Chamber of Commerce Aid Sought for Representation of County at 1939 World Meet in London

Support of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce will be sought in representing Jackson county at a conference in London next summer of the Associated Country Women of the World, according to plans made by county women meeting here Monday afternoon.

The far-reaching benefits to be derived by Jackson county in this move were foreseen, and the co-operation of all county and civic organizations will be solicited. The Jackson county extension committee, in cooperation with Mrs. Mabel C. Mack, home demonstration agent, has launched this project with the following committee in charge: Mrs. Lee Port of Applegate, Mrs. Olive Floyd and Mrs. Rita Myers of Medford, the latter from the county committee alumni.

The help and inspiration brought to this section through representation in London and the publicity derived will be of untold value, it was pointed out Monday. Having

It's enough to make a camel hump

IN SAUDI ARABIA you can't just say "Slip on your burnoise, dearie, and come on over." Getting around is a problem, even for a camel—particularly when heavy loads must be carried. The land is virgin, covered with drifted sand. There are exactly no roads.

In such terrain, we are prospecting for oil—that the nation's supply may never fail. To solve the transportation requirements of this roadless land, men have been at work in a chain that reaches half way around the world.

Tractors which pull caterpillar-trailers have been specially devised. But even newer are the three-axle all-wheel drive trucks set on 13.50" x 20" six-ply tires, which carry a maximum inflation pressure of only 10 pounds per square inch, specially engineered for the job. You know the theory if you've ever let the air out of tires to escape a sand-trap—and then pumped them up again.

So that tire experts, engine experts, automotive experts could make genuine tests we had to take a tip from the movies and relocate Arabia in—of all places—Indiana. But we did it. In a land of factories, farms, and homes we discovered a sand-dune fastness like something out of Beau Geste—an Arabia at home where uncompromising practice could put theory to the test.

one of the county's own country women at the conference also will bring the honor of representing Oregon, since the state is not yet affiliated with the Associated Country Women, and will give opportunity for an exhibition of the work of homemakers here, the meeting stressed.

opens in May. The conference will be held in May and June, 1939, and delegates from the United States will be entertained at the world fair in New York on May 23, country women's day.

That the Associated Country Women of the World is deserving of support from all who wish to see the world's present state improved was stressed. It is a university of rural studies, a solvent of prejudice and ignorance, and will have world peace as its main topic at the coming conference, speakers said. The A. C. W. W., is the champion of a neglected and disregarded section of the world's population, its country women, who are yet the very basis of economy, they asserted.

Without the country homes there would be no stream of healthy reinforcement to the cities and workshops, it was pointed out. What the countrywoman has done to serve her country and help herself has been by her own organized effort; what she can do to serve the world by her unique powers and influence will be through her own organized international effort, the meeting was told.

To Sell Magazines Home extension units of the county are aiding the move to have a representative in London, and have launched magazine subscription sales. Sales chairman met with the county committee and Mrs. Mack Monday. The following have been named in the numerous units to take charge of subscriptions:

Mrs. Roland Beach, Medford; Mrs. Alta Croucher, Howard; Mrs. Goldie M. Wolf, Ashland; Mrs. Grace Fann, Griffin Creek; Mrs. Della Inlow, Bellview; Mrs. Minnie Fox, Lake Creek; Mrs. Thelma Vaughn, McLeod; Mrs. Cora Hall, Trail; Mrs. Abbie Butterfield, Evans Valley; Mrs. Thelma Taylor, Eagle Point; Mrs. Bruce Moffatt, Rosey Ann; Mrs. V. A. Brennenshelts, Sams Valley; Mrs. Charity Sanders, Oak Grove; Mrs. Zola Fick, Jacksonville; Mrs. Otto Caster, Phoenix; Mrs. Winnifred Mason, Talent, and Mrs. Lee Port Applegate.

ROSSER TAKEN TO POLK COUNTY JAIL

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 10.—(P)—Al E. Rosser, former secretary of Oregon AFL teamsters, was transferred from the Polk to the Multnomah county jail Wednesday where he was being held for Skamania county, Wa. Rosser, who has appealed a 12-year penitentiary sentence for complicity in an arson plot, has posted bail aggregating $86,500 in three Oregon counties but not in the Washington county, where he was under indictment on a charge of participating in a beer truck bomb plot. His bail in Skamania county was $25,000.

LOCAL FIRM PLANS SALES EXPANSION

Equipped for increased production in its new and more spacious quarters at 408 East Main street, Nestle Down Products, Inc., today was launched on a sales expansion program.

A distributing branch is already in operation in Portland and sales programs are now under way in other cities throughout the state, the company said. Distributing branches and sales campaigns are also scheduled for Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and eastern centers as rapidly as adequate production facilities are available in the new factory, it was stated.

In its new premises the company has four times the floor space it had at its former location, 216 1/2 East Main street and the factory is being equipped with the latest type machines for increased production. About 25 persons are now employed by the company.

