SWIMMING HOLE TRESPASS IRKS

The sheriff's office plans to take immediate action against a group of juveniles and boys, ranging from 12 to 25 years of age, who have trespassed daily on Lee Phipps' cornfield, and tramped down his corn, located on the McAndrews road. According to Deputy Sheriff William Grenember, they have torn down trespass notices almost as fast as they can be nailed up.

The main attraction is a swimming hole on the Phipps farm, which is fed by an irrigation ditch. It is quite a popular spot with juveniles, and the pool has been enlarged by digging away the irrigation ditch. This irks the irrigation district, and they desire a curb on the mermen.

Three or four of the swimmers, old enough to appear in justice courts, will be brought before Justice W. H. Coleman, and the same number of juveniles will be haled into juvenile court, the sheriff says.

According to the officers, Phipps has no objection to the swimmers, if they wouldn't tramp down his crops, and feed his corn to the horses the boys ride to the place.

FISHING REMAINS LITTLE CHANGED IN FOREST AREA

Billie Creek Offers Best Huckleberry Prospect — Forest Service Camp Grounds Listed for Public

Fishing continues about the same except there are good fishing areas on the Upper Rogue river between Muir creek and Hamaker camp grounds, according to the weekly bulletin of the forest service. Best results are from using worms and grasshoppers, attainable in the vicinity of Hamaker. Fishing at Hyatt lake has not been very good, but a few croppies and bass are being caught. Fourmile lake continues much the same, with some limit catches being made and fishing good on the whole. Klamath lake has been good at Rocky Point. Sky lakes have not been very good but some good catches have been made in Red lake. Lake o' Woods remains the same with perch and catfish being caught. Fishing is fair at Carberry creek and the Big Applegate. Middle Fork of the Rogue river still offers good fishing about two miles from Innaha by trail.

Huckleberries are still being taken on Huckleberry mountain. Billy creek offers about the best huckleberries in the Lake o' Woods vicinity. Some berries are being picked on Rustler Peak in the Butte Falls district.

Camp Spots Listed To those people who patronize the forest service campgrounds, the following improved forest camps in this area are suggested for use. At these campgrounds no fire permit is required and latest improvements are available.

The Union Creek forest camp is at Union Creek, 56 miles from Medford. It has rustic facilities with accommodations for a large number of campers and picnicers. Fishing is not very good in Union creek now. From this camp it is two miles by good road to a Dude ranch where horses can be rented for riding, nine miles to Huckleberry mountain, where huckleberries are still available, and seven miles to Mt. Stella lookout where a nice view of the Upper Rogue is presented.

There is another campground just below Union creek at Natural Bridge over the Rogue river. Fishing here is fair.

Hamaker forest camp is 16 miles above Union Creek, and one and one-half miles off the Diamond lake highway. This is a new campground which is to take the place of other camps which have been abandoned along the old Diamond lake road. It is centrally located in a good fishing area with National Creek falls only 2 1/2 miles by road and 1/4 mile by trail. Minnehaha Soda Springs is two miles by road and two by trail.

Soda Springs Area Dead Indian Soda Springs forest camp has a picnic area with a community kitchen and individual stoves. The campground has prepared camp sites, and there is also a resort with store and lunch room. Fishing in the south fork of Little Butte is good. At the camp is a swimming pool and the famous soda springs. This camp is about 35 miles from Medford by Lake Creek road which is narrow but in good condition.

South Butte creek forest camp is a pretty camp with fair fishing near

Wall St. Report

N.Y. YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Light profit-taking halted an early forward tilt in today's stock market and initial advances running to a point or so were reduced or cancelled. Selling of the recently strong motors, steels, and rubbers tended to dim the ardor of buying forces and many traders, while still encouraged by business prospects over the remainder of the year, decided discretion might be the better part of valor and adjourned to the safety zones. The fact offerings again dried up in declining intervals was a helpful influence in the day's proceedings and a little speculative nibbling in the final hour enabled most of the forenoon sufferers to close above the worst levels of the day.
