

Oregon State's Joe Wendlick Named All-Coast in A. P. Balloting

CALIFORNIA BEARS PLACE THREE ON MYTHICAL LINEUP

Speed and Power Embraced in Line and Backfield—Anderson of California Only Player to Repeat

By Russell J. Newland
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Associated Press' 14th annual All-Pacific Coast Football team, announced today, combines a big, extremely mobile line and a backfield embracing both speed and tremendous power.

It averages 203 pounds on the line and 184 pounds in the backfield. Alvord Wolff, University of Santa Clara tackle, was the only non-Pacific coast conference player to win a first team position. Coaches, officials and sports writers from all sections of the far west participated in the consensus vote.

University of California, co-champion of the conference with Southern California, placed the most men—three. Southern California, the University of California at Los Angeles and Washington each contributed two players and Oregon State college one.

Sophomore Named

For the first time in several years, a sophomore, Jay McDowell, of Washington, made the mythical varsity team. McDowell, an end, also is one of the youngest players ever to be so honored. He is 17 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall and from Oak Park, Ill.

Balloting was not even close for any of the positions. Wolf, Harry Smith, U.S.C. guard; John Ryland, U.C.L.A. center, and Vic Bottari, California left half, were the heaviest backed players. Ryland also received a number of votes for guard, a position he plays on defense.

Dave Anderson, California fullback, was the only player to win all-coast recognition for the second successive year. Two members of the 1937 team, Steve Sivinski, Washington guard, and Pete Zagari, Stanford tackle, were placed on the second squad this year.

Besides Anderson and Bottari, the backfield includes Greenville Lansdell, Southern California quarterback, and Kenneth Washington, Negro star from U.C.L.A.

DANCE AND DINNER TO HONOR TIGERS

Twenty-eight members of Medford high school's Black Tornado football team, Southern Oregon conference champions and undefeated in the state, will tonight receive their reward for turning in one of the best seasons in Tiger history.

The entire squad will receive letters at a dance in the high school gymnasium. The dance will start immediately following a banquet and dinner in the Hotel Medford, to which the players will escort their lady friends.

Coach Bill Bowman will present the letters to all players.

ARKANSAS SCUFFLERS ON MONDAY LINEUP AT GRAPPLING EMPORIUM

Tuffy, Tony and Mike Jones, known to the grappling world as the Arkansas Scufflers, make their first Southern Oregon mat appearance in the Medford armory next Monday night on a staling program which Promoter Mack Lillard believes will be staged before one of the largest crowds of the year. With ladies' night in effect again and the nationally-famous reputation of the Ozark mountain brothers whipping the local fans into various stages of excitement, the promoter reported that a sellout house was practically certain.

The actual lineup of battle will see Frankie Schroll tangling with the 195-pound Tuffy in the one-hour main event. Cecil McGill, classing with the 205-pound Tony in the middle affair, and Floyd Britt matching holds with the 185-pound Mike in the opener.

It is reported that the Scufflers, all be-whiskered guys, are extremely versatile, patterning their ring tactics along the lines of their opponents. If so, the bouts involving McGill and Schroll should be clean and scientific, while the Britt versus Mike Jones go should be a knock-down and-drag-out mad house. Britt is no angel, and would rather gouge one eye than win a dozen matches by straight mat work.

POORER SCHOLARS TO BE GIVEN CHANCE IN PORTLAND ATHLETICS

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Portland high schools, barred from competition with members of the State Athletic association for declining to accept the nine term ruling, eliminated scholastic requirements for athletes today and lowered the age limit from 20 to 19 years.

Edon Jennie, director of physical education, explained the regulations had been in effect for two months but had not been included in the athletic code.

"Participation is just as important for the poor student as the good one," the director said, "even though few poor students are sufficiently proficient to earn a place on first teams."

"We do not require a boy to play football in order to take a course in algebra. There is no reason why a boy should be required to pass algebra in order to play football."

The Portland schools were not permitted to compete in last winter's state basketball tournament because they allowed youths in their ninth or more terms to play.

If a student fails to do satisfactory work, a counselor may advise him to drop a subject or discontinue sports.

