

WAR BABY STOCKS TAKE SHARP SPURT ON REPEAL RUMOR

Speculative Forces Hear Cash And Carry Proposal 'Good as in The Bag'—1,700,000 Shares Bought

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—War stocks mapped for a while in today's market but eventually awakened and stepped up for a sprint that put many up as much as 3 points at the best. Isolated gains of 5 or so were noted.

Prices were spotty in the forenoon, with the turnover the first two hours the smallest since the boom got under way nearly three weeks ago.

Speculative forces had their ears to the ground, however, and, just after mid-day, when rumors were heard in boardrooms of a "leak" at Washington indicating repeal of the arms embargo was "in the bag," buyers hit the list from all sides and quotations soon mounted to peak levels of the day.

For a brief interval the ticker tape fell 2 minutes behind floor transactions. Subsequently there were frequent slow-downs and pickups in activity.

Transfers were around 1,700,000 shares.

Roosevelt Urges Speedy Action to Keep Neutrality

candor, that darker periods may lie ahead.

The embargo provision of the neutrality law, he declared, "no alters the historic foreign policy of the United States that it impairs the peaceful relations of the United States with foreign nations."

The "crux" of the issue, he said, was repeal of the embargo, which forbids shipments of munitions to combatant nations, and a "return to international law."

Non-partisan Ugeled
The president took occasion, too, to renew his plea for non-partisan-ship during the present international crisis and to reassure the nation of his belief that America could keep from being embroiled in Europe's conflict.

"Let no man or group in any walk of life," the president said, "assume exclusive protectorate over the future well-being of America—because I conceive that regardless of the party or action the mantle of peace and of patriotism is wide enough to cover us all."

"Let no group assume the exclusive label of the peace 'bloc'. We all belong to it."

Mr. Roosevelt added that "in my candid judgment" the United States would "succeed in these efforts" to keep out of war.

Policy Changes Listed
When and if the embargo is scrapped, the president said there were other phases of policy "reinforcing American safety" that should be considered.

Restricting American merchant vessels, so far as possible, from entering danger zones.
Preventing American citizens from traveling on belligerent vessels.
Requiring foreign buyers to take manner of title in this country to commodities bought by belligerents (Cash and carry).

Preventing extension of war credits to belligerents.
Two other objectives, the chief executive said, have been attained amply under existing law. These are the regulation of collections of funds in this country for belligerents and the maintenance of a license system covering foreign travel in arms, ammunition and implements of war.

Method Not Stipulated
The president left to congress, however, a choice of methods by which these "safeguards" should be set up—so long as the method chosen will meet the needs of now and changing day to day situations and dangers.

"To those who say that this program would involve a step toward war on our part," the chief executive asserted, "I reply that it offers far greater safeguards than we now possess or have ever possessed to protect American lives and property from danger."

"It is a positive program for giving safety. This means less likelihood of incidents and controversies which tend to draw us into conflict, as they did in the last war."

"There lies the road to peace." After relating steps already taken to strengthen the nation's defenses, Mr. Roosevelt said he saw no need for additional legislation nor for further executive action under "his proclamation of a limited state of national emergency."

Mr. Roosevelt said the executive branch of the government had done its utmost, within a traditional policy of non-involvement, "to aid in averting the present appalling war."

Must Lose No Time
"Having thus striven and failed," he said, "this government must lose no time or effort to keep the nation from being drawn into the war."

Here he predicted success "in these efforts."

Before closing, the president expressed his desire to be able to "offer the hope that the shadow over the world might swiftly pass." But he said:

"I cannot, the facts compel me to state, with candor, that darker periods may lie ahead."

Mr. Roosevelt said the disaster abroad was not of American making, but that "we find ourselves affected to the core, our currents of commerce are changing, our minds are filled with new problems, our position in world affairs has already been altered."

Must Aid Civilization
A moment later he asserted: "Fate seems now to compel us to assume the task of helping to maintain in the western world a citadel wherein that civilization may be kept alive. The peace, the integrity and the safety of the Americas—there must be kept firm and serene."

Thus the president, for some of his audience, gave reassurances that the United States would stand firmly behind the Monroe doctrine.

His message also gave his backing to the neutrality proposals transmitted to congress at its last session by Secretary Hull.

Before Mr. Roosevelt drove to the capitol to address the congress called together only seven weeks after adjourning the regular session, 17 senators opposed to repeal of the arms embargo met to plan their strategy of opposition to revision of the neutrality act.

Commanded Hitler

SALEM, Ore.—(UP)—An increase in travel from the east to the Pacific coast because of the war in Europe was forecast by the travel department of the state highway commission.

The highway department, basing its opinion on the report of travel agencies in the east, predicted that many thousands of Americans who usually go to Europe would turn to the western section of the United States instead.

Increase in travel to this coast was noted already this year, in many cases states in the east and middle west sending twice as many tourists as in the year before. The gain is expected to continue through the winter and into next year.

The travel department believes that the abrupt interruption of trans-Atlantic travel will increase the fall flow of tourists to the Golden Gate exposition at San Francisco and consequently to the Pacific northwest.

FREEDOM ISSUE BROUGHT UP BY SCHOOL OUSTER

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio, (UP)—Ruth Irene Adlard, pretty 27-year old school teacher whose political activities and labor sympathies virtually have disrupted this quiet community, has "only begun to fight for democracy" since her teaching contract was not renewed.

The blonde young teacher, who is so popular here that hundreds of persons signed a petition that she be retained, first got into trouble with the school board last April.

When she was ordered to tell the rural school board whether she intended to continue attacking prominent local citizens as "reactionaries" and "oppressors of labor."

One of her staunchest defenders was the Rev. Charles F. MacLennan, pastor of the Willoughby Presbyterian church.

"The action of the board is a gross denial of civil liberties and I am convinced that the fight for democracy in Lake county has just begun," Miss Adlard said.

"No board member ever has found a complaint against my record as a teacher. The board is not renewing my contract because not to do so is in the interests of the political and economic bosses who have dominated the county for many years!"

John T. Roberts, American Legion commander of eight northeastern Ohio counties, has been a leader in the fight to oust Miss Adlard, who had taught the third grade here for more than seven years.

PROOF OF MARRIAGE LONG AGO IS SOUGHT
SALEM.—(UP)—County Clerk U. G. Boyer has received a letter from Agnes Anderson, Belfast, Ireland, requesting proof of a marriage performed here 50 years ago to enable her to obtain an old age pension.

Her marriage to James P. Anderson on October 9, 1889, took place in "White's Church" the letter said.

Boyer said that a Father White was once pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church here and he thought the desired information could be obtained.

TO KEEP THIS HUSKY GRID STAR IN TOP SHAPE

He Drinks Plenty of Snider's

GRADE A PASTEURIZED MILK

Here's Why It Gives the Real Scoring Pep

Milk is the only food that supplies calcium in sufficient quantities for the body's well being in a form readily and efficiently assimilated by the human system.

Calcium and phosphorus are of special importance because they make up a large part of the mineral content of milk. Calcium also is present in milk in much larger quantity than in any other food.

For example, a pint of milk daily will supply almost the entire calcium requirement of the average adult. But it takes nearly twenty servings of common vegetables and fruits to satisfy the daily calcium need.

To assure a safe margin of calcium intake for the growing child, a quart of milk daily is often indicated. To get an equivalent amount of calcium in vegetables which have a high calcium content would require 2 1/2 pounds of peas, 2 pounds of cabbage, 16 apples, or 10 oranges!

Don't just ask for ice cream or milk—be sure to say "Snider's"—then you are assured of the BEST—and it costs no more!
