Capacity Crowd at Craterian Showing Of Capra's Picture

Capacity crowds greeted the opening of Frank Capra's new production "You Can't Take It With You" when it had its local premiere yesterday at the Craterian theatre.

But capacity crowds are not unusual with any Capra picture. With a record of more successive triumphs than any other director, any Capra production has become accepted as a sure thing.

An artfully constructed tale which deftly harmonizes superb nonsense, whimsical romance, dent drama and a leaning of sentimentalism, "You Can't Take It With You" has the typical Capra touch that characterizes all his pictures.

It tells the story of two families whose philosophies of life are poles apart. One family, presided over by happy-go-lucky Grandpa Vanderhoff, lives merrily and somewhat madly in a sufficient-into-the-day atmosphere of untroubled fun. The other family, the social-conscious, money-grubbing, power-mad Kirbys, are the pursers of wealth.

The two families clash when the Kirby son and the Vanderhoff granddaughter fall in love. Tony Kirby, not so dollar-hound as his father, nor so class-conscious as his mother, believes his parents are genuine at heart and only synthetic stuffed shirts. He hopes that contact with the Vanderhoffs will change their attitude toward his marriage with Alice.

But the meeting between the two families is marked by an exhibition of typical Vanderhoff good humor which winds up with everybody—the Kirbys as well as the Vanderhoffs—in jail on a suspicion of anarchy.

Lionel Barrymore is perfect as Grandpa Vanderhoff, Jean Arthur supplies another grand performance in the role of Alice, and James Stewart adds to his laurels as Tony Kirby. Edward Arnold, as the elder Kirby, has what is probably the best role of his career, and Micha Auer as the ex-wrestling ballet teacher is a riot. One bit that he does will unquestionably create a new gag saying, "Ti Steenka" is said with such feeling that it literally brings the house down.

It takes 1,500,000 pounds of food every day to feed the boys in the CCC camps.

Rialto Drama

Frank Albertson and Adriana Ames are shown in a scene from "Fugitives for a Night," screen-drama of a little known side of Hollywood life—the part played by the studio stockade or better known as a handyman, Eleanor Lynn is co-starred with young Albertson in the new movie quiz picture which comes to the Rialto theatre for tomorrow and Wednesday only.

"High Command," a drama, will play as the companion feature.

Big Applegate

BIG APPLIGATE, Nov. 14.—(Sp)—Mrs. Anna Cate, of Medford, made a business trip to Rich Tuesday, and while there, called at the home of Mrs. Lilla Haskins.

Upper Applegate grange expects to purchase a 1500 watt Kohler light plant within a short time, which will be installed in the new woodshed being constructed near the hall. The woodshed is of rustic type built of upright poles. The grange also recently added a clock to their furnishings, which contributes to the homeliness of their hall. Grangers attending conference at Central Point last week who received state degree work were Fred Dorn, master; Ed Finley, Omar Guly, and Mrs. Floyd McKee. Mrs. Lee Fort also attended. Several members expect to go to Portland this week for national grange convention.

Evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kubli early last week included Mr. and Mrs. Robin M. Murphy and Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Cox of Medford.

Mrs. Grace Cook of Hills, who had spent several months here with her daughter, Mrs. Wesley Davis, left a few days ago for Tule Lake, Cal., to visit another daughter, Mrs. Felix Soderman. Mrs. Davis also had a week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cox and family of Merrill.

Mrs. Elliott Morey left Wednesday for her home at Sonora, Cal., after spending two weeks at the home of her brother, W. E. Haskins. Mrs. Morey was a guest Wednesday at her cousin, Mrs. Ouel Central at Medford.

A number of real estate deals have been made in the lower Applegate section this fall. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bennett have purchased the Carl Franzen ranch, and are residing there. Mr. and Mrs. Franzen have bought the Pinley Brothers' farm, and have taken possession. It is understood that Harry and Francis Pinley and sister, Miss Gertrude Pinley, will live in Grants Pass.

Harold Reed and Albert Young killed two bears here a few days ago. The animals were young twins.

John Reed of lower Applegate enlisted with the United States marines last month, and is stationed at San Diego.

The second November meeting of the Applegate club unit will be held at the club room Wednesday, Nov. 16. Study club work in the parent education project is being taken up, and will be given that day by the appointed leaders, Mrs. Wesley Davis and Mrs. Walter Crenshaw. The meeting will open promptly at two p. m. and everyone interested is invited to attend.

Two local boys attending Medford high school have been accepted on the football team. William Clute plays and on the first team, and James Wallace also is a player.
