DEEP AFFECTION TIES ELIZABETH TO QUEEN MARY

High Circles Deny Discord in Great Britain's Royal Family — Causes of Rift Rumors Are Explained

By H. L. PERCY
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON.—(UP)—The deep affection between Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary precludes any reference in court circles to the possibility of mother-in-law trouble.

In fact, Elizabeth is the queen-mother's favorite daughter-in-law, the girl she would have picked for her second son and the type of woman she would have liked the Duke of Windsor to marry, high circles say.

Elizabeth is well aware that she owes a great deal to Queen Mary since she ascended the throne, and the British court today is a happy, peaceful home.

Reports published abroad that the two queens do not agree over the education of the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, and about the management of Buckingham palace are flatly and emphatically denied by all quarters in which such a delicate question could be broached.

Rumors Denied

Among the rumors which are denied specifically by sources close to the palace are the following:

1. That Queen Mary did not go to Balmoral with the king and queen either for last year's summer vacation or this because Elizabeth would not let her ride in the royal automobile.

2. That Quen Elizabeth has copied Queen Mary's usual salute to the crowds, and wishes that Mary would not use it any more.

Other rumors were that Elizabeth was trying to out-do her mother-in-law in the matter of hats, and that Queen Mary had her hand kissed too often to please Elizabeth.

Palace Sources Explain

Both reports were ridiculed by palace sources which gave the following explanation of the probable reason for them.

When Edward VIII abdicated and George and Elizabeth came to the throne they were almost totally unprepared for the duties before them.

It was Edward who had been educated all his life for the role of kingship, and there were innumerable things, small and large, which George and Elizabeth had to learn quickly.

For instance, neither could get accustomed to the idea that it was court etiquette for them to finish an interview, and that nobody may leave the royal presence without the royal permission. Naturally shy, George used to keep visitors in long, embarrassing conversation until he learned the habit of graceful dismissal.

It was in just such things that Queen Mary, with 25 years of queenship behind her, could be the best, and probably only teacher.

So Queen Mary, the sources said, set herself out to shepherd the young couple through those first trying months of their reign. She set herself a time limit, the coronation, after which she intended to relax, rest and have a good time.

Part of the queen-mother's plan was to accompany the young king and queen on every official occasion possible.

From this continual chaperoning arose the rumor that Mary was loathe to surrender the royal limelight to her surplanting daughter-in-law, and that she still intended to rule the regal roost with the firm hand.

Mary Enjoys Rest

By the time all the coronation festivities were over, Queen Mary felt that George and Elizabeth had got a grip on their job, and she undid the apron strings.

For the first time certainly in three years she was able to sit back and take it easy. And that is what she had been doing ever since, and is likely to continue to do for the rest of her life.

Company In Red But Strong For Wage, Hour Act

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—(AP)—In reporting a net loss of $1,796,169 for the fiscal year ending June 30, the Pepperell Manufacturing company today commended the federal wage and hours act.

The company, with cotton mills in Maine, Georgia, Alabama and Massachusetts, asserted the "law putting a floor on wages and a ceiling on hours" may be expected "to make the road more difficult for the unregenerate employer who chisels on hours or wages or both.

"We are not among those who believe such a law to be unwise, under present conditions. It constitutes, we think, a worth-while attempt to correct certain abuses which other methods failed to correct. * * * "

Staying at Sandringham, visiting close friends; touring the antique stores; occasionally planting a tree or opening a bazaar for one of her pet charities; that is what Queen Mary likes to do these days.

She is an inveterate theater-goer and sees every worthwhile play in town.

Mary's chief, self-imposed task, nowadays, is helping to educate Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret. In this she does not in any way encroach on the plans of the king and queen.

PARADE, BARBECUE AMONG FEATURES ON BIG PROGRAM

a polo game between the Medford Riding Academy and Sams Valley.

One of the main attractions of the fair will be the big free barbecue which will be served at the city hall beginning at 6 p. m. The menu consists of barbecued beef, potatoes, brown gravy, sandwiches and coffee. It is all free, patrons being expected to provide only their own service.

A dance in the spacious Gold Hill pavilion from 9 to 2 will climax the fair. Jack Bennett and his orchestra of Grants Pass, considered one of the best dance bands in southern Oregon, will provide the music.

Started in 1933 as a small community event, the fair has grown each year with astonishing rapidity until this year it will embrace the entire northwest part of the county. As it is the only fair held in Jackson county, it has been attracting increasing numbers of patrons each year.

Widow Spider Hardy

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—R. J. Massey thought he had disposed of a black widow spider when he killed it and placed the body in a sealed jar. Now he has 36 little black widows, for the mother's eggs hatched within the jar after she was dead.

