TIGERS TO COAST IN PRACTICE FOR CLASH WITH BEND

Bob Verbick Only Casualty in Upsetting Klamath — Wally Eri May Get Wing Post — Howard Guard

Southern Oregon Conference

Klamath Falls	2	1	.667
Ashland	0	1	.000

With Bob Verbick, left end, definitely on the shelf for at least a week with a badly sprained knee, sustained in the closing minutes of the bitter Klamath Falls game Friday night, Medford high's Black Tornado football team will take things easy during practice sessions this week in preparation for the Bend Lava Bear game at Bend next Friday evening.

Remainder of the Tiger team came through the battle without serious injury, although they were all battered and bruised. With Verbick out of the Bend game, Coach Bill Bowerman said he would experiment by shifting Wally Eri, guard, to Verbick's wing post and above Dale Howard into Eri's guard position. The coach stated that Franklin Jones, who received a concussion in the Eureka encounter week-before-last, would be back in uniform Friday night and ready to step in at a guard slot. However, the mentor said that John Childers, because of his fine performance in the Klamath Falls, would open the game as Howard's running mate. Bend, defeated only once this season and winner over Albany Friday by a 20 to 7 count, is expected to furnish the Tigers with plenty of tough opposition. Last year, the Lava Bears walloped Medford 32 to 7, and the locals are determined to get sweet revenge this season.

KLAMATH FALLS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Improved skiing conditions in Crater Lake National park the coming winter were predicted today by representatives of the Crater Lake Ski club, Klamath Falls chapter, after a conference with Park Superintendent W. P. Leavitt.

Fordham Place Kick Rebounds; but Rams Gain on It

Halted by Oregon in the third quarter of the intersectional game at New York, Fordham sent in Stanton (13), place kick artist, to try for a field goal. He kicked, but the ball hit a pyramid of players and bounded back to Fortunato (27) who held for Stanton. Fortunato caught it and ran it back to the 13-yard line before being downed. Note Nilsen (73), Oregon quarter, hanging head down. Robertson (14), Oregon end, was spilt just short of spilling the kick. Holovaty (26) Fordham back, was flipped on his face. Fordham won, 26 to 0.—(AP. Photo.)

JUNIOR GRIDMEN PLAY G. P. HERE WEDNESDAY; WIN WILL CINCH FLAG

Medford Junior high school's football team will shoot for its fourth straight victory here tomorrow night at the stadium, clashing with the strong Grants Pass Freshman outfit. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

In case Coach George Harrington's Juniors finish on the long end, they will clinch the southern Oregon Junior high championship.

Two lineup changes will be apparent at the kickoff, Bill Wall being at left end in place of Roger Barker, and Bob Stead starting at quarterback instead of Clifton Jones. Bob Mitchell will take Wall's center post. Remainder of the backfield will see Curt Hopkins at full, B. Weber at right half and Cato Wray at left half.

The Medford Juniors defeated the Grants Pass Frosh last Friday at Grants Pass, 6 to 0, in a tough encounter.

BEAVER INJURED BACK IN LINEUP

CORVALLIS, Oct. 25.—(AP)—With Walt Jalsma, tackle, and Bob Pollard, guard, back in the lineup after several weeks on the bench with injuries, Oregon State college's football team plunged into practice today for a game at Berkeley Saturday with California.

Coach Lon Stiner said injuries were only minor in Oregon State's defeat of Washington State last Saturday.

Coach Jones, declaring Multnomah field as "a mighty hard place to play," said his boys came through the Stanford game without serious injury and added:

Medford-Klamath Crowd Falls Shy of 6000 by 550

That huge Medford-Klamath game crowd didn't quite reach 6000 spectators, after all, but it lacked only a few hundred of that number and for publicity purposes it is perfectly legitimate to report the attendance at a cool half-dozen thousand. When you exaggerate an attendance figure by only a hundred or so, you are well within the bounds of truth as practiced by every branch of sport or amusement.

According to C. G. Smith, principal, there were exactly 4855 tickets checked in at the gate Friday night. They included those purchased by patrons and those of the complimentary variety. Add to that number about 600 students who were admitted on their student body tickets, and you have a grand total of 5455 souls who witnessed the Black Tornado blast the Pelicans, 6 to 0.

That's about 550 short of the 6000 reported, which was estimated off-hand by several observers. Although the mob didn't quite total 6000, we don't believe that anybody is mourning about the attendance. And, for the benefit of those who like to know who gets all that filthy news, the answer is Medford high school. Yes, the local institution takes the entire median this season. Klamath and Medford working on a home-and-home basis; that is Medford receives all the gate receipts at Medford and Klamath does the same when the battle is waged in Klamath Falls. Last season the Pelican school took all the money, as the game was staged there.

If there is a better football-drawing town in the state, outside Portland, than is Medford, we don't know.

English Baffles Students

Out of 2,837 prospective students who took the required English test for entering the university, 1,714 failed. Percentage of those who passed was 62.8, or 3 per cent less than last year.

MURDOCK PINIONS HUSKY M'DONALD IN HECTIC MATCH

Sockeye Jack McDonald played it smart last night in the Medford armory, wisely patting the mate before Paul Murdock could complete his devastating Alabama thunderbolt hold, but the flash of wrestling genius did the big ex-lodger little good as Murdock continued his undefeated ways with a two-out-of-three fall victory in a bitterly fought main event.

It took Murdock 33 minutes to grab the initial tangle. After weakening McDonald with terrific headlocks and scissor holds, Paul clamped on his payoff thunderbolt maneuver, but before he could start rolling McDonald the latter pounded the canvas. Sockeye's action in giving up before receiving the full punishment of the hold probably only prolonged the match. As it was, McDonald was able to come back, whereas if he had allowed Murdock to give him the full heat the bout undoubtedly would have been finished then.

Sockeye evened the score two minutes later, when he obtained his side strip. He set Murdock up for the fall by slamming him into the ropes, then exploding right hooks into his mid-section as he rebounded. With Paul in the property weakened condition, McDonald whipped on his clincher and handsome Paul hollered when.

The end came at the 37-minute mark, after some wild-eyed action. McDonald grabbed Murdock and hoisted him to his shoulders. He slammed him to the mat several times, then picked him up and thundered toward a corner, apparently to ram Paul's head against the ring post. But a little whizzer-punching, but not much, while Paul stuck to the legitimate at all times.

McDonald, one eye black and his nose and forehead discolored, said today it was one of the hardest matches he ever had. He remarked that he hoped Promoter Mack Lillard would rematch him with Murdock on next week's program, and that he believed he could beat him.

Pete Belmont used shoulder stands the second and fourth rounds to wallop Midsouth Buddy Knox in the middle event, after Knox took the middle fall with a leg-breaker in the third heat. As usual, the Mad Italian used every dirty maneuver in the book, and at times Knox fought himself to such an extent that it was a mad-house. Pete took the deciding fall after blasting dropkicks to Knox's body.

Frankie Schroll, absent from here for five years, brought back a great hold from South America to take the lone fall from Monte LaDue in the opener. The tumble came in the third round, following a blood-curdling imbroglio during which the Frenchman bit, pulled hair and gouged eyes until the capacity crowd was in near-hysterics.

Finally, after taking untold punishment, Schroll unswayed with his new maneuver—the crocodile clutch—and LaDue was plenty through for the evening. The hold somewhat resembles the inverted surboard, but is manipulated by the legs, which wind around the unlucky opponent's neck and stretch his arms backward.
