Ranch Colony Set Honors Carpenters At Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. V. Carpenter were guests of honor at a delightful dinner party at the Balade ranch home last evening.

Hosts included members of the ranch colony who have enjoyed the hospitality of the Carpenters during the summer months. Forty-four were present at the party.

The party served as a sort of farewell for Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter who are planning a sojourn in the east. Mrs. Carpenter will leave Medford tomorrow with their daughter Julie whom she will enroll at the Catherine Branson school in Rose, Cal., for the school year. She will then proceed to Clairmont, Cal., where the Carpenters' son Harlow will attend the Norton school.

Quisenberry Home Has Three Guests

Guests of Mrs. W. F. Quisenberry at her home in the Vawter apartments are her two daughters, Mrs. Norman Hampton, Jr., of Portland, and Mrs. Lois Day of Los Angeles, and Miss Marjorie Smith of Portland.

Louis Insists Upward Hair-Style Here To Stay

By Betty Clarke

AP Feature Service Writer

Not so fast, ladies. You've rushed for this bird's-nest hair-do so enthusiastically you've got it all wrong. It's all wrong, that is, as far as the American Hair Design Institute is concerned.

The institute has just held a special session to clarify the problem; awarded prizes for the right kind of up-hair to emphasize the findings.

"It's a movement upward—not placement on top," insists Louis, institute director. "Popping a batch of curls on top is ridiculous."

Louis advocates soft waves tipped by ringlets at the side of the face—not tight curls marching all over the head in military rows.

Waves over the ears will eliminate that pulled-up look, he points out. A swirl in back will help keep a long, thin neck from looking even longer and thinner.

How can these waves and curls be kept in place? He pointed to the first-prize hair-style.

"It's hinged all around the top of the head with just a few hair pins. It's dressed properly in the beginning. There are no fasteners of any kind. No lacquer. Not even wave set. We just use plain water and a few hair pins. If the hair is done properly it will stay that way."

One or two ornamental combs that fit into the general contour of the hair-style are all right.

"But PLEASE," pleads Louis, "not ten or fifteen combs stuck all over the head—and STILL not holding the hair up."

Louis insists that the upward hair-style is here to stay.

"I predicted it in 1926," he says, pointing to a book full of clippings. "And," he boasted, "I can predict what the style will be in 1939 and 1940."

This is his prediction: a coiffure extremely high in front with pin curls, combed to give an old-fashioned pompadour effect, just above the forehead.

"Very feminine," Louis concludes.