MRS. CECIL GALL BEST SHOT OF ALL

Mrs. Cecil Gall took first place in last night's handicap rifle match on the Medford Rifle club's indoor range, barely outpointing Phil Whitlock and well ahead of the usual "best" shooters.

Beginning last night and to continue for two more weeks, firing was completed on the first stage of a postal match with the Coos Bay rifle club. Fired targets are exchanged for scoring between the two clubs and team totals for this week will appear in print next Friday. Complete scores for last night were:

Mrs. Cecil Gall	386
Phil Whitlock	375
Shelby Tuttle	378
Mrs. Ivan Waddell	372

EXAMS SET FOR GAGE OFFICIALS

Annual examination for prospective basketball officials will be held in room two of the Medford senior high school Saturday at 1 p. m. It was announced today by Coach Russ Aeberson of the Tigers. Covering all rules and play situations, the written examination takes two hours to complete.

The examinations are sponsored by the Oregon State High School Athletic association. All officials of class A high school games are supposed to pass the examination before officiating during the season, the coach explained. A $2 fee must be paid before the quiz is taken.

Billy Hulén says:

I. Pickem "Limbs" for Trojans to Beat Notre Dame

Because the three gentlemen who substituted for I. Pickem while the famous grid prognosticator was edly wandering over the country, have positively refused to have anything more to do with this business of naming football winners, the bruised and battered Mr. Pickem is forced to again make his appearance today, much against his wishes.

For two weeks Mr. Pickem roamed, nobody knows where, labbing incoherently that he had finally picked an upset. That was right after Washington surprised Southern California, 7 to 6, and for many days afterwards the screwball deposer was lost to the world which knew him. Although Pickem has returned, his whereabouts during those two weeks is still a mystery. He is utterly unable to recall where he was or what he did, but it is expected that complaints against him from points in the nation pretty soon, which will at least reveal the direction and seriousness of his vagrancy.

It is not known why Pickem's trio of substitutes refuse to continue their amazingly accurate predictions. They will give no reason; in fact they won't even talk about it. They simply turn down their thumbs whenever the subject is mentioned, and walk away. In a statement which Pickem said he didn't want published, the famous pickster scathingly remarked that "it is my belief that the three gentlemen, after picking 12 out of 13 the first week and only 6 for 10 the second Saturday, are afraid another attempt will see their average sink completely from sight."

Thus, forced into a position from which he cannot extricate himself, Mr. Pickem again goes to the prognosticating post for the one and only big encounter to be played tomorrow: Notre Dame's fighting Irish versus the University of Southern California Trojans in Los Angeles. Pickem is happy, if it could be called by that name, that there is only one game of local interest being played. "Only one game, only one miss," he says.

Here it is, and it is too bad the fellow hasn't nerve enough to back up his prediction with what it takes.

NOTRE DAME-USC. They are calling this season's Notre Dame team the greatest in the nation, and maybe it is. USC, twice defeated, is the rank underdog, and on paper doesn't have a chance against the Irish. But the game is in Los Angeles. Notre Dame is traveling a long distance, and there is no "dope" when these two teams play. Hence, I. Pickem, after long and careful study of the near market in Fargo-Pago, picks the Trojans to kick over the traces and emerge as a truly great football team by walloping the South Benders, 13 to 7. Whoopee, what a long-shot wager that would be if Pickem would wager, which he won't.

All-American Team Picked In United Press Balloting

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Sports Editor
Copyright, 1938 By United Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Out of a blizzard of ballots from coaches, scouts and sports writers all over the country, the United Press presents its 1938 all-American football team today.

To choose the best from the thousands of college men who played football this year the United Press sought the votes of coaches, sports writers on newspapers and scouts. Toward the end of the season a call was sent out for all-America nominations, and from all parts of the country the names rolled in. Along with the nominations came reasons for making them and specific games and plays in which the players had excelled.

Then the nominations were attached to ballots and sent back to coaches, scouts, sports writers on newspapers and United Press football writers from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Each man was asked to choose first, second and third teams.

A point system was devised for votes on the first, second and third teams and under that system the most points any one player could get was 360.

