forever so she accepts the marriage proposal of a man twice her age. She doesn't love him but realizes she can make him happy.

The boy returns and demands his bride, but his father makes him see that he must not break up other's happiness and should return to the sea for his own.

Interest Grows In Contest For Local "Shirley Temples"

Numerous phone call to the Medford Mail Tribune and the Craterian theatre show a marked interest in the contest to discover the little southern Oregon girl who most closely resembles Shirley Temple. Several entries have already been received.

A little confusion has resulted in many parents entering photographs of their little girls that were taken several years ago. Although it must be admitted that many of these would have a fine chance of winning one of the three prizes, the contest is, nonetheless, open only to photographs of fairly recent origin. And all photos entered must bear the name, address and present age of the contestant. The little girl contestants must also be residents of southern Oregon.

The little girl who is judged winner will receive $10.00 in cash; second prize will be $7.50 and third prize $5.00. In addition, all three winners will receive a personally autographed photograph from Shirley herself.

All entries are to be made to the "Shirley Temple Contest" at either the Medford Mail Tribune or Craterian theatre.

The contest closes Saturday night, the closing night of the new Shirley Temple picture, "Little Miss Broadway," which opens a four day run Wednesday. Any entres postmarked before midnight Saturday will be accepted.