The firm manufactures a number of products containing as basic insulating material the finest northern waterfowl down. The principal products are household and outdoor items, including the exclusive and original Nestle Down beauty sleeper and Nestle Down sleeper rolls. The products are said to meet the demand for light but warm bed coverings.

The basic construction principles of Nestle Down beauty sleepers are covered by patent and trade mark.

Loans to farmers from producer credit associations were reported at a five-year high of $185,000,000 at the mid-point of the 1938 financing season.

BALLET COMPANY WINS PRAISE FROM PRESS IN SANTA BARBARA SERIES

In Santa Barbara this past summer, when the San Francisco Opera Ballet which plays in Medford November 16 at the Holly theater, was featured on the summer bowl series with an orchestra from the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the press commented on the following day that the ballet gave "a magnificent performance." Magnificent is a highly descriptive adjective in the English language.

Youth, with delightful freshness and virility, is an outstanding characteristic of the dance group from the southern opera company. The average age of the artists is in the very early twenties, yet there is a maturity and finish to every movement, figuration, and gesture that combine to justify the word "magnificent." Christensen's choreography has a suavity and pace that allow the watcher to forget movement while conscious of a smooth flowing, colorful picture truly magnificent. Christensen, ballet master and choreographer has had unusual material to work with. Dancers such as Merle Williams, who excels in roles of broad characterization.

A fine technician, she controls a broad sweep of movement so vital to ballet pantomime for it is a pantomime of its own devising, never quite touching reality yet clear in its purpose; the exaggeration that is a part of the fantasy of ballet requires broad strokes with a subtle brush.

McAdoo Successor Named for Senate

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Gov. Frank F. Merriam today appointed Thomas M. Storke, publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press, to fill the unexpired term of Sen. W. G. McAdoo, who submitted his resignation by letter to the governor.

Storke is a close friend of McAdoo and although a Democrat, supported Governor Merriam for re-election on the Republican ticket.

McAdoo's term expires January 3, at which time Sheridan Downey, Democrat, will begin a six-year term.

Old English Still Spoken By Carolina Fishing Folk

MANTEO, S. C.—(UP)—Inlanders who visit North Carolina's primitive and romantic Outer Banks meet many strange sights and sounds, not the least of which is the native dialect spoken by the "bankers" who inhabit the narrow rope of land stretching thread-like from Norfolk, Va., to Wilmington, N. C.

The dialect is a strange mixture of native dialect and Elizabethan English, spoken on Roanoke Island, Ocracoke and other small fishing villages along the banks, and outsiders who sometimes stumble into the midst of this isolated colony are likely to be amazed by the language.

If the outlander asks a native for information about the fishing thereabouts, he may be told that "a foine toime to go fishing is at high toide."

Because many other words and phrases are so similar in texture and construction to the phraseology of Queen Elizabeth's day, historians and philologists believe there is a distinct although unexplained connection between the two.

Some contend earliest settlers brought their native English speech to the Carolina shores during the days of Queen Elizabeth, and that this has been preserved through generation after generation of natives who live on the "banks," seldom if ever getting very far away from their native hearth.

At Rodanthe they still sing the old English songs and ballads that were popular in the days of Ben Jonson and Shakespeare. The ghosts of Spenser and Chaucer, of Beowulf and Piers the Plowman are conjured up when one hears an able and affable man spoken of as "being witted and couthe."

A plump, good-looking girl is a "thoody may." The old word "fleech" means to coax or flatter, and when a man fails to keep an engagement or do his part, he has "scooped" you. When he dies he has "gone leeward," and if he goes to "the country" he is visiting the mainland across the bay.

Persons visiting the "banks" are told of the "ghosties" where the old wrecks lie scattered along the shore, of hens that have "roosties," or men who are "fitten" for certain services because their "nother wit" makes them "mindable." A flask of whisky will contain not a pint but a "point," and the wine from which wine is made is the "wine" and not the "vine."

STEWART PLEASED BY RESULTS IN OREGON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Former Sen. Frederick Stewart of Oregon express extreme satisfaction today over the return of Republicans to power in his state.

The ailing Stewart, who resigned early this year because of ill-health, told visitors he was "very proud of Oregon today."

"It is most gratifying to me and a source of extreme satisfaction the people of Oregon have seen fit again to put their almost complete trust in the Republican party," he said.

EAGLE POINT, Nov. 10.—(Sp)—The Eagle Point Townsend club will meet next Monday evening in the Oasis hall. All members are urged to be present.

Cat Gets Nightly Rat. PITTSBURGH, Cal.—(UP)—Mrs. Myrtle Ewald, proprietor of the Alpine hotel, is authority for the statement that Mercy, the hotel's 4-year-old Persian cat, has brought home a rat every night for the past two years. The only variations have been the occasional nights when he brought back two rats instead of one.
