

DEATH AND RUIN IN WAKE OF WORST GALE IN CENTURY

The wind was added, at some points, the destruction of fire. At one point on the Cape Cod canal, the whole population of 2000 rushed to the village's one hill to escape inundation from great waves which made the town an island.

Of the seven states hit by the storm, Massachusetts had the largest number of dead—well above 50. Others where fatalities were high were Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York.

Looting started at several points. The storm flooded hundreds of miles of rich farm lands, ripped out bridges, railroads and highways, demolished buildings, sank boats, destroyed livestock, tore down telegraph and light wires and left scores of communities isolated in chaos and fear.

Volunteer workers dropped workaday tasks to search debris for bodies of missing victims or rescue residents marooned by floods. Red Cross authorities mobilized their forces to feed and comfort hysterical refugees.

Coast guard headquarters in Washington dispatched 2500 men and scores of cutters to the storm scene. Gotham Missed

The hurricane, which spared the Florida and the southern coast as it curved northward, by a similar fluke missed New York city in its haphazard march of destruction.

Sections of Manhattan and the Bronx were plunged into darkness for hours, and a power failure stranded several thousand subway patrons underground for several hours, but the rock-based skyscrapers of the city weathered the winds easily.

Torrential rains forced hundreds of residents in low-lying sections of the Bronx to flee to safety. Waves battered the entire 100-mile length of Long Island, washing away hundreds of small summer cottages and beach buildings.

Among them was a lighthouse that had withstood the sea's wrath for 75 years. Most victims of the "gold coast" villages were West Hampton, a summer playground for New York society, where at least 140 homes were wrecked.

A dozen bodies lay in the exclusive West Hampton Country club, many unidentified. Connecticut Hard Hit Whistling northward with unabated power, the hurricane struck Connecticut, already harassed by flood, and claimed at least 22 more victims. Gov. Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts declared a fuel and food emergency, and his council approved a $25,000 flood relief appropriation.

The storm paralyzed shipping in Boston Harbor, stopped railroad traffic to Montreal and tied up many of the state's highways. A tugboat, sinking in the harbor, carried seven men to death.

The situation was so extreme in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut authorities mobilized all possible forces—including the army, national guard, state health department workers, and Boy Scouts—for relief work.

Many towns, isolated by floods, were out of communication. Crop Loss High

The hurricane wrought extensive crop damage in New Jersey and the mainland of New York. Dozens of small craft along the Jersey shore were driven inland and shore buildings were ripped apart.

The rains stalled trains in the Hudson & Manhattan tubes for several hours and played general havoc with New York city's complicated transportation network.

Eastern New York, struck only by the "edge" of the storm, suffered from floods and blocked highways. More than 10,000 trees in Westchester, the nation's wealthiest county, were uprooted.

CZECHS EVACUATE SUDETEN REGION TO GERMAN CORPS

AGER, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Czechoslovak soldiers, gendarmes and police began retiring from the Sudeten German region at midday today as the first step toward carrying out the annexation of the territory by Germany.

They fell back by mutual agreement toward the "language frontier" line which separates the Czech-speaking areas from districts where German is the predominant language.

Simultaneously with their withdrawal, the Sudean "Free Corps" organized in Germany by Sudeten Leader Konrad Henlein marched in from all sides of the frontier.

The two military forces, however, did not meet during their marches. Reports reaching Ager from other districts said all was quiet and the Czechoslovak soldiers left in perfect discipline.

The only excitement was caused by a report three army tanks were en route from Palkau to Ager. In reality they were on their way out of the Sudeten territory.

As news of the evacuation spread the Sudetens immediately went on a wild holiday. Crowds eight and ten deep had stood all night in the streets of many towns in the belief the German army was coming.

No German troops were visible along the frontier this morning, however. The entire territory was a mass of swastika flags. The Sudetens saluted everybody, shouting "Heil Hitler."

Farmers driving ox carts and smoking crooked, long-stem pipes beamed as they raised their hands in the Nazi salute.

HUNTERS GALORE HINDER HUNTING

BAKER, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Deer hunters were reported today to be so numerous in the Medical Springs section they were almost afraid to hunt for fear of being mistaken for deer.

A state police officer said some hunters sat down in open places to wait for deer rather than go into brushy regions and chance being shot by the army of hunters.

Several have reported narrow escapes from bullets. Others tell of having to stay behind logs until hunters have tired of shooting.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(AP)—A minor swing to the selling side today eliminated some of the stock market's gains scored on the preceding three-day rally, but dealings shrank to the smallest in two weeks while Wall Street awaited the next turn of events in Europe.

Caution increased again all along the trading fronts as traders watched the aftermath of the British-French plan for dismemberment of Czechoslovakia. The hurricane disaster along the northeastern seaboard also was rated a factor in the shrinkage of speculative activity, although attention still was focused mainly on the European stage.
