He Shoots Golf for Keeps

Youthful Eddie Simmons (above) became permanent possessor of the Larry Schade trophy yesterday by capturing the annual Southern Oregon-Northern California golf title for the third time. Simmons, wearing a string uphull battle to defeat George Harrington 1 up on the 36th green, turned in a par performance for the last eighteen holes.

and figures, while Harrington was taking a five, due principally to his second shot finding a sand trap over and at the right of the green. Although Harrington made a great recovery, exploding his ball to the green, he missed a six-foot putt which would have given him a halve.

The next two holes they halved, each hitting out par fours, and the huge crowd was tense with excitement as they teed off up the hill to the 36th, a straight shot 395 yards away.

Harrington Keeps Lead.

At only one time during the match, with the exception of the end, did Simmons lead. That was when Harrington took a two-over-par five on the fourth hole of the morning round, while Simmons grabbed a four. Harrington squared it on the seventh, however, with a par-four, and then started to pound out a string of birdies and pars and take a commanding lead.

The ultimate loser parred the 170-yard eighth to go one up, birdied the par-five ninth to increase his lead to two, birdied the par-three 10th to make it three up, birdied the par-four 11th to go four up, and parred the short 12th to send Simmons five down. That was the longest lead Harrington enjoyed during the day, and it appeared the blonde junior high coach and former Linfield college star was on his way to his first tournament championship.

Simmons took the 13th, 14th and 15th with par-fours, but Harrington had another birdie in his system on the 16th, a three, to go three up again. And, he came through with still another birdie on the 17th to make his advantage four up. They halved the 18th to go to lunch, with Simmons still four down.

During that flaming exhibition of Harrington's on the first 18, he carded five birdies and seven pars, and went over perfect figures six times. Simmons shot 12 pars and no birdies.

Sink Long Putts.

Starting the afternoon, Simmons won the first hole when Harrington missed an 18-inch putt. They halved the next three holes, and on the 23rd Simmons cut his opponent's lead to two up when Harrington pitched over the green and took a five to Simmons' par-four. Harrington made a great shot on the 25th, when he stood almost in the center of a bush and smacked his ball onto the hole. On the 27th, Harrington, whose putter was alternately hot and cold during the afternoon, dropped a 15-footer for a birdie-four and a lead of three holes again.

They halved the 28th, then Simmons began to turn on the heat with a series of brilliant shots. He caressed a 20-foot putt on the 29th for a birdie-three, chopping Harrington's lead to two holes. He came right back on the 30th with a par-three, while Harrington was again pitching over the green, to become only one down.

Harrington's putter was boiling again on the 31st, coming through with a 12-footer to earn him a half, and the 32nd was also halved, each of them being one over par. Simmons then deduced the struggle on the 33rd, and after the next two holes were halved, he won on the home hole for the match and championship.

On the final 18 holes, Simmons whammed out 16 pars, one birdie and one over-par. Harrington shot 11 pars, one birdie, and went over perfect figures six times.

Come Through Hard Way.

Simmons, in blasting his way to the title, beat Dick Sleeter in the first round, 3 and 2; Jack Woods in the second round, 3 and 2; George Parsons of Seattle in the quarter-finals, 3 and 2; and Leland Clark, Jr., of Medford in the semi-finals, 3 and 2. Harrington, in shooting his way into the championship match, eliminated Tom Emmons in the first round, 3 and 2; Bob Woods in the second round, 3 and 2; and Hubert Bentley of Ashland, last year's

American Line Judge Calls Series of Foot-Faults On Australia's Adrian Quist at Disconcerting Moment

By Gayle Talbot
 PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The glittering Davis cup, symbolic of world team tennis supremacy, remains in these United States for another year, and the maligned foot-fault has reared its ugly head again.

When Donald Brad had finished polishing off Adrian Quist of Australia by scores of 6-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the match that settled the challenge round out at the Germantown Cricket club yesterday, Frank Hunter, an old American internationalist, said, "Gee, it made me feel like I was in Paris again."

Hunter had reference to the fact after the French had won the big trophy from America 11 years ago they were very stubborn about turning it loose again. Visiting American teams complained French line judges were extremely valuable in the French cup defense, and international black looks were exchanged one year when Wilmer Allison thought he had defeated Gene Borota of France in the deciding match but couldn't make it stick.

As Quist Threatened

What happened yesterday was that an American line judge, one Harold La Bar of New York, called a series of disconcerting foot-faults against Quist at the exact point in the opening set when the little Australian was blazing hot and threatening to give the world top amateur a trimming.

Whether Quist in any circumstances could have licked Budge and carried the challenge round to the final match between Bobby Riggs and Jack Bromwich is subject to serious doubt, but the decisions cost the invader whatever chance he had and made the crowd of over 9,000 fighting mad.

The referee had to calm them down twice.

Harry Hopman, captain of the Australians didn't complain. He said he thought Quist was foot-faulting. What the crowd and several prominent American tennis officials complained about was the way La Bar waited until the most crucial points of the all-important first set. It broke Quist's confidence so completely he proceeded to lose his service eight straight times, possibly a record for big-time tennis.

U. S. In Danger

Budge's tennis has been so indifferent on the previous day, when he and Gene Mako lost the doubles match to Quist and Bromwich by 0-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, there was active fear he would lose to Quist. Some experts still thought after the match Quist might have pulled it off but for his service lapses.

As things turned out, Budge's victory was the vital one, because Bromwich beat the tar out of Riggs in the concluding singles match, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, giving America a final winning margin of only 3-2 over the scrapping Aussies.

