 An executive committee meeting will take place Monday evening, September 25 at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. J. Meiring, 211 Genesee street.
 Membership books of the American Legion auxiliary were closed for the national convention with 478,699 members enrolled for 1939, according to a report received by Edna Overmeyer, membership chairman of the local auxiliary unit. This figure was an increase of 17,510 over the same date last year and 13,834 over the highest previous membership record.
 Forty-three of the auxiliary's fifty-two departments had exceeded their 1939 membership quotas.
 National membership trophies of the American Legion auxiliary will go to the Departments of Mississippi, Arkansas, Missouri, Georgia, Panama,

Wisconsin and New York as the result of membership gains this year. It has been announced from the auxiliary's national headquarters. The big trophy cups will be presented at the national convention in Chicago, September 26 to 28.

Ward's Displaying Hardware, Building Electric Supplies
 Considerable attention has been attracted by the outstanding display of hardware, electrical supplies, carpenter tools, machinery and builders' tools in the Central avenue windows of Montgomery-Ward and company here. This attractive and compact display gives a general idea of the values featured in Ward's basement hardware and electrical department.

The display of tools and electrical supplies has been planned to tie-in with the current building program in Medford, according to H. L. Brown, store manager.

New Corset Revives Arguments Of 1900's

By Joan Durham
 AP Feature Service Writer
 To corset or not to corset has become the question before New York's fashion world.
 And it looks as if we, the women, might get ourselves all worked up, as we did when Irene Castle bobbed her hair.
 Mainbocher, in Paris, is credited with having crystallized the controversy. Adaptations of one Mainbocher corset, a black wasp-waist affair, were in a Fifth avenue store window before the original ever saw these stores. The original of another, a pink satin corset lacing tightly down the back, set off some fireworks when it appeared in another window.
 Doctors Dubious
 The last time we women went in for whalebones and piano wire lacing, the doctors had a lot to say about it. How do they react today?
 "Big women with lots of fat around the waist," said one doctor who would not allow his name to be used, "may be able to stand slightly tighter waists. But little women who are already quite small will suffer seriously if they lace themselves in too tightly."
 "Women will begin the breathe like men," said another doctor. "Most women, you know, have an abdominal type of respiration, while most men breathe through the chest."
 In 1904 a writer who signed herself Arabella Kenealy said this in an article, for the Nineteenth Century Magazine, called "The Curse of Corsets."
 "Womanliness is not a thing of inches, nor of muscles, nor of strength."
 What do women think about corsets?
 "Women who take part in sports have good muscles and don't need them," says Helen Wills, the tennis star. "Tennis is particularly good for the waist, anyway. Women who play a lot of tennis have very small waists, you'll notice."
 Sure Thing!
 Says Jean Spades, designer of smart mannequins: "Indeed I am going to wear one of the new corsets. This new silhouette is a much more natural one for women than those awful narrow hips we've been trying to get. I can't see how well we'll be any more unhealthy if we pull our waists in a little, than we were when we wore girldes."
 "I'm just waiting until they make 'em cheap enough so I can buy one," Carmen Miranda, "Souse" American chanteuse who has captivated theater audiences, dismissed the subject with a shrug.
 "For what?" she asked when she saw photographs of the stem-torso.
 Then there's the office girl. For instance, Ray Hanger, Virginia-born young woman who directs activities of New York's largest news photograph library.
 "Never!" she exploded. "Can't you imagine me all laced up, stooping over the cabinets getting out pictures of Hitler and Stalin and Chamberlain, and Roosevelt? I'd be a pretty sight now, wouldn't I?"

BUT YOU CAN'T "PLUG" A CAN OF TOMATOES!

Did you ever "plug" a watermelon? If so, what did that little upside-down pyramid mean when you cut it out of the melon's rind? It meant protection. With it, you could make sure you were getting what you were paying for—a good, ripe watermelon.

In most purchases, of course, you can't take that precaution. You can't, for example, cut into a can of tomatoes . . . or a box of tapioca . . . to see what's inside. But you can still protect yourself when you go to market:

You can buy familiar, advertised brands!

When you buy the things advertised in this newspaper, you are buying dependable goods. They've got to be what they claim to be in order to appear here. You'll find them as represented—and you won't have to "plug" them!