The players with their qualifications and the number of points they received:

Ends
Louis Daddio, Pittsburgh, 217 points. This year he scored one touchdown, kicked 16 points after touchdowns and two field goals. He is the crashing type of end and he stood out on the Pittsburgh team, which many persons consider one of the greatest in the country despite its two defeats.

John Wysocki, Villanova, 189 points. Many who voted said he was not as great a player this year as he was last year when he was an end on the United Press all-America team, but he still was good enough to beat out Holland of Cornell who got 178 points and Wyatt of Tennessee who got 168. Wysocki is a smart, cat-like player. A fine pass receiver and a genius on end-around plays.

Tackles
Joseph Beiner, Notre Dame, 288 points. Beiner has been outstanding in the Notre Dame line for the last two seasons, and one of the great performances he turned in this year was against the Army when it seemed that the cadets were about to brush the Irish clear of the field.

Alvin Wolff, Santa Clara, 187 points.

he handled the ball this season he averaged a gain of 9.6 yards. Standing six feet, one inch tall and weighing 203 pounds, he was the leading scorer of the Southeastern conference with 72 points.

Eric Tipton, Duke, 151 points. He was closely pressed in the voting by MacLeod of Dartmouth and Cafego of Tennessee. Tipton, one of the greatest kickers since the days of Harry Kipke, can pass and run, too. His best performance of the year was against Pittsburgh last Saturday when he kicked a soggy, heavy ball with such accuracy that he kept the Panthers back on their heels all afternoon and enabled Duke to win the game.

Fullback
Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh, 260 points. He was shifted to fullback on the Pittsburgh team this year because of his great ability as a blocker. His true greatness came out when he was injured, and he played the Penn State and Duke games wearing a six-pound steel brace on his knee. A member of the United Press' all-America backfield last year, Goldberg rounded out three years of sensational playing.

Guards
Ralph Helkkinen, Michigan, 236 points. His fame apparently has spread everywhere, for he got votes from north, east, south and west. Coaches were particularly enthusiastic about him. On defense he has a trick of jamming the opposition line and opening a hole through which a teammate goes to nail the ball carrier.

Bob Lee Suftridge, Tennessee, 140 points. A sophomore, he squeezed into the first team by beating out Smith of Southern California who has 123 points and Book of Iowa State who had 103. Great at diagnosing plays, Suftridge excelled in blocking kicks and knocking down passes.

Center
Charles Aldrich, Texas Christian, 331 points and it wasn't even close. Dan Hill of Duke, with 150 points, gave Aldrich the little competition he did have. Charles Brock of Nebraska, a great football player, finished third and would honor any all-America team. Aldrich called defensive signals this season and intercepted three passes.

Quarterback
David O'Brien, Texas Christian, 350 points—only 10 short of perfect. A few scattered first team votes went to Lansdel of Southern California and Sitko of Notre Dame, but O'Brien came closer to being a unanimous choice than anybody else on the first team. Despite his weight—only 152 pounds—he is durable and a good ball carrier. He completed 93 passes for 1,300 yards this season.

Halfbacks
Parker Hall, Mississippi, 191 points. Coaches, particularly, appreciate him, and most of them went down the line for him in the voting. Hall's record speaks for itself. Every time

Baugh is a bit behind. His average is 5.08 with 58 completions for 812 yards. He has been hampered by a bad foot and an injured shoulder this season but now he is fit as the proverbial cello.

PRO PIGSKIN CLASSIC TO PIT BEST PAIR PASSING DEPARTMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—There is great excitement on the 42nd street campus these days for "them jints" are going to tangle with Conrade George Preston Marshall's Washington team Sunday at the polo grounds for the eastern championship of the pro league.

The game also will decide who is the best forward passer in the world, Samuel Adrain Baugh, the redskin aerialist, or Ed Danowski, the old Fordham Blue who pitches for the jints. They are neck and neck for the league passing title.

Pans are conditioned during college season to think otherwise but they are no passers better than these two. Danowski leads the national league, which harbors few soft touches, with an average of 547 and 58 completions for 819 yards, a fair piece of territory.

Baugh is a bit behind. His average is 5.08 with 58 completions for 812 yards. He has been hampered by a bad foot and an injured shoulder this season but now he is fit as the proverbial cello.
