

CRASH WITH HAY WAGON DRIVES STICK IN NECK

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 17.—(AP)—With a game grin on his face, John L. Chronister, 24, walked into a Santa Monica hospital yesterday with a timber two inches square and eight feet long stuck through his neck.

Chronister told doctors, who removed the timber, he had been impaled when his automobile struck a hay wagon. Doctors said his condition today was "fair."

Fill the tank, PROFESSOR EINSTEIN

YOU'D BE SURPRISED, You wouldn't you... if you stopped at a Standard Station or dealer some day and Dr. Einstein stepped up to fill your tank? Well, so would we. Yet the scientific front of the oil industry is chuck-a-block with surprises no less drastic.

For instance, in our laboratories men of science are constantly at work—but we don't know what they're doing. In many instances even they don't know where their work may ultimately lead. This may seem strange, but gasoline is both cheaper and better today because such pioneers beyond the frontiers of knowledge were permitted to experiment with their test tubes.

It meant the same thing as another billion barrels of crude each year when they came upon the cracking process whereby additional gasoline is obtained from oil which already has given up its normal gasoline content. Gasoline itself does immeasurably more work because, since 1920, they've raised the octane rating by 40%—far above most state standards.

With their knowledge is power—literally more and better power for everybody. But who can say which way new knowledge lies? We don't know. And neither do the men in our laboratories who are deep in original research. For the only way to learn about the unknown is to step into the darkness and grope boldly forward.

Mrs. Selby Fetes Miss Estes At Shower Party

Mrs. Paul Selby, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Fabrick, at the latter's home on Crater Lake avenue, was hostess last evening for a delightful shower party honoring Miss Kathleen Estes, bride-elect.

The early part of the evening was spent in playing a variety of entertaining games. Later Miss Estes was the recipient of many attractive and useful gifts from the kitchen shower. Entree of the presents was cleverly made when Mrs. Selby wheeled in a blue crepe paper form representing the "world," complete with small silver stars and all the lid of the "world" held a miniature bride with flowing train of white tulle and upon removing, revealed all of the gifts.

The bride motif was even carried out in the refreshments, the white ice cream was shaped like a heart and in the center was a little pink cupid of ice cream. Rooms were decorated gaily.

NEW PROCESS ENABLES FISHERMEN TO RETAIN REPLICA OF 'BIG ONES'

A new process for procuring a natural, full-bodied reproduction of fish is being used with much success by Mrs. Ethel B. Casey at her state park resort on the Rogue river.

Under the new process, a cast of the fish is made with moulage. The cast is then painted with artist oils and the result is a reproduction that looks exactly like the real thing. The cast can be mounted on any kind of base. As a real fish is used in the moulding process, a fisherman can procure a permanent record of his catch without having the fish stuffed and mounted.

Mrs. Casey made a study of the new process at the Palo Alto plant of the company which makes the moulage. Since she started doing the work at the camp she has been kept busy filling orders, she related. Orders have been filled for fishermen who have come to anglers in southern Oregon from such distant points as New York. Several orders are now being filled for Nion Tucker San Francisco publisher who spends much of the summer at his river lodge, Rogue River, Mr. Casey said.

Whales Frighten Fishermen

ASTORIA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Whales are scaring off the Oregon coast and frightening fishermen in their small fishing boats.

Mauri Peterson, Newport troller, and his companions, got a thrill when several whales rose near his boat Sunday while en route from Newport to Astoria. Peterson and the other fishermen donned life jackets in fear the plants of the sea might wreck their 30-foot boat. The whales did not molest them.

Another party of sport fishermen seeking albacore, were frightened recently when whales rose close to their boat off the mouth of the Columbia river.
