Mrs. Lloyd Hamcock and Mrs. James Harrison were hostesses Thursday evening at the latter's home on Alameda street for a party honoring Mrs. Robert E. Patterson.

The delightful affair was two-fold in purpose, first to reveal the marriage of Miss Maxine Thompson to Robert E. Patterson and second to give the recent bride with a miscellaneous shower.

The honoree was the recipient of many lovely gifts during the party after which cards were played for the remainder of the evening. Mrs. Dean Falwell and Miss Georgia Webb were awarded prizes for winning card scores.

Guests present included Mesdames Bob Lewis, Lloyd Johnson, Bob Herndon, Lynn Mills, Dean Falwell, Dick Pharo, Dick Mann, Fred Woodbridge, Ted Greer and Leon Furness and the Misses Catherine Mann, Georgia Webb, Margarie Moran, Dorothy Whilton, Alice Huff, Alice Walton and Beale Dean.

Miss Thompson and Mr. Patterson were united in marriage October 20 in Vancouver, Wash. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Patience O'Hara Thompson of Crescent City, formerly of Medford. She attended the Ashland schools and the Southern Oregon Normal school. For the past six years she has made her home in this city and is a popular member of the younger set. She is associated with the City Water department here.

Splendid Program To Be Presented By Piano-Violin Team

The home of Mrs. Margaret Patrick, 106 Crater Lake avenue, will be the scene of the second of a series of musical presentations sponsored by the Medford Music club Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Making their initial appearance in this city will be Elizabeth and Harlow Mills, violin and piano duo artists who will present their lecture-recital on Rumanian and Hungarian folk music in costume.

Elizabeth and Harlow Mills have made a special study of the customs and music of Rumania and Hungary. They were stimulated and aided in their research by Mr. Mills' brother, who is in the American diplomatic corps at Bucharest. The beautiful and striking peasant costumes which they wear for their recitals were brought by him on a recent trip to America.

The music presented on these programs falls naturally into two groups: Folk songs and dance music in their simpler form, and the more brilliant concert pieces based on this folk music.

Native of the west, Harlow Mills began the study of piano and composition under eminent teachers in Portland and in Los Angeles and won a scholarship at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He later studied in Italy under Rosario Scalerò, here Mr. Mills wrote his "Italian Sonata" for violin and piano. He also won the Beama award from Columbia university.

Elizabeth Mills, received her excellent musical schooling under Vera Barton, internationally known American concert artist and teacher. She won laurels from the time she first appeared in a solo recital at the age of 11 years. The Los Angeles Times says of Elizabeth Mills: "Her violin tone is melodious, her technical equipment adequate, and her sense of style unusually good."

The program to be presented Wednesday evening is as follows:

- I—Violin
- Rumanian Air.....Corder
- Rumanian Dance.....Bartok
- Hora Staccato.....Dinu-Helfetz
- II—Piano

Let Your Age Regulate The Sweep Of Your Curls

If you want to be ahead of the curling times, he points to a style like that shown in portraits of Napoleon's son. It's casual-looking, it's unwept, but there aren't any carefully-placed sausage curls or rolls. Just a cascade of soft curls falling over the forehead.

For any of these styles, Guillaume says, your hair must "learn" to grow from the roots.

As an aid to directing hair growth he suggests a snood-like hair-tie, a crocheted screen-like piece that goes across the back and is held in place by ribbons that tie around the head.

Be your age, warns Guillaume, French hair stylist, in discussing his latest versions of the upwept coilure.

If you're on the matronly side, don't go in for the sleek, smooth coilure with all the curls piled high in front. (That's his "nineteen hundred" style).

Instead try something on the order of his "Versailles." Push your curls to the back of your head and acquire a swirl here and there. That will give you distinction and chic.

Zontians Honor Amelia Earhart With Memorial

As a feature of the observance of the nineteenth anniversary of Zonta International, organization of executive women, Medford Zontians will make public Wednesday, November 9, plans for a memorial to Amelia Earhart. At the time of her disappearance Miss Earhart was a member of the New York Zonta club and had been active in Zonta affairs.