Takes Bank Post

WALLA WALLA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Rives W. Waller, secretary-treasurer of the Walla Walla Production Credit association, today announced his resignation to accept the vice-presidency of the First National bank of Baker, Ore., effective September 10.

Town Jailer Angus McSween at Glace Bay, N. S., got a surprise when his brother Daniel, walked in on him. They had not met for 20 years. Daniel left Cape Breton almost half a century ago and returned only on short visits.

TO ASK EXPLANATION IN DISMISSAL OF TWO GOVERNMENT WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee decided today to ask two federal departments for explanations of the dismissal of two federal officials who reportedly lost their jobs in Georgia because they supported Senator George in his campaign for renomination.

The committee said it would ask the National Emergency council and the Reconstruction Finance corporation for "their side of the story" concerning dismissal of Earle Cocke, Georgia NEC director, and Edgar B. Dunlap, RFC attorney at Atlanta.

Committee investigators made their report on the dismissals this morning.

They also reported on an investigation of charges of irregularities in the registration of voters in some Georgia counties. The committee ordered a further investigation of the charges, which were brought by E. S. Fuller of Savannah, Ga.

Fuller, the committee said, charged individuals in Georgia were given money to pay their poll tax in order to register for next Wednesday's primary election.

BLAZE AT FORT LEWIS RAZES POST EXCHANGE BUILT IN WORLD WAR

TACOMA, Sept. 9.—(AP)—A spectacular fire late last night destroyed the Post exchange at Fort Lewis near here as hundreds of soldiers battled to keep the blaze from spreading to other buildings in the fort.

The building housed the post's tavern, newstand, grocery, meat market, warehouse and offices. The fire quickly spread through the old building, a wooden structure.

The flames were believed to have started in the lunch counter kitchen.

Maj. Mark W. Clark, public relations officer at the post, said the loss had been placed at $50,000.

He explained that the exchange was a co-operative undertaking, all profits from which were turned back to enlisted men. The building, a rambling one-story frame structure, constructed during the World war for the Y. M. C. A., was owned by the government, and the contents, entirely the property of the Post exchange corporation were fully covered by insurance, Major Clark said.

BANCROFT LEAD SHRINKS WITH BELATED RETURNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Belated returns in the close race for Republican nomination for United States senator from California, whittled ultra-conservative Philip Bancroft's lead over Ray Riley to 2,469 votes today.

With all but 86 of the state's 12,438 precincts reported, unofficial returns gave Bancroft 287,769 votes and Riley, a veteran state official, 285,300. The count included nearly 1,000 of the 7,000 Republican absentee ballots handed out.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP)—European war news took the principal blame today for another sinking spell in the stock market.

Traders scampered to neutral territory early in the session as the German-Czech controversy apparently became more complicated.

Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

A cable to a stock exchange firm from its foreign correspondent about lined up the overseas situation from the standpoint of Wall street. It said: "Consider present position in Europe as a poker game with table stakes including a full house versus a busted flush. Believe matters clarified within four days. Meanwhile, stock markets must remain victims of irresponsible rumors."

DICTATOR SHOUTS BOAST TO WORLD AT NAZI MEETING

In Prague, Czechoslovak Premier Milan Hodza was flooded with telegrams, many repeating the new slogan: "Not one millimeter farther!" in concessions to the Germanic minority.

British Clamor Grows

Signs of growing public clamor in London for an unmistakable warning to Germany to take no step that might drag Europe into war weighed on British cabinet deliberations.

France pressed Britain to follow her example of war preparedness. One source said the reason was that British diplomacy had failed to convince Germany Britain would fight if Czechoslovakia were invaded.

France, already on a virtual war footing, closely supervised traffic across the Rhine into Germany, notified naval reserve officers to be ready for duty and cancelled leaves of employes of government-owned communications systems.

Some Britons, mindful of the indecision and delays of British diplomacy in 1914, believed a new, stronger warning to Germany was being prepared.

Germany's anti-communist allies rallied to pledge her moral support.

Italy was prepared "for eventualities" and the Informazione Diplomatica, considered by some to be virtually a government communique, advised Prague to forestall a "very grave crisis."

Japs Pledge Moral Aid

An informed source in Tokyo said Japan had assured Germany of her "moral support."

The nazi view was that a plebiscite would give Britain a chance to "save face" over the "failure" of the unofficial British mediation mission in Czechoslovakia to achieve a peaceful compromise. They argued that the plebiscite is "a democratic idea."

Hitler has firmly rejected all Czechoslovak offers.

German newspapers have exploited the whipping Wednesday of a sudeten German deputy by a policeman at Maehirsch-Ostrau, Czechoslovakia. The opinion gained that the German public was being prepared for the idea that Germany must help the sudeten Germans to establish law and order.

In Spain the government reported it had reoccupied positions in the Caballos mountains captured this week by insurgents on the northeastern front. Other sectors were quiet.
