J. E. B. STUART Confederate general COVERED MORE THAN 80 MILES WITH ARTILLERY AND 1200 CAPTURED HORSES IN 27 HOURS! (Oct. 11-12, 1862)

10-28-38

Stuart's March One of the most amazing feats in military history was the speedy return of General J. E. B. Stuart to Virginia after a successful raid on Chambersburg, Pa., a union stronghold, for the second time within a few months.

So exhausted became Union General McClellan's command in chasing Stuart that nearly all of his cavalry horses broke down, rendering a remount indispensable before he could advance on the enemy.

Stuart reached the shores of Virginia at noon of October 12, having had but one man wounded and two picked up a total of 1200 horses. Encumbered by these and by his artillery, he was forced to exercise the greatest care in riding clear around the Union army of the