Six-Man Football Is Proposed for Class B Schools

Six-man football, that boon to small high schools which haven't the man-power, the playing facilities nor the do-or-die to properly equip grid squads of the regulation 11-man variety, seems almost certain to make its debut among class B high schools of Jackson county this season.

Regulation 11-man variety, it is believed they would also be in favor of the program about a week ago, and now almost every coach in the nine county institutions is burning with enthusiasm over the prospect of sending abbreviated pigskin outfits into action. Woods has contacted several of the class B skipper, and a meeting will be held sometime this week to attempt organization of a league. At this time there seems little doubt but that a circuit will be formed, with six and possibly eight county high schools entering teams.

Riney Cook, ex-Linfield college athlete and new Phenix high head man is positively in favor of the six-man grid game, and so are Roy Parr, Jr., new Talent school superintendent; Lester Wilson, Prospect coach; and Ken Hubert, Central Point mentor. Arnold Goenell, starting his first year at Eagle Point and Ken Schilling, new Butte Falls coach, hadn't yet been contacted by Woods, but it was believed they would also be in favor of the program. Gold Hill and Rogue River high schools have yet to name their athletic directors.

Jacksonville and Central Point had planned to produce regulation 11-man football teams but according to the Jacksonville coach, both would be only too glad to secede the idea and go wholeheartedly for the six-man variety. If the rest of the county's schools fell in line and formed a league, there is no logical reason why such a loop can't be organized.

Smaller prep schools the nation over are turning to the game for their autumn sports activity, and the county would prove an ideal setup for a league.

Rules for six-man football don't differ greatly from those of the 11-man variety except in the size of the playing field and minor differences in equipment and offensive tactics. Teams composed of a half-dozen pigskinners play on a gridiron 80 yards long, instead of 100, and 40 yards wide. Cleated shoes are not allowed in the six-man game, but other equipment is the same. The backfield man receiving the ball from center on offense must pass the ball either forward or laterally, at least two yards before the attacking team can attempt an advance.

In the six-man variety, there are three players on the line and three in the backfield, on offense—two ends and a center, and a fullback, quarterback and one halfback. Aggregations on defense can spread out in any fashion, as in the 11-man game. On six-man clubs, every player but the center is eligible to receive forward passes, which throws the game wide open. Reports from different parts of the country where the game has been played state that it is far more spectacular, from the customers standpoint, than is the regulation 11-man game, with only 12 men on the field, the ball is in plain sight at all times, it is passed with wild abandon because all but one of the offensive teams' players are eligible to receive, and there are laterals, reverses, and every other form of football magic produced as

Roscoe Turner Recaptures World's Air Speed Laurels

By Deron Francis (Associated Press Aviation Editor)

Cleveland, Sept. 6.—A big guy, with a wide, toothy grin, has recaptured the world's choicest aviation trophy for the United States at a speed which those foolish aviationists used to write about in the days of the one-hoop shay.

Snugly seated in a silver-hued racing plane, Roscoe Turner of Chicago breezed around a ten-mile course for 8 1/2 minutes yesterday to jack up to 283.419 miles an hour the pace for the 300-mile Thompson trophy race.

In annexing the final event of the three-day national air races, Turner exceeded by 19 miles an hour the pace set by Michel Detroyat of France in the same race at Los Angeles in 1936.

As an overture to the squabble among eight entries for $45,000 worth of prize money, Turner and Earl Ortman of San Diego fought a private duel for the lead almost the entire distance. Ortman had out-flown Turner at Oakland only last May.

Ortman fought odds too great to overcome after Turner took an option on the lead at the 50-mile mark. Turner's ship, rounding the pylons and flattening into the straightaways at a 300-mile-an-hour clip, was faster. Moreover, toward the close Ortman's oil pressure began ebbing. With his control stick in his stomach, he pulled high, ready to abandon ship with his parachute if necessary. His windshield was sprayed with oil. He wrestled the airport control tower a warning, anxious to finish if he could, even with a frozen motor. The field was cleared for him.

With three laps to go, he hung doggedly to Turner's heels. He flashed over the line in second place, wheeled about, cut his ignition switch and shot in blindly, guided entirely by radioed instructions.

For Turner, victory was peculiarly consoling. Apart from the fact that he pocketed $18,000 first place prize money and $4,000 more for setting a new Thompson record, he finally broke through to cross the finish line ahead of the field in an event which he had "blown" twice.

On two other occasions Turner "cut" pylons and lost the race. On another, he pulled up with victory in sight when his motor went dead.

Sound producing equipment will be installed in the new British steamship Mauretania to provide entertainment in all parts of the ship from radio, graphophone, or microphone, or microphone sources.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who stumbled around for weeks without suffering any damage beyond that to their self-esteem, today awoke to the face the law of averages, as well as the Reds and Cubs, are catching up with them.

Emerging from yesterday's holiday festivities on the short end of two games with Chicago, the battered Buccaners also discovered their National League lead had been cut by two full games. For while the Cubs were whipping them, 3-0 and 4-3, the Reds were taking 4-3 and 4-2 decisions from the Cardinals—a combination of circumstances which left Cincinnati only four games off the pace in second place and Chicago five games away in third.

Even the breaks went against the Pirates, except at the box office. An overflow crowd of 42,545, the greatest of the day's total big league attendance of 179,560, at Forbes field saw the Cubs score three unearned runs to take the first game despite Ed Brandt's five-hit pitching job. They then won the second on a ninth-inning ground rule double by Carl Reynolds and Hank O'Dea's single.