The Zonta Day broadcast, to be heard through the facilities of the National Broadcasting company as a feature of its regular "Let's Talk It Over" program. The broadcast will originate in Radio City, New York, at 1:15 p.m. (E.S.T.) November 9 and will be carried by station KFL, Los Angeles, at 10:15.

The Earhart memorial is to take the form of scholarship loans to be offered young women graduate engineering students interested in entering the field of aviation. The object is to encourage women to enter new industries and to turn attention to woman's potentiality in all phases of aviation work. It is pointed out that women will be valuable, not only as pilots, but in studies of the effect of altitude in relation to health and in numerous correlated phases.

Details of the memorial plan will be announced incident to the broadcast, by Alma Kitchell, mistress of ceremonies. From Hollywood, Calif., George Palmer Putnam, the national publisher and Amelia Earhart's husband, will formally acknowledge the honor bestowed by Zonta. Mme. Suzanne Silvercray, well known sculptress, will be heard in a tribute to the late aviatrix. Mme. Silvercray designed the trophy which was awarded Miss Earhart by the New York Zonta club on the occasion of the completion of her first solo flight across the Atlantic.

Amelia Earhart became a member of the Boston Zonta club in 1928 and later, when her work took her to New York, was invited to join that unit. Zontians have previously honored her with participation in a memorial of her first flight from Hawaii to the mainland, placed on a point overlooking the ocean near Honolulu.

Mrs. Suzanne Silvercray, speaker from New York, will describe the gallant young aviatrix as she knew her. Suzanne Silvercray is reputed to give a word picture of her subjects as cleverly as she portrays them in bronze. In addition to the Zonta Trophy, among her most famous works are portrait busts of ex-President Hoover in the Louvain Library and His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada.

In addition to establishing the Earhart Memorial Fund, Zonta has undertaken several projects for the year. Commenting on the year's program, Dr. Helen Pearce, Salem, Ore., international president, says: "This confederation of business and professional executive women wants to help create an enlightened public opinion. It plans to begin by increasing the knowledge of its own members. All Zontians are consumers and many are producers of commodities. Hence the program of the confederation for the current year includes study of the problems involved in reciprocal trade treaties and their effect on economic life. In many communities this question has great interest to the members of Zonta, who as executive women are conversant with economic needs. All study concerning it will be conducted with factual information and the result will be announced by the Public Affairs committee at the international convention to be held early next spring at the Greenbrier hotel, White Sulphur Springs, Virginia."

Mrs. Roosevelt Pays Brief Visit Here On Plane Trip

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the president, was a visitor in Medford yesterday for fifteen minutes while United Airlines plane stopped at the airport here.

Upon stepping out of the plane, Mrs. Roosevelt, smiling broadly, was welcomed by Jackson County Chamber of Commerce secretary, A. H. Banwell after which Miss Muriel Stocks, "Miss Jackson County," presented her with a gardenia corsage. The first lady was also welcomed by Frederick Heath, Jr., aviation committee chairman and by Mrs. A. Evan Reames. Frank DeSouza presented Mrs. Roosevelt with two boxes of Rogue valley pears.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore the same pale blue tulle tailored suit which she wore on her last visit here almost a year ago, a white blouse, a double strand of pearls, brown oxford and heavy little hose. She had left her hat in the plane. The chic note of Mrs. Roosevelt's ensemble was a large beige hand bag with the initials "E. R." monogrammed in gold letters.

In speaking to a small group of Medfordites who gathered in the airport lounge, Mrs. Roosevelt expressed her regret that the plane did not pass over Crater Lake. She said that she always travels by plane when going alone and that it is her favorite mode of travelling.

Mrs. Roosevelt left New York Wednesday enroute to Seattle to visit her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger. She plans to return to New York to vote in Tuesday's election.
