GERMAN DEMANDS FOR OIL EXPORTS STUMP RUMANIA. BUCHAREST, Sept. 18. (AP) - The Rumanian government's inability to meet German demands for increased oil exports is threatening to take a serious turn in the near future. Diplomats as well as oil producers said today that a German mission headed by Dr. Karl Claudiu, which now is in Bucharest, is seeking huge quantities of Rumanian oil to run German war equipment. This snag, according to these quarters, is that the oil which Germany demands already is owned by or pledged to French, British or American companies. The Germans, it was understood, asked for the Rumanian government's percentage of the annual oil output, but this oil, which amounts to 72,000 tank cars annually, is pledged to a French company as security for a Rumanian loan floated in France. The two largest Rumanian oil companies, the Astra Romana and the Steaua Romana, are owned by American and British concerns and are said to be unwilling to sell to Germany.
