

STUDENTS RECEIVE FULL INFORMATION ON SEAL BENEFITS

Educational Program Given Cooperation of Teachers — Committee Extends Thanks to Superintendent

A varied program, which served the anti-tuberculosis Christmas seal to students in so many forms it threatened to supplant the old curriculum standbys, reading, writing and arithmetic, has been completed in the Medford schools. A "great big vote of thanks" was extended E. H. Hedrick and his staff today by the annual seal sale committee.

So thorough was the cooperation given by the schools to the educational program of the annual drive that one student declared she met a test on the Christmas seal in every class room she entered.

Public speaking instructors, hygiene teachers, English teachers, elementary school teachers, art supervisors and all the others participated in the drive to acquaint all Medford school children with the Christmas seal and the work it represents. The program assumed a very practical aspect when general information regarding tuberculosis, its prevention and cure, was brought into many classrooms. Whom to see in case there are symptoms of the disease was made clear as was the attitude to be assumed by each individual toward the person who has the disease.

Plays, speeches and even songs grew out of the campaign. Pictures of foods, which will aid the body in fighting tuberculosis were exhibited by one group. The public speaking classes at Medford senior high school sent three speakers on a tour of many of the rural schools. The classes of the junior high school prepared six radio plays and presented them. These classes are instructed by Bertrand C. Adams and Grace Sikas.

The educational program was adopted two years ago to supplant the actual sale of the Christmas seals in the schools. It was found so satisfactory that the 1938 committee asked for the same cooperation from Mr. Hedrick and his staff. Sale of seals in the schools was limited to the opening of booths for one day this week in the high school. This was done to encourage high school students to purchase Christmas seals from their own allowances as they will be the citizens of tomorrow, responsible for the perpetuation of this drive for complete eradication of tuberculosis.
