A PEBBLE-- LOST THE 1924 WORLD SERIES FOR THE NEW YORK GIANTS! LINDSTROM, 3RD BASEMAN, MISSED AN EASY GROUNDER WHEN THE BALL HIT A PEBBLE AND BOUNCED OVER HIS HEAD, GIVING WASHINGTON THE DECIDING RUN IN THE 12TH INNING, 7TH GAME, ENDING THE SERIES... - Oct. 10, 1924, Washington, D. C. -

10-4-38

Lost by a Pebble

In all the history of the world series, no stranger match has ever been played than the crucial game at the end of the 1924 series at Washington, October 10, of that year. For the first time in 12 seasons, the seventh game was to be the deciding one. The New York Giants and the Washington Senators were tied three games to three. The seventh game went smoothly and evenly up to the 12th inning. The Giants were up first—and failed to score. The Senators needed only one run to win the game, the series, and a check for $5,909.64 for each of the 24 men on the club. First man at bat was Miller, third baseman. He was tossed out at first. Cowley, giant catcher, dropped Ruel's foul for an error. Then Ruel ripped out a double play third. Johnson, Senators pitcher, hit to Shortstop Jackson, who fumbled the ball permitting Johnson to reach first. Ruel safely held second. McNeely, Senators center field, was up. The stage was set for something to happen—nobody knew just what. McNeely threw his whole weight into the bat, slamming the ball straight as an arrow down the third-base line. The ball went fast and bounced viciously. Third baseman Lindstrom of the Giants crouched, reached for the ball—and missed it! Strange as it seems, the ball had been deflected at the critical moment by a tiny pebble directly in its path. It bounced clear over Lindstrom's head. Ruel calmly walked home for the winning run, ending the 1924 world series amidst a roar of excitement from the stands. Tomorrow: How many different ways can 10 horses finish a race?
