

MOODY'S REPORT DECLARED PROOF GOON LAW NEEDED

Revelations Confirm All Contentions of Farmers Says Shoemaker — Need of Union Protection Cited

HOOD RIVER, Oct. 21.—(Special) —The report of Ralph M. Moody, special prosecutor for the state in connection with Oregon's reign of labor terrorism, to Governor Martin confirms every contention advanced by the farmers of Oregon in behalf of their initiative measure to liberate Oregon from labor union gangsterism and racketeering," declares H. L. Shoemaker, president of the Associated Farmers of Oregon, in a statement released to the press commenting on the report.

"It substantiates the charge made by the sponsors of this initiative measure that Dave Beck, chief of the Teamsters International in 11 western states and his lieutenant, Al Rosser, boss of the Portland Teamsters union, entered into a conspiracy to control the destiny of labor and industry in Oregon, and in furtherance of this conspiracy Rosser and his hand-picked henchmen resorted to nearly every conceivable kind of violence and vandalism.

Huge Sum Used
"It substantiates our charge that Rosser had absolute control of the expenditure of more than half a million dollars of the earnings of the rank and file of the unions he dominated, and that considerable of this money was expended in excessive salaries and in hiring thugs and gangsters to beat up workers, bomb and burn property, and to otherwise violate their criminal laws.

"It substantiates our charges that Rosser, who was recently convicted for conspiracy in burning down a mill in Salem, lived in luxury to the tune of $100,000 a year, spending money far in excess of his salary in buying a farm, pedigreed stock, race horses, and in the settlement of his domestic difficulties, while the members of the unions he controlled struggled to eke out an existence.

"It substantiates our charge that union funds were used to provide bail for Rosser's gangsters and to employ high priced lawyers to defend them in our courts.

Tried To Fix Prices
"It substantiates our charge that in furtherance of the Beck-Rosser conspiracy, the latter undertook to fix the prices for beer in the Portland area, to fix prices for the parking of automobiles, to fix prices for laundries, and to fix prices for Portland bakeries, and to police these business enterprises with his gangsters to the end that all competition would be eliminated.

"The report substantiates our contention that there is an absolute need of additional legislation to protect the rank and file of union labor from further raids on their treasury by labor bosses and racketeers, to prevent industry from being driven into bankruptcy by labor bosses and racketeers, and finally to protect the public from the blockading of trade and commerce by the self same labor bosses and racketeers.

"Our initiative measure affords this protection—affords it to labor, affords it to industry, and affords it to the public. Its enactment is mandatory if we are to make certain that our state will not be visited again with another reign of labor terrorism similar to the one from which we are now experiencing a lull."

Top Debutante Can't Sew But Can Scramble Eggs

By Joan Durham (AP Feature Writer)

NEW YORK—They've picked the No. 1 glamour girl of New York's debutante season already.

Of course raven-haired Brenda Diana Duff Frazier won't have her debut for two full months yet, but she gets around—every night—and neither the columnist nor the stags lines await debuts to award popularity prizes.

Well, she does have everything—or nearly everything. Looks, brains, poise, money. At 17, her lustrous hair, which she won't brush up from its long flowing bob, her ivory skin, artlessly arched eyebrows and carefully graceful walk would make a professional model envious.

That's the way the columnists see her—at night clubs and theaters. I went calling on Brenda at her home to see what sort of girl a top notch New York debutante really is.

She is amazingly human and friendly. Brenda and her mother, Mrs. Frederic N. Watrous, live in a luxurious, but homelike double-suite in "Carlton House," at the Ritz-Carlton hotel.

Calling on them is pleasant and stimulating, although Mrs. Watrous is not fond of letting Brenda be exhibited A for how-the-other-half-lives excursions.

As you go down the long oriental-rug covered hall to Brenda's suite you hear snatches of a chatty mother-and-daughter conversation. Then, before you can sit down on a chaise longue Brenda comes in—swishing along in a rich pink brocade negligee.

She leads you to a cozy little sitting room, done in rose and blue, lets you have your choice between a down-filled love seat and low chair, and apologizes for not having had time to dress. Her mother, a tall, bluish woman with a brisk walk and a quick, direct way of talking, comes in from her adjoining living room and says pleasantly but earnestly:

"There's just one thing I hope you'll do. And that is—leave out the money part." As her mother departs, Brenda explains—

"It's so cheapening—saying I'm the richest debutante and all of that. I don't know where they get those figures."

"Those figures" have included published estimates of five to eight millions Brenda is supposed to have

PENN STATE TOPS NATIONS SCORERS

SEATTLE, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Penn State is the nation's top offensive team, rankings prepared by the American football statistical bureau here disclosed today. The Penn State team has gained an average of 582.3 yards per game against three opponents to date.

Carnegie Tech and Fordham also had a better than 500-yard per game average. Fordham ranks first defensively, although the Rams have played but one tough opponent. Fordham foes have averaged only 55.7 yards per game. Georgetown and Duke rank second and third.

The bureau's detailed tabulation showed the air forces of Uncle Sam's navy lead the national in distance gained via the air. The University of Texas, with 49 completed passes in three games, led in this respect.

Dave O'Brien, Texas Christian quarterback, is the leading individual ground gainer among the 83 schools tabulated. His running and passing accounted for 825 yards in four games.

SIX-MAN FOOTBALL SLATED SATURDAY VAN SCOYOC FIELD

Six-man football, the abbreviated variety of the grid game which is sweeping the country, will make its debut in Medford tomorrow afternoon at Van Scoyoc field at 2:30 o'clock, when Jacksonville high meets Talent high in a regular Jackson county conference tilt. Although the six-man game has been played throughout the county all season, this will mark its first appearance on a Medford gridiron, and a large crowd is expected to attend for a look at the thrilling, forward-passing spectacle.

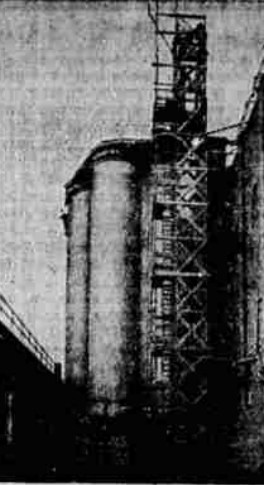

A close game is expected. Jacksonville is undefeated in conference play, with two wins and no losses, while Talent has battled Phoenix and Gold Hill in tight contests.

Cosch Bob Woods of Jacksonville said today his starting lineup would consist of White, center; Metzger and Woodard, ends; and Rians, Gunter and Leroy, backs. In six-man football, three players perform on the line and three in the backfield.

Coffee Elevator

In line with its policy of keeping ever in the forefront of progress in its industry, A. Schilling & Company has under construction at its San Francisco plant an imposing six unit reinforced concrete storage elevator rising the equal of seven stories into the air. The structure, consisting of six circular elevator bins, four wing bins and two star bins, marks a revolutionary step in the warehousing of coffee.

Built by a continuous construction process, the structure is being cast all in one piece. In both design and method of construction it is the first of its kind for coffee storage. It is believed to be the largest coffee storage unit in the United States. In some respects it is similar to elevators constructed for grain storage but it contains many new and novel features designed specially to accommodate green coffee. The structure is particularly unique in that it permits not only the storage but also blending of the green coffee.

An ever increasing demand for Schilling Coffee has made necessary this facility for storage of green stock to supply the battery of coffee roasters. In constructing this super-modern coffee warehouse, A. Schilling & Company are again pioneering in the handling and packing of fine food products as they have for over half a century.
